

AWAKENING INEBRIATES

Recently my attention was attracted to the prostrate body of a man apparently intoxicated. An officer was endeavoring to arouse him by the usual means, but without success. Being a medical student, I volunteered to awaken him through the agency of science, but was gruffly informed that the department had methods of its own and needed no advice.

Yet much of his trouble might have been avoided by simply stimulating the supraorbital nerve, which is one of the terminal branches of the frontal nerve (branch of the ophthalmic division of the trifacial or fifth cranial nerve). This can be done in the following way: First run the thumb or index finger outward along the bony arch over the eye from the inner canthus (the angle formed by the blending of the upper and lower eyelids) for a distance of about one-half inch, where a notch will be found (supraorbital notch, or foramen). Through this depression the supraorbital nerve passes to the skin over the forehead, supplying it with common sensation. Then stimulate it by moving the thumb or index finger inward, outward and also in a rotary manner, which will propagate a nervous impulse to the brain, restoring sensibility almost immediately. This is also a means of diagnosing between stupor due to drugs, which cannot be overcome by this method and which is often mistaken for drunkenness. In event of such a mishap medical treatment is imperative instead of a cold cell, which may cause death. Why cannot this simple scientific fact be applied among our policemen in preference to the barbarous hot foot system (which consists of striking the sole of the foot with the club), a process as injurious as it is cruel and painful?—Cor. Chicago Record.

Diphtheria in the Horse.

A little girl having fallen ill of diphtheria, the doctor in seeking the source of infection found that the child's pony was also ill, with a purulent and slightly fetid discharge from the nostrils. The pony was watched and later developed enlarged glands under the tongue, and its breathing became labored and stertorous. It was killed and a bacteriological examination made of some of its nasal mucus by Dr. Louis Cobbett of the pathological laboratory at Cambridge. He succeeded in isolating a bacillus in every respect identical with the ordinary diphtheria bacillus. It was fatal to guinea pigs, and the effects of infecting large doses of cultures made from it were completely neutralized by diphtheria antitoxin. The germ was undoubtedly a true diphtheria bacillus, "and we may safely conclude," says Dr. Cobbett, "that the horse suffers from diphtheria." The discovery is of considerable scientific interest in its bearing on the origin of the antitoxin. The presence in some horses, which have not been artificially immunized, of diphtheria antitoxin has hitherto puzzled pathologists. This is now easily explained by the previous occurrence in the animal of a true diphtheria and the natural formation of the antitoxin in consequence.

For Lazy Tourists.

A novel and time saving device has originated in Germany in the way of a postal card, the possession of which will deprive even the laziest of sojourners in lots of any excuse for not communicating with their friends. One side of the card bears the postage stamp and the address. On the other side are printed words, followed by blank spaces for replies to the questions suggested. An example with the replies made in one instance by the person who sent the card is as follows: "Arrived—Aug. 20. Society—Mixed. Health—Good. Scenery—Magnificent. Fun—Immense. Lodgings—Fair to middling. Weather—Showery. Money—Send me more by return. General Remarks—Would like to live here." The pictorial postcard—the Ansicht-Karte—has risen from a fashion to a craze and a mania in Germany.—New-castle Chronicle.

A New and Terrifying Game.

"The sacredness of home" may soon be only a phrase in London. "Some ingenious fiend has invented a new amusement for the kitchen," says The Daily Express, "and if it becomes popular servants will know as much about our business as we do."

This little pleasurable takes the form of a game by which each evening the contents of the waste paper baskets in the various rooms of the house are emptied upon a table, and a prize is awarded to the first ingenious and deft fingered manservant or maidservant who puts one complete letter together.

Think of the joy of the servants when the contents of letters which you have torn, as you fondly believed, into small pieces to be restored are made public!

Centipeds in Texas' Capitol.

Employees at the Texas state capitol building in Austin have no chance of passing a dull moment during office hours these days. The magnificent granite structure has become infested with centipeds of great size and corresponding aggressiveness. The poisonous insects are to be found in every department, the governor's office seeming to be the favorite haunt of the biggest of them. One killed there a day or two ago was the largest ever seen in that part of Texas, measuring 7 1/2 inches in length.—New Orleans Picayune.

Never Goes to Sleep.

The little goldfish, the pet of the household aquariums, never goes to sleep. In this respect the pike and salmon are his equals. They are alert for their prey in the ocean as the goldfish is for the crumbs that are fed him from the household tables. In his native element the goldfish forages for himself and has his eyes open all the time.

WOMAN AND FASHION.

Stylish Toilet of Green Cloth—Gown For Children—A Costume From Paris.

The gown shown in the illustration is of green cloth, with the skirt set in broad box plaits and stitched down from the waist to the knees at either side and to the depth of seven inches at the back, the middle of the front being one wide plait adorned with cream lace. A series of points in black velvet ribbon are arranged round the waist and at the bottom of the trailing skirt, which is quite free from the lining.

The bodice is box plaited to match the skirt and trimmed at the waist with the velvet points, while the central plait is ornamented with cream lace. The yoke is of white satin spotted with black, decorated with the velvet points and bordered with a band of lace. The belt is very narrow and is trimmed with three rows of velvet ribbon, and the collar band is of lace mounted on satin and edged with a wee lace frill. A point of the yoke extends into the top of the long sleeve, which is enriched at the lower part with the velvet ribbon.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Gowns For Children.

Figured silks are very useful for children, and there are two or three new ways in which they may be made up. One smart little gown is made in flat box plaits and has a round waist shirred on the shoulders and trimmed with a deep lace collar that is nearly deep enough for a cape. The entire waist is of narrow tucks or narrow box plaits closely stitched down at either side, and the waist fastening at the left side has rosettes of bright red velvet caught with small steel buckles. Another style of frock is made of a liberty silk or lansdowne. The skirt is plaited and has bands of heavy lace put on at irregular intervals. It is finished around the foot with a succession of small ruffles. The front of the waist is trimmed with bands of the same lace, a deep cape collar of it and bands around the sleeves. There is a soft belt of india silk tied at the left side in two bows and loops. A most attractive, though rather conspicuous, frock is of bright red in soft wool material. It has a plain front breadth and plaited sides and back and is trimmed with rows of velvet just the color of the material. The waist has a square yoke outlined with rows of the velvet ribbon and fastens at the left side. There is a red velvet ribbon belt finished with a gold buckle.—Harper's Bazar.

A Costume From Paris.

The costume represented is for traveling. It is of drab covered coat cloth. The pointed lapels are edged with embroided designs in braid to match, and the skirt is trimmed in the same style. The waistband is of violet silk, draped.—Paris Herald.

POPULAR CANDIDATE.

Hon. T. R. Martin Is the People's Choice for Judge.

Hon. T. R. Martin is the people's candidate for judge. This gentleman's name will appear on the official ballot paper under the head of the "Citizens' Party" for the office of law judge.

The office is one of great importance and responsibility in this large and growing county, and more especially when the influence of large corporations is considered. It calls for the election of a lawyer possessing an experience, a training and a firmness of character that will give assurance to the people that the office will not be prostituted by unworthy motives. To secure a proper administration of justice the confidence of the people must possess the full confidence of the people.

In the administration of the district attorney's office during the past three years Mr. Martin has shown that he is no respecter of persons, and this gives assurance that should he be elected to the bench he will do his full duty without fear, favor or affection. Three years ago his popularity with the people enabled him to win a noted victory; he has fully justified his election and confidently looks forward to a renewal of the people's support.

A true-blue Democrat Mr. Martin has always been; he trusts the people; he believes that true Democracy means the greatest good to the greatest number. His ringing eloquence has been heard often in behalf of the party of Jefferson, and his money has been freely spent to secure victory for his party at the polls.

Mr. Martin is the peer of either of his two competitors for the judicial office; he has had a more varied experience; he has had a larger practice in the criminal and civil courts of the county, and the successful administration of the district attorney's office has added to his reputation.

Colonel Martin is a gentleman of broad convictions, of lofty ideals, is kindly disposed, affable to all comers, and possessed of those natural gifts which distinguish the Southern gentleman. There can be no doubt that if elected he will be an ornament to the bench of this county.

Vote, therefore, for Hon. T. R. Martin, whose name will be found under the designation of the "Citizens' Party" on the ballot paper.

The Workingman's Friend.

Although Hon. Stanley W. Davenport is relegated to the Anti-Trust column of the ballot paper, he is the only Democratic candidate for congress in the field. His record is such as to call forth the enthusiastic support of all classes in the coming election, for he has proven himself eminently capable of serving this mining district. He is a workingman's candidate every time. He is no time server, but votes as he promises. He voted to amend the Sherman trust bill. Not only did he vote as above stated, but upon an amendment to exempt all labor unions as being unlawful combinations of his vote was cast in the affirmative. Mr. Davenport's votes on these measures can be found in the Congressional Record for June 2.

That he is the choice of his party and the choice of his district cannot be gainsaid. Everywhere the sentiment for him is in evidence. That is what is stimulating the Republican organization to its most strenuous activity. They have stopped at nothing and will not lessen their endeavors to take from him that which by virtue of the voice of this district is his.

His work as a citizen, as a lawyer, as a poor director, all point to an unblemished character, honest dealings and splendid executive ability, and if he is re-elected to congress will be of incalculable benefit to this district. Don't forget the "Anti-Trust" column and mark an X against the name of Stanley W. Davenport.
