BRIDE AND CRITICS.

She Was Happy and Wished to Hear What Folks Said of Her.

"My wife has had her curiosity appeased in a way that will satisfy her for some time," said the newly married man as he smiled, according to the Detroit Free Press. "It was my idea to make our wedding trip as quiet as possible and do away as much as we could with the annoyance that usually attends wedding couples. But the lady said that she was proud of being a bride and that she wanted to hear the comments that people would make. With this end in view she hit upon the crazy notion of playing deaf and dumb and going through a lot of monkey shines with our fingers to carry out the scheme. She reasoned that this would cause people to talk in our presence and thus we would be able to hear what they said.
"I opposed the idiotic idea from the start, but what I said cut no figure and I had to consent to the plan. Our first chance to try the scheme occurred in a railway station, where we were waiting for a train. My wife commenced her pantomime and I had to carry it out, feeling like a fool while I was doing it. She wobbled her fingers and I wobbled mine and we soon had everyone staring at us. There were two women scated back of us and the comments she desired so much to hear soon came.
"'It's a newly married couple," said one. 'The poor things are deaf and "'It's a newly married couple," said one. The poor things are deaf and dumb. Isn't it awful?

"'What do you suppose he saw in her?' asked the other. 'She is positively homely.'

"'And I believe her hair is bleached,' said the first woman.

"'And her hat is out of date,' was the next startler.

"'Looks like an old one made over,' was the reply.

"'Her dress wrinkles in the back,' said-the first.

"'She's 35 if she's a day, and she

There Are Two Heat Centres.

The eastern and western shores of the Atlantic ocean afford a very striking illustration of the varieties of temperature from the line which theoretically should prevail. On the American continent the effects of isolation and radiation have free play, and as a result great diversities of climate are experienced within a comparatively short length of country; places only a few hundred miles apart exhibiting great differences between their mean annual temperatures.

No such diversity exists on the eastern side of the Atlantic, there being only about one-half of the variety of mean annual temperatures in an equal line of coast line that exists on the opposite side of the ocean. The gulf stream is responsible for the stability of the climate of the British isles but there are other instances where an ocean reduces the temperature in accordance with its latitude, the decrease of temperature from the equator to the poles being more rapid than under existing conditions.

Not only does the heat equator not include the geographical equator, but the heat equator changes its position and migrates from one place to another.—Newcastle (Eng.) Chronicle.

An Enterprising Lady Reporter.

No modern reporter ever suppassed in impudent enterprise Miss Ann Royall, who conducted a gossipy journal called Paul Pry at Washington, back in the '40s. She wanted very much to get a "chat with the president" for her paper, but failed to do so until at last she saw and improved her opportunity. President Tyler was fond of swimming, and one day when he was taking a bath in the Potomac. Ann Royall came along and sat down on his clothes, demanding an interview as the price of her departure. The president, being a modest man, was oblig d, though with much reluctance, to grant the interview demended, thus recovering his apparel.—Kansas City Journal.

TRICKS OF STREET BEGGARS.

Devices Esed to Excite the Interest and Pity of the Public.

Devices Tsed to Excite the Interest and Pity of the Public.

Cool weather is here again, and with it the usual hordes of beggars, who flock to the city about this time every year. The ingenious schemes and tricks with which some of these "children of fate" seek to gull the unwary are marvels of cleverness and originality. Of course, every one knows of the starved, white-headed old man who surreptitiously places a crust of bread on the sidewalk and on the approach of some well-to-do looking person dives wildly for the crust and begins to chew it ravenously.

Another figure that is becoming quite familiar is the hard luck young man, out of work, with a mother and sister or two in Galveston, about whom he is very uneasy, and who is trying to rules enough money to go and hunt for them.

Yet another familiar figure is the pitful little newsboy with dirty face and ragged raiment, and an unvariable story of "hard luck today, Boss—ain't got no mother, and me sister and de kid is sick and I got ter support 'em. Won't yer buy a paper, please, Boss!" At first one's heart is touched by the pitful appeals of these ragged little urchins, struggling for a living, but if one bought a paper from every deserving little fellow some of us would soon be insolvent.

serving little fellow some of us would soon be insolvent.

Then there is the well dressed young man with red nose and bleared eyes, who lives somewhere in Jersey. We all know his little story of how he just came over last night, and indulged in a little more liquid refreshment than he could carry. Of course, he never did such a thing before, and now he finds himself in the humiliating position of being forced to ask the loan of car fare home.

A Romance of the Plague.

The last time the plague visited Glasgow with excessive virulence, says the London Daily Chronicle, was in August, 1645. memento of a pathetic romance connected with this visitation in Scotland is a railed enclosure on the bank of the Almond, in the parish of Bethven, Perthshire. It marks the spot where lie interred the hapless "Bessie Bell and Mary Gray," famed in Scotlish song. Daughters respectively of the laird of Kinvaid and the laird of Lynedoch, the maidens were very much attached to each other, and when they heard of the ravages of the plague they retired to a bower near the Almond, and dwelt in perfect seelusion. The fair recluses, however, had their place of their retreat discovered by a young gentleman of their acquaintance, who supplied the twain with provisions. He caught the plague himself unluckily, and communicated infection to Bessie and Mary, to which the girls field victims. According to the stern custom of the time, their bodies were not allowed internment in Methven kirkyard, so they were buried together in a spot contiguous to the bowers.

would Not Repeat the Mistake.

The only other time, so far as any-body can remember, that a joke was perpetrated in the supreme court, was when Thomas Wilson of Washington was arguing a case. Some people insist that he did not intend to be funny, but made his remark in sober earnestness. However, Mr. Wilson was arguing a case of some importance, and was dwelling upon propositions that were known to and accepted by every law student in the country when he was interrupted by the late Justice Miller, saying:

"Cannot the counsel safely assume that this court understands the rudiments of law?"

"I made that mistake in the lower court," retorted Mr. Wilson, "or the case would not have been here on appeal,"—Chicago Record.

She's' Good Points.

A pretty girl, with 2 decided air of being aware of her charms, stood in front of the lion's cage out at the Zoo Sunday afternoon, says the Washington Post. Two young men were near her, and her elaborate unconsciousness of their presence betrayed the fact that she knew they were looking as her.

"Pretty, isn't she?" said one young man in a low voice.

"She's a beauty," said the other, enthusiastically. The pretty girl's cheeks turned a trifle pinker, but she went on talking elegantly to the elderly man with her.

"Beautiful head to draw," commented the first young man. "Look at the way she holds it."

"Uh, hum," assented the other; "that shoulder's beautiful."

The pretty girl turned pinker still, and looked more pronouncedly unconscious than ever.

"Look at those muscles," said the

"Look at those muscles, said that the muscles in that leg. You can fairly count 'em." And the pretty girl turned very red indeed as it dawned upon her that the two admiring young men were discussing the lioness in the cage.

Poland Advances in Manufacture

Poland Advances in Manufactures.

The great product of Poland is at present textiles of cotton and wool. The growth of the city of Lodz (pronounced as though spelled Lootch), a manufacturing center, four or five hours' ride from Warsaw, is really wonderful, and quite American in its rapidity and present proportions. In 1835 Lodz was a small, dirty village of 10,000 inhabitants. To-day it is one of the busiest cities in Europe, with a population of 450,000 and a rank among the first as a manufacturing center. Lodz makes cotton, wool and chemicals, but particularly cotton and cotton fabrics. It is known as the Manchester of Russia.—Russian Correspondence in New York Post.

PAIN OPENED HER SKULL

Mrs. Lasher's Remarkable Story-Dr. Greene's Nervura Cured Her.

MES. FRED. C. LASHER, JR.

The case of Mrs. Fred. C. Lasher, Jr., a well-known woman of Westport, N. Y., is one of the most interesting on record. It is an actual fact that head-aches caused her head to split.

"For thirteen years," she says, "I suffered from terrible headaches night and day, until the bones of my skull opened so that the doctor could lay his thumb right into the opening on to my brain. Two doctors attended me and claimed that I was on the verge of insanity. I was under their care for nino years, but got no relief. Then I tried Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and inside of a year the bones of my head had taken their natural shape again."

That Mrs. Lasher's statements are true is vouched for by reliable men of Westport, and by a Justice of the Peace there. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy cured Mrs. Lasher when all other remedies failed, and it cures thousands of suffering women every year. If your head aches, if you cannot sleep and are weak and nervous, remember that this great curative agent, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, will make you well and strong.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is a physician's prescription, formulated from a discovery after years of investigation and experiment. Dr. Greene, 35 West 14th St., New York City, is the discoverer. He can be consulted free personally or by letter.
