DALY AND HACKMAN.

New Story Told of the Late Montans Copper King.

When Marcus Daly was in Washington last it is told that he performed a humane act which very nearly brought a brutal hack driver into the police court, and was a topic of conversation at the hotel and other places which Daly frequented. The story escaped the vigilance of the local newspaper fraternity, and is here published for the first time. Daly was coming out of Chamberlain's one morning when he sepled a negro hackman brutally belaboring a crippled old horse with a heavy whip in an almost futile effort to increase its speed from a walk to a slow trot, says the Washington Post. Daly hailed the driver, who quickly drew rein and approache the curb with the prospects of obtaining a fare. "Where do you want to go to, boss?" inquired the negro. "The want to go to, boss?" inquired the negro. "The want to go with you to the police court if you don't stop beating that poor old horse," replied the millionaire. "You could coax the night along faster with a handful of cats and a wisp of lay in front of him than you can by beating him from behind. When did you feed him last with the could not afford to provide better for his horse. Daly saw the force of the argument at once and that he could not afford to provide better for his horse. What suffering frequently results from a mother's ignorance; or more frequently from a mother's neglect to properly instruct her daughter?

have been naughty sometimes, and not have tried to remember to "hold on tight" to anything I had in my hands. I know you will say, "How could you have been so forgetful!" when I tell you that one day I dropped poor Lavinia Warren upon the wall, and her pretty pink face, with her blue eyes and black curly hair, was "smashed" on the stones! Oh, how I cried! I am to mamma, crying and sobbing, "Lavinia Warren's broke!"

Mamma took me in her lap, and said: "Don't cry, my little girl! Crying won't mend Lavinia's head." And then she took me by the hand, and went with me to the spot where headless Lavinia was lying. Her dear little kid arms and her little upturned feet, and her pretty face all scattered about her, caused me to cry more than ever. I shall never forget that sight.

Mamma bought me another dolly, but thic new one had a wooden head. I was fond of her. Still, I never loved her as I did dear Lavinia Warren. But I have always remembered since that sad mishap, to "hold on tight." Mamma said I would not forget again, and I have not.—Ray Laurance, in Little Folks.

Howard Gregg of San Francisco, who spent several years in Johannesburg, says that the Boer is not fighting for a hopelessly lost cause. By that, he continued, I do not mean that he will again occupy the position he did prior to the commencement of hostilities, but I am inclined to the opinion that sooner or later a peace will be declared, in which greater or less freedom and independence to the Boers as a nation will be guaranteed. Certainly Edward VII.'s proclamation naming Milner as a paramount lord of the Transvaal would seem to point in this direction. If England doesn't compromise with the Boers they will make her tenure of the country a disagreable and expensive thing. I believe they can keep up the guerilla system of warfare they have embarked on for years, and so long as any of them are left in the field bearing arms England will be forced to maintain a heavy military establishment in South Africa, so heavy indeed, that it will soon prove a heart-breaking strain to the taxpayers.
