Including the Frame.

His indulgest friends had praised his attempts at painting and drawing to such as extent that the youth really insighed himself to be an artist. His washing friends even bought his pletures for censiderable sums of money ito enceurage him," as they said.

Recently is walking along the Strand in Lendon' he was much delighted at sceing one of his pictures, finely framed, in a dealer's window, especially as he was walking with a pretty lady before whom he wished to appear in the best possible light.

Calling the attention of the lady to the picture, he said:
"Parden me, but I have some curiosity to know how my pictures stand commercially."

And the two entered the shop.
"She good man," said he to the keeper of it, "what is the price of that picture in the window here?"
"Three skillings."

"Great Scott?" cried the artist recoiling.

Lord Southey's Guillotine.

Lerd Sawthey's Guillotine.

The most occentric action of an eccentric man was Lord Southey's cool arrangement for suicide by means of a guillotine. He had a magnificent one erectéd in the drawing room of his house in the Rue du Luxembourg at Paris. The machine was of ebony in high gold and silver, the framework carved with artistic skill, the knife, shapp as a razor, was of polished and ernamented steel. Preparing for death, his lerdship had his hair cut close, and, clothed in a robe of white silk, he kneeled upon the platform under the knife before a mirror and pressed the spring which should release he knife. But the spring failed to work, and the would be suicide decided to give the guillotine to a museum instead of making a secend attempt to end his life. It is said that he made an annual pilgrimage to see the guillotine unset the end of his life.

The Successful Doctor.

The Successful Doctor.
The king of purgatory sent his lictors to easis to bring back some skillful Chinese physician. "You must look for one," sais the king, "at whose door there are no aggrieved spirits of disembodied patients." The lictor went off, but at the house of every doctor they visited shere were crowds of walling shests harging about. At last they found a dector at whose door there was only a single shade and cried out, "This man is evidently the skillful one we are in search of." On inquiry, however, they discovered that he had only started practice the day before.—Giles' "History of Chinese Literature."

To Be Wise.
