DISTILLED WATER.

It is the Purest, Best and Only Absolutely Safe Water.

Boil a gallon of water until there is but a quart left, and the quart will contain all the impurities of the gallon and be nearly four times as impure as before. Continue the boiling, and all the impurities—animal, vegetable and mineral, except the gas thrown off—will be reduced to one solid mass. The water which is evaporated and passed off as steam is very nearly pure. But you will say, it kills the dangerous germs. We will suppose it does, but their remains furnish material for bacterial life to feed upon. Do you relish the idea of eating in food or drinking their dead and decomposing bodies, which poison the water by their decomposition? The fact is scientific investigation has proved that boiling only kills the feeblest, the least injurious, germs.

Try a simple experiment. Put unboiled city water in one bottle and the same that has been boiled for half an hour or more in another, cork tightly and keep in the sun or in a warm place for a week or longer and note the difference. The unboiled water will show a marked depreciation in looks, taste and smell, but that which has been boiled will be so much worse in these respects that no one would think of using it. In comparison with these you can submit a properly sealed bottle of pure distilled water to the same conditions, and at the end of a year it will be found to be as pure, sweet and perfect as when first bottled.

The purest and best and the only absolutely safe water to use for drinking and the preparation of all foods and artificial drinks is that produced by distillation, but the most imperfect one produces a water far superior in purity and healthfulness to the very best spring waters under their most favorable conditions. The nearest approach to it in purity is rainwater, which is distilled water of nature's own production, when collected on clean surfaces, in uninhabited sections, where the air is pure and uncontaminated by smoke, dust, city and factory gases, etc.—Sanitarian.

PAIN IN THE BACK

A Sure Sign of Kidney Trouble--Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy Will Cure You.

Pain in the back is a never failing sign of kidney disease; another sure sign is the condition of the urine; if you have a pain in the back then look to the condition of your urine. Take a glass tumbler and fill it with urine; after it has stood 24 hours, if it has a sediment, if it is milky or cloudy, pale or discolored, stringy orropy, your kidneys and bladder are in a dangerous condition and need immediate attention, or the consequences may prove fatal.

F. C. Wilcox of 559 New Britain ave., Hartford, Conn., says:

"I had a frightful pain in my back, the result of kidney trouble. My physician seemed powerless to relieve me. I determined to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy; it helped me wonderfully, and in a short time cured me completely."

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the one medicine that really cures all diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia and chronic constipation and corrects the bad effects of whiskey and beer on the system. It is wonderful how it makes that pain in the back disappear, how it relieves the desire to urinate often, especially at night, and drives away that scalding pain in passing water and in a remarkably short time makes you well and strong.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is for sale by all druggists. $1 a bottle, or 6 bottles for $5—less than one cent a dose. Sample bottle—enough for trial, free by mail.

CONSTIPATION SICK HEADACHE INDIGESTION NERVOUSNESS

SOME WRITERS.

Locke is said to have spent over six years in the preparation of his essay, "On the Human Understanding."

Lamartine, the great French poet, was happily married and received great aid from his wife in all his undertakings.

The great Dante was married to a notorious scold, and when he was in exile he had no desire to see her, although she was the mother of his six children.

Wolfe is said to have written "The Burial of Sir John Moore" in one evening directly after news had been brought of the defeat at Coruna and the death of the gallant British officer.

A friend of the late Walter Besant relates that the novelist always kept on his desk before him a list of the characters of the novel he happened to be at work on, their relationship and appearance.

Hans Christian Andersen formed his style by narrating his stories to various groups of children before he wrote them down. His one thought was to become famous, and he was very careful not to make any enemies.

Dickens says in the introduction to "David Copperfield" that he spent two years in the composition of that novel. He did not usually require so long a time, many of his novels being finished in less than a year and most of his shorter stories in a few days.

Animals and Salt.

Among certain people there is a strong idea that nothing is worse for dogs than salt, but as a matter of fact, when administered in small quantities, it materially assists the process of digestion. There is no doubt, however, that to give dogs or any other animals broth or pot liquor in which salt pork or bacon has been boiled would be almost equivalent to giving them a small dose of poison. The use of salt among horses, cattle and sheep is advocated by the highest veterinary authorities. Pigs, on the contrary, are extremely susceptible to the poisonous influence of the agent, and experiments have been made which had, after small doses regularly administered, fatal results. Habitually, as a matter of course, all animals consume a certain portion of salt, as it exists in certain proportions in most articles of food.—London Mail.

Tilden's Dog.

At one of the early dog shows Samuel J. Tilden brought an immense Great Dane dog. "What is his name?" asked a visitor.

"Ask him," said Mr. Tilden.

"What good would that do?"

"It's his name," was the reply.

So it was—"Ask him."

The dog knew a number of tricks, but would only perform when fed. "He'd make a good politician," said his owner as he gave him a bone.—New York World.

At the Parting of the Ways.

"Do you take this man to be your wedded husband?" asked the justice of the peace.

"I don't know whether to do it or not, sir," said the young woman, wiping her eyes. "He's got the money from me to pay for the license. I don't like to marry a man of that kind, and yet I hate to see $2 wasted."—Chicago Tribune.

A HUMAN FOREST.

How Indian Tribesmen Succeed in Escaping the Police.

Some of the Indian tribes over which we rule give us a great deal of trouble, notably the Mahsuds. The Mahsuds, however, are not by any means the worst of the Indian robber tribes, the unenviable distinction probably falling to the Bhils, who are the cleverest scoundrels in the world, both in their methods of acquiring other people's property and in evading pursuit.

They are very proud of their skill in pilfering and openly boast of it. One of them once told a British officer that he could steal the blanket from under him and was promptly challenged to show his ability. That night when the officer was fast asleep the Bhil robber cut a hole in his tent, crept noiselessly in and gently tickled the hands and feet of the sleeping man. The officer stirred uneasily and turned over. In this way the Bhil was able to pull the blanket out a little way. By repeating his performance he finally succeeded in "coaxing" the blanket completely from under the sleeper.

When engaged in his nefarious little games, the Bhil wears hardly any clothing, and his little body is rubbed with oil to facilitate escape from any would-be captors. When hotly pursued by the British troops, the robbers make use of a very clever device. They conceal their scant clothing under their small round shields and scatter them about to resemble stones or bowlders; then, picking up a few twigs—if there are any to be had—they assume all sorts of grotesque attitudes, their almost fleshless limbs silhouetted against the dark night sky closely resembling the charred limbs of a tree. Absolute motionlessness, they hold their positions till the enemy has passed them.

In this way a British subaltern in charge of a party sent to capture some Bhils was considerably startled one evening. The pursuit had completely lost sight of the robbers, and finally the party drew rein by a clump of gnarled and bent tree trunks, tired and hot from their hard exertions. The officer in charge took off his hat and placed it on the end of a broken limb, when instantly there was a wild scream of laughter and the tree trunks suddenly came to life and vanished in the darkness.—London Express.

Cheap at the Price.

A certain pompous and officious judge in a western town had just fined a young lawyer $10 for contempt of court. After it had been paid a grave old attorney walked up to the bench and laid down a ten dollar goldpiece.

"What is that for?" asked the judge.

"For contempt, your honor," was the reply.

"But I didn't fine you for contempt," answered the judge. "There must be some mistake."

"Oh, no, there isn't," replied the old man. "I have cherished a secret contempt for this court for a long time, and I'm willing to pay for it."—Chicago News.

Equal.

Some years ago at a Mardi Gras ball at the Hopkins Institute of Art a man, masked, approached a woman, masked, and asked her for a dance, as is considered right and proper at Mardi Gras.

"But I don't know you, sir," said the lady in her most icy tone.

"Well, I'm taking as big a risk as you are," retorted the man.

New Trial Refused.

Judge Newcomb, of Scranton, has filed an opinion denying the motion for a new trial in the case of Joseph Stevenson vs. the Ebervale Coal Company and others. The case was tried for the second time a few weeks ago and a verdict for $23,000 rendered in favor of the plaintiff.

The attorneys for the defense moved for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was excessive, there being no competent testimony on the value of the property alleged to have been destroyed. This contention is dismissed by the court. The defense also contended that certain jurors had been tampered with, but the allegation was shown by testimony to be groundless.

The defense, it is understood, will appeal the case to the Supreme court.

The case grows out of the alleged pollution of Nescopeck creek and its tributaries with culm and sulphur water from the mines in this region.
