THE SOUND OF A PIANO.

Seeming Defects That May Be Often
Due to Exterior Causes.

"A plano," said a dealer, "will sometimes develop or seem to develop a flaw in some one note, which comes to seems to come from the plano may in reality come from some source quite outside of it.

"Any given note when struck produces a certain number of vibrations to the second. There may be in the room some object that is in tone sympathy with some particular note, and that will be set in motion by it when that note is sounded. note is sounded.

with the set in motion by it when that note is sounded.

"The owner of a fine piano sent to us one day to say that there was something wrong about a certain note of the instrument, so that that note had an unpleasant sound when struck. When I heard the note sounded, I knew at once that the disagreeable roughness or buzz about it was due not to any defect in the piano, but to something somewhere about in the room, and, asking the lady to strike that note occasionally, I walked around the room to see if I could locate it.

"Passing across the middle of the room as that note was struck, the cause of the jarring accompaniment of it was alscovered to come from the vibration of one of the glass globes on the chandelier overhead.

"The owner of the piano was almost incredulous as to this, the sound had seemed so plainly to come from the plano itself. But when at my request she stood under the chandelier and I struck the note she was readily convinced.

"I made that globe immovable and then struck the note on the piano. The answer was clear and sweet and true.

"So, you see, the sound of the piano may for one thing depend much upon its surroundings, and, what may seem to be a defect in a plano may be in reality attributable to something quita apart from the piano itself,

"And thus it might easily be that some noble instrument that had seemed to be declining or to be developing faults owed its apparent change to a change of environment or to some specific outside cruse and was in reality.

and to be december or to be developing faults owed its apparent change to a change of environment or to some specific outside cause and was in reality as good as ever, as would happily be discovered whenever the instrument was again brought under favorable conditions."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

One of the city officials had had a very similar experience and Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy had cured him, so he recommended this great kidney medicine to his friend, and Col. Then, lost in thought, he stole over to the cot.

"O God!" A moan of anguish came from the burglar's lips.
The little one stirred, and the burglar made a move toward the hall.

"Want — some — wattee," murmured the child. The curly head rolled restlessly. "Mamma, baby want d'ink."
At the sound of a voice from the adjoining room the figure disappeared quickly beneath the bed.

"Nursie's coming, dear." And the woman burried to her charge. The hidden figure could have grached out and touched the hem of her dress.

"Poor little gir!" the nurse said soothingly."

"Mamma's coming, pet."
In a moment a woman entered the room and crossed quickly to the bedside. Renching over, she kissed the feverish lips and forchead.
"Mamma's here, darling." The little arms reached up and were clasped about her neck. "Gladys loves mamma," whispered the child. "Mamma stay with baby?"
"Yes, darling, mamma will stay."
She folded the babe in her arms and hushed her to sleep. Then she crossed the room to where the nurse was sitting in silence.
They whispered together in low tones. The figure beneath the bed was eagerly straining to catch every word.
"She is a little better, nurse, is she not?" the mother asked anxiously.
"I think so, madam. This is the first time she has awakened since 8 o'clock. You had better rest while she is asleep."
"I cannot bear to leave her. If tha child were my own feeb and blood.

"I cannot bear to leave her. If that child were my own flesh and blood, I could not love her more. She was brought by the police to the Orphan Asylum of the Gray Nuns in Montreal one day when Mr. Rogers and I were visiting the institution. She has brought such happiness into our lives! The evenings we have spent at home during the two years we have had Gladys have been more than all the rest of my life to me."

Both sat in silence. Ten minutes passed, and the burglar beneath the bed was getting restless. The mother was speaking slowly again, as if in thought:

"Poor little darling! The police say her mother was a wretched creature and the father a confirmed criminal, a brute of a man. Both were serving a term in prison when we took baby. Think of it, nurse—a sweet, innocent little tot like that from such parents! La Roche, I think their name was. They know nothing of the child's whereabouts."

Tears glistened in the woman's eyes as she looked tenderly and yearningly at the sleeping baby and left the room. The nurse lingered a few moments by the child's cot. Then she turned the light very low and stole back to the adjoining room. Later heavy breathing told the burglar beneath the sick

The man went to the phone, and the doctor turned on more light. Lifting the burglar's head, he looked closely into the face. "Whew!" he whistled. Then, as he heard Rogers returning, he lowered the lights. "I will go with this poor fellow to the hospital. I'd like to watch his case."

Odd Wedding Customs.

In Switzerland the bride on her wedding day will permit no one, not even her parents, to kiss her upon the lips.

In many of the provinces the cook pours hot water over the threshold after the bridest county in the provinces.

In many of the provinces the cook pours hot water over the threshold after the bridal couple have gone in order to keep it warm for another bride.

There is an old superstition in Germany against May marriages.

A favorite wedding day in Scotland is Dec. 31, so that the young couple can leave their old life with the old year and begin their married life with the new one; surely a pretty idea.

The Italians permit no wedding gifts that are sharp or pointed, from which practice emanates our superstition that the gift of a knife severs friendship. One of the most beautiful of all marriage customs is that of the bride, immediately after the ceremony, flinging her bouquet among her maiden friends. She who catches it is supposed to be the next bride.

Wigs In Courts.

Before the reign of Charles II. judges were either a welvet cap, a three cornered hat or a colf, but in 1660 the persure and the grave aspect which it gave to an otherwise commonplace face was appreciated at once by judges and doctors, who immediately adopted it. The former have stuck to it ever since.

Barristers, seeing how good was the effect of a wig, attempted to copy their seniors' example, but the judges had no idea of their copyright being infringed and made things so unpleasant for their imitators that it was nearly half a century later before wigs were universally adopted in law courts.—London Globe.

Paraguay Tea.

Mate, or Paraguay tea, which is the favorite beverage among a population of some 20,000,000, grows wild in the woods of the southern half of South America. For many years its cultivation was a lost art. Although large plantations were planted by Jesuit missionaries more than a century ago, later attempts to raise the plant were fruitless, and not until recently have new plantations been established in Paraguay. The secret of cultivation, it is alleged, is that the seeds win not

One evening Mr. Parker went to see how the sick man was getting along. The unexpected sight of streamers of woe on the bell handle so confused him that when Kate herself opened the door he blunderingly asked:

"How is Mr. Tilman, Kate?"

Kate, always serious, was solemnity personified as she answered:

"Mr. Tilman, sir, is laid out."—Lippincott's Magazine.
