What Education Will Do.

E. Benjamin Andrews in June Success.
An examination of the educational work going on in the United States will reveal two dominant ideals shaping the results of that work, the one moral, tending to the development of altruism or public spirit, the other practical, tending to promote human efficiency. The scruples adverted to touching the outcome of modern education could not arise were men aware of the extent to which these ideals now pervade American education; yet these ideals impress themselves more and more, rendering education an enrichment of life and at the same time a preparation for life in its most practical aspects.

Paint and Soap Mines.
A natural soap mine and a paint mine are two of the latest mineral discoveries in northwest Canada. Several soda lakes have been found in the foothills near Ashcroft, B. C. Their bottoms and shores are incrustated with a natural washing compound containing borax and soda. No two analyses agree exactly as to the composition of the material. A New York analysis gives 26 per cent borax, while a Montreal chemist from the same sample gives 16 per cent borax. Tests prove the substance to be equal to the washing powders in common use. Trials by blacksmiths and farm workmen show that it will remove grease and dirt better than soap. A syndicate of British Columbia men has been formed to put the product on the market. About 275 tons of the compound have been cut and taken out of the lake. It is handled precisely as ice is handled. The blocks are more than nine inches in thickness, are sawed into pieces of fifteen and eighteen inches and weigh fifty pounds each.

Catholics, on the other hand, have trembled lest, if a Presbyterian or a Lutheran teacher, as part of the school work, should propound to her pupils any precepts, however rudimentary, in personal honor and uprightness, youth brought up in the ancient church would be in danger of espousing such a teacher's faith. This fear is now seen to be groundless. For all practical purposes morality can be taught without dipping into religion, and all sects are becoming aware of this.

Public sentiment would sanction it, should schools at once begin systematically to inculcate all such virtues as cleanliness in speech and thought, thrift, temperance, fortitude, perseverance, veracity, the rights and laws of property, public spirit, love of country, and regard for parents, the aged, the feeble, the unfortunate and brutes. All parents wish to have their children schooled in these vastly important duties, provided the teaching is unprejudiced. The subjects mentioned can be so taught in school that no Catholic, Protestant, Jew, or unbeliever will dislike the teaching or fear its effect on dogmas, church, life, or fealty.

Moral education is one of the splendid new tasks which the twentieth century school will achieve. It will teach a most useful code of practical morality, fastening upon the child, at the very outset of his career, the principles calculated to make good men and citizens. Then shall the school, already influential morally in a most praiseworthy degree, realize its ideal as a moral and social power, working limitless and unprecedented good to the state.

That the individual operators of this region, or at least some of them, are in need of protection in exercising their right to mine and sell coal and save their properties from ruin by water is a fact which can be proven without much effort. The operators in question, from positive information which the Tribune has received, are willing and anxious to concede to their employes the demands of the United Mine Workers, but they are restrained from so doing by the tyranny of the coal-carrying roads which haul their product to tidewater. The Tribune knows that within a short distance of Freeland there is a mining firm which intended granting the steam-men's demand. They wanted to save their collieries from drowning out. Immediately a representative of the road which takes their coal called upon the head of the firm and notified him that if the firm carried out its intention they would not be given a railroad car to fill for twelve months. The threat had the desired effect, and the millionaire bowed acquiescence to the edict of the law-breaking billionaire.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

Canned Goods in the Southwest.
The southwesterner gets his living from tin cans. There surely never was such a region for canned vegetables, canned meat, canned fruit, canned soup, canned milk, canned cheese. Empty tin cans form a charmed circle about every southwestern town and camp. Even where he can profitably and easily produce his own food the southwesterner seems to prefer to raise some exclusive crop, sell his product and buy canned goods. It is amusing enough to discover that the cattle rancher, though a thousand cows come up to water at his tanks every day or two, will yet serve condensed milk from cans that came from New Jersey; that his beef bears the mark of Kansas City; that even his poultry and eggs are imported at enormous prices from Kansas. His butter also comes canned. If it were not for the patient Chinese gardener, even the best irrigated valleys would be without fresh vegetables. But if the southwesterner fails in garden making he does delight in flowers, vines and shade trees. They relieve the monotony of the gray desert and link him with his old green home in the east. He will let his fields go thirsty in time of drought before he will allow the rosebushes and the pepper trees in his front yard to suffer. Indeed so industrious has he been in surrounding himself with shade and verdure that he is open to criticism for overdoing the matter, overcrowding his small grounds. An irrigated valley town in blossom is a marvel long to be remembered.—Ray Stanward Baker in May Century.

A Successful School.
We call the attention of our readers to one of the most popular and successful educational institutions in the state, the state normal school located at East Stroudsburg, Monroe county, on the main line of the D. L. & W. Railroad. This institution stands in the front rank of normal schools. It is closing the ninth year of its existence under the most flattering success.
The school has had a most phenomenal growth, and has from the first maintained a very conspicuous place among the educational institutions of the state. It has an alumni of over seven hundred, many of whom are leaders in their professions. A large recitation building is being erected which will give additional class room accommodations for the growing demands of the school.
The school has its own electric light plant and in every respect is up-to-date. Indeed it is one of the most home-like schools in the country. A more beautiful and healthful spot could not well be found for a school than that of the East Stroudsburg state normal school. Already pupils are engaging rooms for the fall term which will open on the 8th of September. In another column will be found particulars of this institution.

A Query.
When Kate is out, I sometimes lay
The tray for dear mamma,
And she will say, "My little girl,
A help indeed you are."
One night I thought that I would try,
Before I went to bed,
To lay the tray for Katie, too,
And she came in and said:
"This naughty child, what have you done?
This clean, fresh cloth! Just see!
Run quick, I say, up stairs to nurse
And do not bother me!"
I wish some little girl could tell,
For I'm sure I don't know,
How I can bother Kate so much
When I help mamma so.
—Grace A. Cannon in Youth's Companion.

A Generous Invitation.
Three-year-old Edward, whose father has a henney, called to a playmate who was passing with a milk can in her hand:
"Has the cow been laying some milk for you?" Then he shouted:
"Come over and play with me."
"I can't," replied the little girl; "I'm going home."
"Come over after you get froo going home," said Edward.

The Speed of Fishes.
It is interesting to note the speed of fishes. Porpoises have been seen to dart round and round a steamer traveling seventeen miles an hour. Herrings in schools move steadily at a rate of between ten and twelve miles. Mackerel are much swifter, and both trout and salmon go at a rapid pace up stream. Whales swim at a rate of sixteen miles an hour when excited.

Loyal Young Citizens.
Some years ago nearly a thousand children of Montclair, N. J., signed the following promise:
"We, the undersigned, agree to work together to make Montclair a happier place in which to live by trying to remove everything which would make it less healthful or less beautiful and by adding anything we can which makes it more healthful or more beautiful."
These young people were divided into twenty-four societies, each meeting once a month. At these meetings reports were given as to what the members were doing and suggestions of new plans made. Essays were written upon the importance of cleaning the streets, bird life and other similar topics, for the best of which prizes were offered. The result was that the streets were free from waste paper and other loose objects, flower beds were laid out on the school grounds and vines planted against the buildings. In an Ohio city a society of boys and girls agreed not to throw paper or other refuse on the streets, and each boy agreed to keep the sidewalk in front of his own door clean.
This sort of work is open to the boys of every town in America.

Apprehensive.
"I'm kind o' worried about Josh," said Mrs. Cornstossel.
"He seems to me to be doin' purty good," rejoined her husband.
"I don't know about that. His last letter says that he has got to be a trusted employee, an' jedgein, from the newspapers, those are the kind that are allers gettin' into difficulties."—Washington Star.

To Meet the Beef Trust.
"What's this?" said the man at the restaurant, pointing to a dark spot about half the size of a negligee shirt button in the center of his plate.
"That," said the waiter, "is your order, sir; a porterhouse steak, sir."
"Well, you just take that back and bring me a full sized dressed beef well done."—Indianapolis News.

Home Questions.
Mrs. Bright—I don't understand, Henry, about this wireless telegraphy. How would I know when I was going to get a message, and how would I be able to know what it was if I did get it, and how would I know anything about it?
Henry (looking at her over his paper)—Good Lord!—Smart Set.

In Doubt.
"Does your husband like your cooking?"
"Well, I'm not just sure. He says he does, but I notice he is usually detained at the office so late that he has to get dinner up town whenever we are without a girl."—Chicago Post.

Easily Pleas'd.
The Host—I'm more than sorry, colonel, but you know I never have wine on my table when my children are present.
The Colonel—No offense, sir. I'd just as soon have whisky and water.—Brooklyn Life.

A Cheerful Giver.
"And aren't you going to give your penny for the poor heathen?" asked the Sunday school teacher reprovingly.
"Oh, I s'pose," replied little Bobby, as he held it reluctantly, "if you think they need it worse'n I do."—Ohio State Journal.
