John Harvilla, aged 34 years, employed as coal hauler at Beaver Meadow colliery of Coxe Bros. & Co., was shot in the right eye yesterday morning while attempting to drive away unknown parties who had bombarded his house, with stones. The shooting was done with a shotgun, as small grains of shot were found in the socket of the eye.

Margaret Mann, aged 18 years, was burned to death Monday evening at the home of her parents, in Scranton, while trying to light the kitchen stove with kerosene. Her parents were sitting on the porch when they sent her in to get supper. They were attracted by her screams and found her clothing all in flames.

THE WHISTLE WAS SILENT.

Why His New Set of Teeth Didn't Relp the Blower.

A small town in Posen, near the Silesian frontjer, still keeps that relle of other centifies, the night watchman who calls ite hours. One night—the London Tefegraph tells this remarkable story—one of these watchmen, an old worthy long in service, failed to blow his widstle when the clock struck the hoor.

now his shiftle when the clock struck the hour.

The turgemaster summoned the delinquent to account for his negligence. After some hesitation he declared that his lost tooth had dropped out and that he rough not hold in his mouth the official fast tin whistle.

A council was called, and the subject was gravely discussed. Finally one of the members said that he had heard of a dentist at Breslau who supplied artificial teath. After long debate the council suppopriated money to send the aged watchman to Breslau to get a set of sew theth.

an Old Welsh Custom.

The kipleing of bondires on hills is the simplest of celebrations at any time. The Druids made four great fires at their festivals in February, May, August and November. Wales seens to have been a country especially tenserous of this custom. Each family used to make its own fire, and as it was dying out each member would threave a white stone into it, the stones being marked for future identification. Then all said their prayers and went to bed, and in the morning they tried to find all the stones again. If any stone was missing, it betckened that the owner of it would die within a year.

Some superstitions are pretty and picturesque and attractive; this was one of the ganny which were cruel as well as picturesque. It would take but a slight accident to cause a fright that might be actually dangerous to a superstitions person, and it would not be hard for an enemy of such a person to cause that fright by stealing his stone from the fire.

ROUND THE REGION.

General Gebin, commanding the state troops in the anthracite region, appeared as a complainant in Schulyklil county court on Monday. General Gobin charge Augustus Hartwig, asloonkeeper, of Tamaqua, with keeping a disorderly house. At the motion of Districa Autorney McLoughlin, the court granted a rule on Hartwig to show carse why his license should not be revoked.

Miss Alies Colvin was riding on an electric car in Wilkiesbarre when as park from one of the wheels set fire to her clobing. She screamed and the car was brought to a standatill. As quickly as possible the woman, who was now in flames, was removed to the Hotel Hart, and the proprietor's wife, Mrs. James Poland, smothered the flames before Miss Colvin was baddy burned.

Strikes of Long Ago.

The following record of early strikes makes interesting reading: 1495—Strike among the tailors and turban makers of Constantinople. The sultan was appealed to, and twenty-six of the strikers were hanged, the rest drafted into the army. 1583—Workmen employed to pull down one of the suppressed monasteries in England revoiled for better pay. Several were put to death and the others were imprisoned. 1503—Masons employed on the Escurial palace, Spain, refused to work unless better paid. Several were put to the galleys, and the rest were exiled to America. 1625—Strike among the tea pickers of the central Chinese province for higher pay. They were hanged by Peter the Great at St. Petersburg struck for shorter hours. Seven were hanged, 127 sent to Siberia, and 952 were drafted in the army.

When Most Everybody Will Work.
Leroy Beaulieu, an eminent French economist, has just delivered a lecture upon the conversion of the French 3½ per cent debt into 3 per cent bonds.
He showed that the rate of interest is constantly decreasing and predicted that in the next twenty-five years capital will be glad to get 2 per cent and that fifty years hence such first class securities as government bonds and rallway securities will bear 1 per cent interest, "which," said the lecturer,
"will compel all except the very largest caplialists to work for a living,
and the leisure of the class of people
now called well off will be abolished."

Labor In Politics. Labor In Politics.

The executive board of the Chicago Federation of Labor is about to issue an appeal to all labor men to register for the fall election. A mass meeting of trades unionists and their sympathizers will be held the second Sunday in September, at which they hope to form a political club, thoroughly non-partisan, with branches in every ward and voting precinct in the city, whose duty it will be to work for the success of any and all labor men on the tickets of the Democratic or Republican party at the fall election.

Baths For Workmen.

State Factory Inspector McAbee of Indiana has sent a circular letter to the larger manufacturing concerns in the state recommending that they provide bathing facilities for the employees. He cites the beneficial results from such a course at Michigan City and says a bath after a day's work will do much to remove the desire for stimulants.

The strike of the Illinois District Telegraph company's messenger boys in Chicago lasted three days and resulted in a victory for the strikers. The company agreed to give the boys an increase in wages and extra pay for overtime.

THE COLLECTOR WHO KNEW

An illustration of the Danger of Being Too Self Confident.

"The trouble with you fellows is you want things, but you know nothing about 'em. You come over here and carry home a lot of truck that a European collector wouldn't give house room, and when you see a really good thing you don't know it, for you won't pay a price for it unless some dealer makes you. You see, you don't know; that's what's the matter; how can you? Nobody in America wanted antiques before the Centennial. If you'd lived here twenty years, like me, you'd learn something, you'd find out that collecting isn't a thing of money, but knowing."

We had been walking in Venice down a narrow calle while the collector was speaking. "Look at that old brass scale," he resumed, pointing to a fish stall in the little outdoor market on which we had just emerged. "There's a gem, not very old, but of the inest seventeenth century Venetian work. If you saw that in a New York dealer's, all cleaned up, you'd give up a good deal for it; but you'd 'a' passed it by a dozen times if I hadn't spoken about it. See that old jimk stand over there? I never pass a thing like that. You can never tell what you may pick up—if you only know."

We had scarcely reached the stand when the collector thrust out his hand with the swiftness of a hawk darting on its prey, and swooped upon a little jewel box.

"Carnelian! Russlan, I should say, from the Ural mountains. It's not of great value, but it's a pretty little thing, if it was cleaned up. It's mine, anyway." To the keeper of the stall:

"Quanto?"

The Venetian slowly uncoiled himself and came down from the church steps, where he had been sleeping.
"Does the signore want the pretty triffe? The signore knows its value better than I, and hell be generous?"

"I'll give you a lira for it. It isn't worth it, but one mustn't be hard with the poor."

"Ue, I'll make it two."

worth it, but one mustr't be nare with the poor."
"I had hoped I should get five!"
"Well, I'll make it two."
"It is the signore's."
"There, you see!" exultingly chuckled the collector. "That's what it is to know. An exquisite carnelian Russian jewel casket for 40 cents! You'd never have thought of looking among a lot of rusty old iron for a thing like that, would you?"
While speaking he held the box with a miser's clutch.
"May I see it, please?"

He reluctantly handed it to me as

"Phew!" said I contemptuously, handing the box back to him. "It's not carnelian at all. It's glass, nothing but glass."

"Glass!" drawing a magnifier from his waisteoat pocket and mutely examining the purchase. "I'm—I'm—afraid—it is!" he said sheepishly.

"Of course it is."

"I—don't know," sadly. "Yes, it is glass! You see, it's so dirty. Oh, well, we all make mistakes at times. Do you want it?" disgust taking the place of sadness. "You can have it for a quarter."

"Well, I guess it's worth a quarter."
I think my eyes must have snapped. "Yes."
And that is how an almost unique

Honesty In Perfection.

To find honesty in its full perfection it is said that one must go to the Welsh colliers of the Ogmore valley, who travel by a workmen's train which runs from Maesteg to Abergwynfi eyery morning and returns in the evening. There are heavy penalties for taking pipes and matches down the pit, so when the train reaches its destination in the morning every smoker lays his pipe on the seat, and when he returns in the evening it is exactly where he left it. During the day the conches are shunted to a siding, the doors are not locked, but there is no single instance of a pipe having been stolen.—London Answers.

will not be injured by rain or predactious animals.

The gray buzzard is said to be the heaviest bird that files, the young males when food is plentiful weighing nearly forty pounds. The bird is nearly extinct.

The wasp, like the bee and almost every other insect, is infested with parasites. Wasps have been captured which had two or three dozen parasites clinging to their bodies.

The alligator never leaves fresh water, while the crocedile often goes to see and in the West Indies has sometimes been found many miles from land, heading directly for an island, possibly out of sight.
