BREVITIES.

A matinee will be given tomorrow at the Grand opera house, during which the wonders of the "Warograph" moving picture machine will be exhibited. The entertainment also includes a number of other features of interest to children. Admission for children is 7 cents; for adults, 12 cents. Presents will be given to all who attend.

George Bourne, aged 21 years, last of White Haven, was instantly killed last evening at that place. He was employed at the new bridge which is being erected over the Lehigh river and was struck by a falling derrick. The young man was a son of Matthew Bourne, a well-known resident of that section.

Creasents vs. Gordon Thursday night. Yesterday 142 men, employees of the Cannon Ball trolley line at Pittston, were taken to an alderman's office, charged by four councilmen with creating a nuisance by obstructing the city's streets. Bail in the sum of $10,000 was accepted for the whole crowd, after which they returned to work.

"Minnesota's Best" flour is sold by A. Oswald. There is none better made.

President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, expects to be in Wilkes-Barre for some time after the Strike Commission makes its award. He believes that there will be many matters which will need adjusting and that his presence in the anthracite region for a time will be necessary.

Basket ball tomorrow evening. The Hazleton Plain Speaker last evening changed its form from a four-page eight-column paper to an eight-page six-column. In its new form the appearance is greatly improved and is in keeping with the progressive spirit of its publishers.

On the charge of being partly responsible for a recent wreck on the D. S. & S. Railroad, Engineer James Crawford and Fireman Andrew Newhart, of town, have been requested to resign their positions by the D. S. & S. Company.

A STRANGE FUNERAL.

Burial of an Elephant by Elephants in a River Bed.

There is no doubt that the elephant is naturally cunning, and the following extraordinary incident related by a planter from Ceylon is only another proof: "I went after a herd of eight elephants," he says. "After stalking I got a chance at the biggest of the herd and dropped it at the first shot. About two hours afterward I had the tail and feet cut off and taken to the bungalow. Next morning I went to the spot to look at the elephant and to my surprise found no trace of the body. After looking round I saw that the herd had been back during the night, and I soon discovered a track where they seemed to have retired in a body. Following this up, I eventually came upon the dead elephant lying at the bottom of a rocky stream. From the tracks it was quite evident that the body had not been rolled but carried to the bank, and it was plain that it had been taken through the long grass which grew on the bank into the stream. My neighbors were incredulous until I showed them where the elephant's tail and feet had been cut off and where the body lay in the stream, which proved conclusively that by some means or other the body had been got over the intervening space in the night. It is difficult to understand how elephants with their trunks and feet could raise and support the dead body of a comrade. However, they seem to have managed to do it, and it is a pity no human eyes saw this strange funeral."

Women and Store Detectives.

"The very thing that newspapers want to know about the way detectives work in big department stores are the things we don't want to tell," said a superintendent when asked about a conspicuous shoplifting arrest. "We should be glad to dispense with them altogether, but we can't afford to. A clever woman will outwit the shrewdest store detective that ever walked. We have to work cautiously or we lose our trade. If the detective is a man and stares at a woman too hard, she makes a complaint at the desk and tells other women how she was insulted. If the store detective is a woman, she is likely to get 'fresh.' I think the best store detective in New York today is a man who used to be a minstrel performer. He took the job on trial till good times came again, but nothing good enough has come along to tempt him to give up a $5,000 job, and he is worth every penny of it."—New York Times.

The Ruling Passion.

A good woman was dying, a woman who had been a true wife and a loving mother, a woman with but one weakness—a love of gossip.

Although her time on earth was short, she was critically watching the attending physician and the nurse as they talked in subdued whispers of the result which their united skill had been powerless to avert.

In response to the summons of the dying woman her husband approached her and bent low to catch the words which he expected to be words of love. Again she turned her eyes, from which the light was fast fading, upon the doctor and the nurse as she said faintly, "Do you suppose they are engaged?" These words were her last.

Benefits From Running.

Running is the great benefactor of figure and movement. It gives muscular development, strong heart action and free lung play. The muscle comes where it ought to be, the shoulders go back, the loins hold the trunk well balanced, and the feet take their correct positions. It was running which made the Greek figure. The more active tribes of American Indians have been runners from time immemorial, and from the chest to the heels they are much more beautifully built than the average of white men. Running people have usually the firm but elastic texture which is the beauty of flesh.

A Change of Front.

Wife—How do you like my new hat?
Husband—The idea of paying big prices for—
Wife—Big prices! Why, I made it myself.

Husband—Um—yes—er—as I was saying, the idea of paying big prices for such monstrosities as the milliners are showing! Now, your hat is a work of art. Looks as if it came straight from Paris. Beautiful, my dear!—London Telegraph.

Dangerous Experiment.

A man in Rooks county was kicked by a mule and knocked unconscious while trying to feed his mules in a new way. He says that the first thing he heard when he regained his senses was his wife saying, "Well, I'll thank God when he can't find any new experiments to try on them mules."—Kansas City Journal.

Forever at Him.

Newitt—Funny! I always associate your wife with a certain episode in my own life. There's just one thing she always reminds me of—Henpek—I wish I could say that. There's lots of things she always reminds me of.—Philadelphia Press.

Still in the Family.

Jack—My grandfather had a fine collection of silver, which he bequeathed to my father on condition that it should always remain in the family.

Ethel—Then you have it still?
Jack—Well—er—my uncle has it.

On the Shore.

"How sweet it would be to live alone with you in yonder lighthouse!" he whispered, tenderly.
"Yes," she murmured abstractedly, "and do light housekeeping."—Smart Set.

NATIONS AND LAUGHS.

The Various Ways Different Peoples Have of Showing Mirth.

All the world laughs, though the nations have different ways of showing mirth. The Chinese laugh is not as hearty or as expressive as the European or American. It is often a titter than a genuine burst of merriment. There is little character or force in it.

As for the Arabian laugh, we hear little of its hilarious ring through the ages of mirth in the old world. The Arab is generally a stolid fellow, who must see good reason for a laugh or be surprised into it. In Persia a man who laughs is considered effeminate, but free license is given to female merriment.

One reads of the "grave Turk" and the "sober Egyptian," but it is not recorded that they have never moments of mirth, when the fez bobs or the veil shakes under the pressure of some particularly "good thing." In Mohammed himself Christian writers have noticed cordiality and jocoseness, and they say there is a good ringing laugh in the prophet, with all his seriousness.

An American traveler in Europe remarks the Italian mirth as languid, but musical, the German as deliberate, the French as spasmodic and uncertain, the upper class English as guarded and not always genuine, the lower class English as explosive, the Scotch of all classes as hearty and the Irish as rollicking.

The Penurious Carlyle.

It is no drawback for a Christmas gift to be useful as well as ornamental, but there is pathos in Carlyle's presentation of a washing table to his wife at Christmas, 1850. At that time he had long escaped poverty, but could conceive no more pleasing gift than this most utilitarian article which he promised in a note which the curious may still read at his house in Chrysom row:

The Prophecy of a Washstand to the nearest of all Women. Blessings on her noble face and be it ever blitheness me, as it is dear little the or not. T. CARLYLE, Dec. 23, 1850.

This message appears to have been written in a hurry, as if Carlyle, hearing the clocks strike midnight, exclaimed: "God bless my soul! It's Christmas day. Jeannie should have a present. She spoke of a washstand the other day. She shall have it." And he forthwith penned the promise thereof. Anyway, he gave a five pound note, and Mrs. Carlyle bought a marble and mahogany washstand.—London Chronicle.

Christmas Declared Illegal.

Although it may seem incredible, it is a fact that not so many years ago Christmas was considered a superstitious festival and was stopped being held by the strong hand of the law. Holly and mistletoe were destroyed and were called "the plants of the evil one." Cakes and wines were considered impious by the superstitious.

When Oliver Cromwell was protector, he ordered all the most important towns in England not to observe Christmas, as he considered it to be a hurtful custom.

Yet a stricter law he commanded to be kept so that people might forget Christmas. That was that all the markets were to be held on Dec. 25.

Naturally this created a great stir among the country folk, and they determined thenceforth to refuse to obey his strict and extraordinary law, which he tried to enforce, but all to no purpose.

How a Buffalo Runs.

The world has read the exaggerated description of a buffalo stamped, but I don't believe anybody has ever done justice to the wonderful speed of a buffalo when lost from the herd and trying to catch up, says a man of experience. It is a deceptive game. The man who never saw it before would swear that he could outrun the animal barefooted. But the fastest horse ridden by cowboys couldn't catch a buffalo when running alone.

Its marvelous lunge, steady and enduring, carries it over the prairie at a speed that would make a race horse lie down and cry at the end of the first mile. But the buffalo keeps this gait up all day, and at night his great flanks show no signs of fatigue.

Why Dead River?

The western branch of the Kennebec has been given the name Dead River because in 1775 it was full of drowned soldiers. So one may read. But there is not a syllable of truth in it. And the next picture conjured up by the name, a doleful Styx, turbid and miasmatic, is equally false. The plain fact is that the river flows for a long distance through meadows, and unless the water is high it scarcely seems to move at all. That is why it has been called dead. Nothing gloomy belongs to the name. A delectable and captivating stream is Dead River.—Century.

Mismatched.

Mrs. Greene—They tell me your husband has been decorated by some foreign ruler.
Mrs. Brown—Yes, but it's only a bit of ribbon, and it doesn't match my complexion at all. When Charles wears it anywhere, he'll have to go without me.—Boston Transcript.

A Modest Aspiration.

A man was asked recently by the gruff clerk at the stamp window, after he had deposited 2 cents, "Well, what do you want?" He answered gently, "An automobile, please." Verily, a soft answer turneth away wrath.—Albany Argus.

FOUR MATCHED HORSES.

They Were Colored Black, Just as the Dealer Had Said.

Lord Mansfield, the famous lord chief justice of England, had a bitter prejudice against horse dealers, which, it is said, had its rise in a bitter disappointment he had experienced at the hands of one of them. When he was appointed lord chief justice in 1756 he wished to have four black horses without a white hair for his carriage. After considerable difficulty the four black horses were found and approved, for they were handsome horses and just what the lord chief justice wanted. The price, of course, was a heavy one; it always is under such circumstances. For a time all went well and his lordship was well satisfied with his bargain. Then one horse began to develop a white star and another a white fetlock and another was disfigured by a white blaze—indeed, in all of them in one place or another the hated white appeared.

The judge sent for the horse dealer who had supplied the horses and threatened him with all kinds of pains and penalties. That worthy, however, was not in the least put out by the wrath of the noble lord. He insisted that he had not misrepresented the horses on his bill and pointed out on that document being produced that he had sold to his lordship four horses colored black. This of course did away with any legal proceedings, but the incident was never forgotten by Lord Mansfield, who was scarcely ever known to give a horse dealer the benefit of the doubt.—Horseman.

Kleptomaniac.

James G. Kierman says that in the vast majority of cases kleptomania is a morbid manifestation of neuroses and psychoses rather than psychosis by itself. In many cases of so called kleptomania stealing is a manifestation of viciousness or feeble morality. The majority of cases of both these forms occur in the department stores. "Bargain sales" are determining factors of theft. Women who are neurotic, alcoholic, opium eaters, hysterical, climacteric and senile, from so great a weakening of the will, fall ready victims to obsessions and morbid impulses. The "collector" type of kleptomania is as a rule perfectly responsible. "Book snatching" is a besetting vice of bibliomaniacs, says coin and stamp purchasing attacks numismatists and philatelists. Parisians think it "smart" to steal sugar and matches from restaurants. Not a few sane Americans think it is equally smart to steal rides on railroads.—Allentown and Neurologist.

Formidable Preparations.

"Yassir," said Uncle Asbury, "I see you are going to school."
"I suppose you are very proud of her."
"Deed I is. An' whut's mo', she's gwine ter be a gre't he'p to her father. She's studiy'n geometry at de present time, an' she's sayin' dem lessons over an' over ag'in so's I kin hear 'em."

"What's that for?"
"Well, sub, I allus was kind o' anxious to preach, but I nebber didn't hab de words to stand de competition. Now I reckons when I stan' up in front o' dat congregation an' gits to tellin' 'em 'bout hypothenuses an' pallelograms dey's gwine to rise up an' admit dat dey's listenin' to language sho' 'nuff."

Writing on Metals.

Take a quarter of a pound of nitric acid and half an ounce of muriatic acid. Mix, shake well together, and it is ready for use. Cover the place you wish to mark with melted beeswax. When cold, write your inscription plainly on the wax with a sharp instrument to clear the metal. Then apply the mixed acids with a feather, carefully filling each letter. Let it remain from one to ten minutes, according to appearances desired, then throw in water, which stops the process, and remove the wax.

A Touching Consent.

The Youth—Sir, I came to ask your consent to my marriage with your daughter.

The Old Man—Is your income sufficient to support a wife?

The Youth—It is, and in addition to that it is sufficient to enable me to stand an occasional touch from my wife's father.

The Old Man—Say no more, young man. She's yours. Bless you, my son.

An Eagle's Strength.

What tremendous power an eagle exerts when carrying away a lamb that weighs, say, sixty pounds or over! If you take the weight of the bird together, seventy-six pounds, then it appears that an eagle can develop more than two horsepower and must put a strain of over 1,100 pounds on the muscles of the wings, which leads one to think that "birds are stronger than mathematics."

PUZZLED.

"You must line yourself to breakfast."
So said Dr. Wise.
"You must turn from doughnuts and cut out meat."
Take nothing but oats or pound wheat And shun the deadly tart."
I did as he said for a month at least, And, suffering Job, how his bills increased!

"You mustn't eat breakfast any more."
So said Dr. Smart.
"At noon take a little tea and toast, At dinner a little brown bread at most And shun the deadly tart."
I followed his orders faithfully 'Till the firm lopped off my salary.

I went to Dr. Sharpe, who said: "A change is what you need." Take an ocean trip or go somewhere, And breathe the bracing mountain air; 'Tis not a case of feed."

I asked him meekly about his price And paid what he asked for his kind advice.

I couldn't get sailing on the sea Nor search for mountain air, So desperately I ate and ate; Determined to gamely meet my fate, I bucked the bill of fare, And, strange to relate, I didn't die, But am well again! I wonder why?
