BOSTON HARBOR FROZE.

But That Didn't Keep the Britannis From Sailing on Time.

But That Didn't Keep the Britannia From Sailing on Time.

Boston harbor froze over in January of 1844, and the advertised sailing of the Britannia, then in dock, seemed surely to be impossible. But the merchants of Boston would not have it so. They met and voted to cut a way, at their own expense, through the ice, that the steamer might sail practically on time. The contract for cutting the necessary channels was given to merchants engaged, like Frederick Tudor, in the export of ice, not from the harbor. Their task was to cut, within the space of three days, a channel about ten miles long. For tools they had the best machinery used in cutting fresh water ice, and horsepower was employed. The ice was from six to twelve inches in thickness. As the Advertiser of Feb. 2, 1844, described the scene: "A great many persons have been attracted to our wharfs to witness the operations and the curious spectacle of the whole harbor frozen over, and the ice has been covered by skaters, sleds and even sleighs. Tents and booths were erected upon the ice, and some parts of the harbor bore the appearance of a Russian holiday scene." On Feb. 3 the work was done, and the Britannia, steaming slowly through the lane of open water, lined on either side by thousands of cheering spectators, made her way to the sea.—M. A. DeWolfe Howe in Atlantic.

The Earthly Facts.

A story told of Lord Holt, who was lord chief justice of England in the eighteenth century, shows what a deadly enemy to wild supersition a sense of fact may be. A man presented himself to Lord Holt and said:

"A spirit came to me from the other world and told me that in your next case you must enter a plea of nol. pros."—that is, refusal to prosecute.

Lord Holt looked at the man a moment and then smiled.

Lord Hoit looked at the man a moment and then smilled.

"Do you believe that such a message is wise for a human being to obey?"

"It is absolute."

"And do you believe that the messenger had a full knowledge of the law of England?"

"Yes, and of all law. By following this heaven given advice you will be doing justice."

this heaven given advice you will be doing justice."

"Well, you tell your messenger if he comes again that he should have sent his message to the attorney general. The lord chief justice of England never prosecutes, and if the spirit knew anything about the English law he would know a simple thing like that."—Youth's Companion.

Helping Out a Poet.

Shortly after the publication of Tennyson's famous poem, "A Vision of Sin," the laurente was somewhat startled to receive from Mr. Babbage, the renowned arithmetician, a letter which ren as fallows:

renowned arithmetician, a letter which ran as follows:

Dear Sir-I find in a recently published poem from your pen, entitled "A Vision of Sin," the following unwarrantable statement:

"Every moment dies a man, Every moment one is born."

I need hardly point out to you that this calculation, if correct, would tend to keep the sum total of the world's population in a state of perpetual equipoise, whereas it is a well known fact that the said sum total is constantly on the increase. It is a well known fact that the said sum total is constantly on the increase if would therefore take the liberty of suggestions of the same state of the sam

Nets Lure Athletes.
Races through deep snow are an attractive feature of winter sports in Germany, and athletes who take part in them do not always fare very successfully.
The reason is because over the ground which the runners must cross are laid nets with strong meshes, and as these are covered by the snow and hence are invisible the men's feet almost always catch in them, the result being that a race instead of being won by the swiftest runner is generally won by him who is lucky enough to escape the nets or who succeeds in freeing himself the most quickly from their meshes.
Races of this kind always attract large crowds, and there is much amusement when the nets begin to get in their deadly work.

NEW YEAR'S CARDS.

Originated In Japan and W Masterpieces of Art.

They Originated In Japan and Were Masterpieces of Art.

In Japan originated the art of making and the custom of exchanging New Year's cards. Today both are as obsolete in the Flowery Kingdom as is New Year's calling in the United States. More charming art, more delightful custom, are not numbered among the good things that have passed away to suffer, in their time, let us hope, a happy revival.

For more than 100 years the designing and coloring of New Year's cards occupied the attention of the foremost draftsmen and wood engravers of Japan. They were made at the command of the noblemen of the emperor's court. In size they were from 6 to 8 inches, and each was inscribed with a poetic sentiment dictated by the noble giving the order. They were printed from five or six blocks, each color requiring, as in modern color printing, a separate block. The blocks were the property of the noble, who retained or destroyed them at will. No reprints for another were ever permitted. A nobleman's New Year's card was like his coat of arms or his sword. The surimonos, as Japan's New Year's cards were called, were designed specially to please some ladylove.—New York Press.

The Pletare In the Watch.
The following aneedote is related of Jerome Bonaparte: He had been playing cards until he lost all his readymoney, then pledged his rings and finally laid his watch on the table. It was a small gold one, the back of which opened with a spring. A lady overlooking the game admired the watch and took it up to examine it. On her attempting to open the back Jerome immediately clasped it and said that must not be done. His wife, who stood by, insisted upon knowing what was in it, grew angry, reproached him with having some keepsake of a favorite there and finally, bursting into tears, quit
the room.

the room.

Jerome then opened the watch and showed to all present that it contained a beautiful miniature of his first wife, Betsy Patterson, with the remark, "You see, I hope, that I could not with propriety let her see it." It was notrolous that he remained deeply attached to his first wife long after their separation.

Swelled the Conscience Fund.
The legislator took up his hat to leave the statehouse. It was in Connecticut some years ago. Tucked in under the sweatband was a roll of greenbacks. The legislator counted the bills. "If mi! Five hundred dollars," he said, and put the money into his pocket. Later in the day he encountered a man with a shifty glance of the eye who asked him, 'Did you, ah, that is, him, did yo'uns find anything in your hat?" "Yes, I found something in my hat." "Well, it was a mistake." "It looked like one." "See here, that roll was meant for another hat, see?" "I see." "As it's a mistake, I suppose you are willing to rectify it?" "Not I," said the legislator. "I'm going to send that money to the conscience fund. Good morning."

Making Up For Lost Time.

Husband (to second wife)—You don't cook like Mary, my first wife, used to do, Alice, he said, in tones of gentle, exasperating reproof. No, it seems to me you can't cook like she used to. On another occasion he remarked: "You are not so smart at getting about as Mary was. You don't appear to catch on where she left off."

About this time a heavy rolling pin came in contact with his head.

"What do you mean by that, you—?" he exclaimed, in agony.

"I am doing the work that Mary neglected," she replied.

There was more peace in that family afterward. Hu

Black Bucks of India.

The black buck of India is a very graceful animal, weighing between thirty and fifty pounds. The hide of the male when full grown is of inky blackness on the back, while the belly is as white as snow, the contract being very striking. The horns are black and spiral in shape and in length average about eighteen inches, although they have been known to reach twenty-six inches. The animals are usually found in herds and are difficult to approach on foot, as the bucks toss their heads in the air from time to time in a very graceful manner, and some of them are almost sure to detect any attempt at stalking.

Joy Among Constables.

Joy Among Constables.
There is considerable joy in the ranks of the constables over a decision handed down by Judge Halsey in the case of Constable Charles E. Douglas against County Controller George R. McLean concerning payment for services rendered by the former in a number of discharged cases. Some time ago Constable Douglas, of Wilkesbarre, presented a warrant to the controller for money he claimed to be due him for services in several discharged cases tried before Alderman Donohue.

Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

While much general information about the proposed Louisiana Purchase Centennial exposition has been given the public, very little has been said as to the origin of the movement and the first general effort put forth to bring about the holding of the world's fair at St. Louis.

Organized labor of St. Louis was back of the first united move that was made of the first united move that was made of the first united move that was made in behalf of the holding of the coming exposition. On Jan. 23, 1898, at a regular meeting of the Central Trades and Labor union of St. Louis and vicinity at Waihalla hall, a resolution was introduced by C. C. Behnke, who at that time represented the waiters' union, which resolution was unanimously adopted and was later indorsed by the Building Trades council.

This resolution, after a lengthy preamble relative to the purchase of the Louislana territory, provided that a committee of one from each organization be appointed to at once lay plans for the holding of a Mississippi valley international exposition, to the end that the most important event in the history of the great valley—the admission of the vast Louislana territory into the domain of the United States of America—be properly celebrated.

The information is gained from the files of a St. Louis newspaper that after the passage of this resolution by the two labor bodies and the appointment of the agitation committee the work went forward until the blowing up of the Maine, which occurred Feb. 15, 1898, ten days after the first bill recognizing the St. Louis fair was introduced in congress. Despite the wat which followed, friends of the proposed expedition pushed forward the preparatory work, with the result that on Jan. 10, 1890, about a hundred delegates representing thirteen states and territories included in the Louislana purchase met in convention and decided to hold an exposition in St. Louis. From this it will be seen that in less than twelve months after organized labor started the movement for the holding of the exposition definite plans had been decided upon and the celebration was assured. A great many union men of St. Louis and vicinity subscribed for stock in the exposition of The St. Louis Compendium estimates that at least $100,000 was subscribed by organized workmen, of which $5,000 came from Typographical union No. 8.

council, and $1,000 came from Type-graphical union No. 8.
Whatever success the world's fair may meet with, it is worth remember-ing that organized labor first started the movement which will bring about the holding of one of the greatest ex-positions the world has ever seen, the Louisiana Purchase Centennial exposi-tion to be held in St. Louis in commen-oration of the purchase of the Louisi-ana territory in 1803 by President Thomas Jefferson.

Divorce In Japan.

A traveler recently returned from Japan tells of some of the queer laws in that country concerning divorce.

"A divorce on the part of the husband is easily obtained. One of the legal causes of divorce is 'if the husband find the wife too loquacious.' Yet in all my long experience in Japan I have met only one man who discarded his wife, and I never net with a family where dissension existed, nor have I ever heard of a husband treating his wife with severity, although the same cannot be said of some parents-in-law, who consider their son's wife a mere chattel. As a general rule, the appearance of girls and women testifies of a lightness of heart not always found in other climes where their sisters have more abundant means of happiness."
