TRICK PHOTOGRAPHY.

Production of the Moving Pictures
Which Mystify Many Persons.
The biograph, having depicted most things in the world of fact, has now found new realms to conquer in fection. It has become a juggler, or, as it might prefer to call itself an "illusionist," and the uncanny feats it performs will soon put its more human competitors to shame.

It commences its performance by showing on the white screen two men seated at a small table. They seem to be carrying on an excited conversation, but, after some, discussion, agree to make a wager on the cause of the disput. Then each takes from his waisteat pocket a tiny doil, dressed like a boxer ready for a championship match. The dolls are placed on the table, immediately "come to life" and commence sparring in the most scientific manner. The two Guillivers applied the Lilliputian puglists as they fight vigorously in a space that might be covered by a dinner plate, and when at last a five-grain glove inflicts the "knockout" blow on a head that is smaller than an early green pea the conqueror and conquered are picked up and ignominiously replaced in the waistcoat pockets of their owners.

This clever effect, the manager of the biograph company explained is obtained by superimposing two films, which are exposed separately. First the two men scated at the table act their part of the performance in front of the camera, and then another biograph photograph is taken of a boxing match, and the two rolls of films are then skillfully placed together. The difference in the size of the boxers and the onlookers is accounted for by the fact that the latter are placed much nearer to the camera than the former.

But even more startling illusions than this can be produced. For in-

Milk Powder.

The production of milk powder has been perfected by Herr Ekenburg by means of an apparatus called a continuous exsiccator. This evaporates the milk to dryness without a vacuum at a temperature not exceeding 40 degrees C. (104 F.), and odor and taste are so well preserved that it can be told whether the milk had been pasteurized or boiled. Heating with water at 60 to 70 degrees C. converts the powder into milk that is in every respect like the ordinary product. Special treatment has overcome the tendency of the stored powder to pass gradually into an insoluble state and has proved its keeping qualities, giving it a high degree of resistance to bacteria.

The face smiles recognition, and allows the hands to take a few hundred ordinary sized eggs from its mouth, for no particular reason except to show that it is capable of further miracles. Then it looks longingly toward the neck and shoulders from which it has been exited, and it finally lifted into its place. The complete man then bows to the audience and disappea a it spoils a good illusion to describe too fully its inner mysteries; but it may be hinted that this effect is obtained by the judicious use of black velvet curtains. Black velvet, in fact, is the material from which the modern blograph magician shapes his "invisible cloak," and the garment is quite as effective as the one the prince in Andersen's fairy tale wore when he set out to discover the wicked doings of the witch.

The Prisoner's Dream" is the name of another piece of blographic juggling. The prisoner is shown in his cell anistily outlined figures appear, Gradually they become more and more sharply defined, though the wall can still be seen through the substanceless forms. One of the figures is recognized as that of the sleeping prisoner, the other is a girl.

There is a quarrel, the flash of a weapon, and the girl falls limply to the ground as the "real" prisoner starts from his sleep and stares wildly at the dream picture of himself and his victim. The vision fades away, and in its place the ghostly face of the girl floats across the wall.

The subject is somewhat morbid, but as an example of trick photography it is an extremely clever piece of work. The result is obtained as in the case of the boxers, by the combination of two films.

All the scenes are acted in a studio filluminated by what is perhaps the most unique electric-lighting apparatus in London—how effective can be judged when it is add that each of the thousands that compose a blograph moving picture only receives about one four-hundredth part of a second exposure.

Actors of some considerable ability are required, for it is by no means an easy matter to t

TWO SIGNALS

Grand opera has again found its impresario, the mantle of Mr. Grau having been voted by the wealthy syndicate owning the Metropolitan Opera house to Mr. Heinrich Conreid, the present manager of the Irving place (German) theater of New York. The lutal for the right man was a long one because the difficulty of the impresario's task and because of the very few men who have qualified themselves either by temperament or experience for the undertaking. Aside from Mr. Conreid, the person most strongly considered was the widely known conductor, Walter Damrosch. The new manager brings to his post an extremely wide and successful theatrical experience, indorsed, in addition, by numerous decorations from the countries in Europe in which he began his career. He has never been a grand opera director, however, and the joys and vexations and fame of that trying field still lie before him. Almost simultaneously with Mr. Conried's appointment the announcement is made that Emma Eames, the famous soprano of the Grau company, has found it necessary to retire from the stage owing to ill health. There are two serious signals of kidney ills. The first signal comes from the back with numerous aches and pains. The second signal co.nes in the kidney secretions, the urine is thin and pale or too highly colored and showing brick-dust-like" dependent of the serious constitution of the second signal control of the second signal colored and showing brick-dust-like dependent of the second signal colored and showing the second signal colored and showing the second signal colored sign resario, the mantle of Mr. Grau have pale or too highly colored and showing "brick-dust-like" deposit. Urination is infrequent, too frequent or excessive. You should heed these danger signals before chronic compileations set in—Diabetes, Dropsy, Bright's Disease. Take Doan's Kidney Pills in time and the cure is simple.

J. F. Wainwright, of the firm of Bones & Wainwright, painters and contractors, Pulaski, Va., says: "Four or five times a year for the past few years I have suffered with severe attacks of pain in my back, caused from kidney trouble. During these spells I was in such misery from the constant pain and aching that it was almost impossible for me to stoop or straighten, and it really seemed as if the whole small of my back had given away. At times I also had difficulty with the kidney secretions, which were discolored, irregular and scalding, and I was also greatly distressed with head-aches and dizziness. I used a number of recommended remedies, but I never found anything so successful as Doan's Kidney Pills. When I heard of them I had an attack and procured a box of them. In a few days the pain and lameness disappeared, the trouble with the kidney secretions was corrected and my system was improved generally. I have every confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills."

A Free Tratal of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Wainwright will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milbürn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Women Freemasons.

The popular idea that the secrets of Masonry must never be imparted to a woman is erroneous. In the "Constitutions of Masonrie," in the archives of the lodge at York, England, occurs the following: "Then one of the elders takeing the Booke, and that hee or shee that is to be made Mason shall lay their hands thereon, and the charge shall be given." It was only after the institution of the grand lodges (in England, 1717; Scotland, 1736; Ireland, 1721-30) that the ceremonies were changed, and women were excluded from the order in this country. In Spain lodges of women Freemasons, exist to-day, and there are not officially recognized by the authorities of the order.

Valuable Marbles Found.

The British Museum has lately come under the possession of some interesting and valuable marbles which were found buried in a "rockery" in an estate in Essex. One is an inscription from a morument erected in Athens in honor of the volunteers from Cleone who took part in the Battle of Tanagra against the Lacedemonians and Eubeans, 457 B. C. The inscription was published in the Achaeologia of the Society of Antiquaries in 1771. Stuart is supposed to have picked up the inscription in Greece when he was preparing that publication. He sent it to Smyrna to be taken by ship to England. There it was brought to England. There it was brought to England by a navy captain, who gave it to a friend, who in turn gave it to a well-known antiquarian, Thomas Astle. It was on the latter's estate that the fragments were found. They had doubtless been thrown away by some unappreciative descendant. In the same estate, a few days later, a fragment of the Parthenon frieze was discovered. It is supposed that this was brought to England at the same time as the inscription. Thomas Astle was once a trustee of the British Museum.

PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS.

Don't wait until your sufferings have driven you to despair, with your nerves all shattered and your courage gone.

Help and happiness surely awaits you if you accept Mrs. Pinkham's advice. Disease makes women nervous, irritable, and easily annoyed by children and household duties; such women need the counsel and help of a woman who understands the peculiar troubles of her sex; that woman is Mrs. Pinkham, who with her famous medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have restored more sick and discouraged women to health and happiness than any other one person. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. Write today, do not wait.

Will not the volumes of letters from women who have been made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince others of the virtues of this great medicine?

When a medicine has been successful in more than a million cases, is it justice to yourself to say, without trying it, "I do not believe it would help me?"

Surely, you convert wish to remain week and sick and sick believe it would help me?"

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. If you have some derangement of the feminine organism try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will surely help you.

Mrs. Emilie Seering, 174 St. Ann's Ave., New York City, writes:

York City, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—If women who are always blue and depressed and nervous would take Lydia E. ## FAMOUS CANVASES BOGUS.

Startling Discoveries Made in Paris of Reproductiona.

A discovery recently made by Mme. Augler, widow of the dramatist, in Paris, France, who was a close friend of Henry Pilo, a well-known artist, and is now the guardian of his children, has given rise to a scandal which spread consternation among art lovers in France and abroad. Mme, Augler learned that certain pictures purporting to have been painted by Pilo were frauds. Further inquiries led to the discovery of he place whence the fraudulent canvases came. A search was made of the studio of M. Ellina, which resulted in the discovery of many fraudulent paintings. Among other things, this artist gave proof that the famous "Crown of Semiramis," now in the Louvre and acquired by the state at a cost of $80,000, had been designed by him.

Graphite Vein Found.

New claims of the Pioneer Graphite Company, which is controlled by stockholders in the Pittsburg (Pa.) Graphite Company, have been examined at Park Falls, Wis., and the biggest vein of graphite known in the west has been discovered. It will be opened ap as soon as new machinery can be brought here from the east and will yield as much graphite as all the other properties of the Pittsburg company combined. The vein has been partially opened up for 700 feet, is 12 feet wide, and lies less than 10 feet from the surface. There are indications that several other new deposits will be struck.
