BENJAMIN B. ODELL

FATHER OF THE GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK STATE, A POWER IN POLITICS.

A POWER IN POLITICS.

The Hon. Benjamin B. Odell of Newburgh, N. Y., father of an illustrious family of sons, writes the following letter, which he hopes will be read by every man and woman in America:

"Some years ago my life was fairly made miserable by the pain and distross I suffered from ACUTE INDIGES—ITON. I was also constipated and run down. This condition continued for about three years. A friend of mine who had suffered in a similar manner, and been much benefted by using DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE. REMEDLY urged me to tryit. I finally did, and IT HELPED ME FROM THE FIRST DOSE, AND I CONTINUED ITS USE AND WAS CURED.

"Thave recommended it to numbers of people, and in every single instance they have received the greatest amount of benefit from its use."

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the most prompt and efficient medicine known for Kidney, Liver, Bladder and Blood Diseases, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Constipation.

Do You Enjoy What You Eat?

You can eat whatever and whenever you like if you take Kodol. By the use of this remedy disordered digestion and diseased stomachs are so completely restored to health, and the full performance of their functions naturally, that such foods as would tie one into a double-bow-knot are eaten without even a "rumbling" and with a positive pleasure and enjoyment. And what is more—these foods are assimilated and transformed into the kind of nutriment that is appropriated by the blood and tissues. Kodol is the only digestant or combination of digestants that will digest all classes of food. In addition to this fact, it contains, in assimilative form, the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all disorders arising therefrom.

Makes the Stomach Sweet.

Bottles only. Regular size, $1.00, holding 2% times the trial size, which seells for 50 cents.

The Wastes of the Body.

The Wastes of the Body.

Every seven days the blood, muscles and bones of a man of average size lose two pounds of wornout tissue. This waste cannot be replenished and the health and strength kept up without perfect digestion. When the stomach and digestive organs fail to perform their functions, the strength lets down, health gives way, and disease sets up. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten into the kind of blood that rebuilds the tissues and protects the health and strength of the mind and body. Kodolcures Indigestion, Dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. It is an ideal spring tonic. Sold by Grover's City drug store.

FOR A LIVING HERO

By COLIN S. COLINS

[Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClur [Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Compan.]

ROM Main street came the strain of martial music. Four-year-old Nellie Bromley clapped her hands and demanded that she be taken to see the Memorial day parade, but her mother only caught the tiny form to her heart, and tears glistened on the golden head like diamonds in some fairy coronet. Every shrill note of the fife, every drumbeat, was a stab.

note of the fife, every grunneas, a stab.

Was it only a year ago that she had been persuaded by all her townspeople to ride in the procession? The orator of the day had feelingly spoken of her as "this young widow who gave her best to her country and who shall ever be our care." It had been a terrible ordeal to the delicate, shrinking woman. This—this loneliness and obliv-on were the easier to bear. And yet it was hard to have them forget him so was nard to have them toget him so soon.

Jack Bromley had been among the unidentified dead at San Juan. There would be no wreath on his unknown grave today.

Yet he had been Silverton's only hero of the Spanish war. The town had no militia, but when Jack went to Carson and joined a regiment there it was not slow in taking due credit to itself. Only Judge Bromley was missing from the crowd that saw him off at the station. He had not spoken to his son since the day he cursed and disinherited him—the day he married Alice Chase. He could say nothing against sweet Alice, but she was the daughter of Hanson Chase, his enemy, whom even in death the judge still hated.

When the sad news reached Silverton, he gave no sign of grief. He made no offer of help to the widow and intimated grimly that a government pension would make a very good life insurance. She, poor glrl, said proudly that she would never ask for government relief. She had sent her husband forth with a brave smile. Now, when they told her that he would never come back, she bowed her head in submission. His sacrifice and hers had been accepted. She would fight as bravely here at home as he on the distant battlefield. Only to him had come rest, while to her—O God, the days of heart-ache and the nights of weeping! But no shadow must fall on Nellie's golden head. The little mouth must be fed, so she began to do water color work for a city store.

At first the work had not seemed hard, for she was surrounded by an atmosphere of love and sympathy. Every one wanted to help "our hero's" wife. Charity lost its sting when cloaked under the tender ministrations of neighborly affection.

But before this second memorial day came they had forgotten her. Hero worship had lost its novelty. Then Willie Langtry, who had volunteered for the Philippines, had been brought home to sleep among his own people. Here was an actual shrine for devotion.

gate, and the judge himself was hitching the horse. What could it mean?

"Kind er surprised to see me, ain't you?" he asked. "Well, them fools is taking things out to the cemetery, and—and I kind er thought 'twas time I was doing some decorating myself. Ford told me the other day how hard you had to hustle, and it struck me it would do a heap more good to decorate your pantry a bit than to put flowers on dead men's graves. Them folks is so took up with dead heroes they kind er seem to have forgotten the living ones."

"What do you mean?" she said.

"It means just this," he answered stoutly: "Your pa and me weren't friends, and I took it hard that John should have married you. But you've made a good fight since, and I'm proud of your pluck. If you'll forgive an old man, why—why"— His voice was choked, but his open arms were more eloquent than words.

She paused irresolutely, but only for a moment. Then she stepped forward quietly, and his arms closed around her. As his bearded cheek rested against hers he caught the whisper, "For Jack's sake," and knew that through the dead the living had been united.

When the supplies were put away, the two sat in the little parlor. As his big, brown hand closed over hers he told her how his heart had yearned to share his grief with her, but how pride had held him back till Ford's tale of her privations had conquered his stubbornness. Hot tears rolled down his cheeks, and it was the girl's tender voice that comforted.

Again the music sounded—the parade was coming back—and the whistle of the afternoon train added its shrill notes to the familiar air of "Marching Through Georgia." But the two on the big sofa had ears only for a lost voice.

Little Nellie, playing happily on the porch, heard the music stop short and a burst of cheering go up. Then the Inrough Georgia." But the two on the big sofn had ears only for a lost voice.

Little Nellie, playing happily on the porch, heard the music stop short and a burst of cheering go up. Then the band struck up again, but it could not drown the cheers. Then down the street they came—the Horricon hose, the Rescue hook and ladder, the Grand Army veterans and the Masons. Nellie came flying into the parlor, with cries of "Come! Come!" and the two reluctantly stepped out on the porch. With her hand on the judge's arm Edith looked bravely up the street. Then she swayed and would have fallen if he had not supported her. A wild cry burst from her lips. On the shoulders of four men was a strangely familiar figure, and with a blare of brass never before equaled the Silverton Cornet band played "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

Edith straightened up and stood there transfigured waiting till they would give him to her arms. The old man at her side cried, "My boy!" Then low to himself, "I am glad I came before he did, for now I have a new daughter as well as a son."

IN BLUE AND IN GRAY.

A New England Veteran Who Is a Member of a Confederate Camp.

A New England Veteran Who Is a Member of a Confederate Camp. It is a strange anomaly that one man should belong both to the Grand Army of the Republic and the organization of Confederate Veterans. James Anderson of Springfield, Mass., is, however, a member of both bodies. On Memorial day he appears in the blue uniform of the Union army, and he is the possessor also of a suit. of Confederate gray. But Mr. Anderson did not fight on both sides during the civil war. He was with the forces of the north, a member of the Thirty-first Maine volunteers. His membership in the organization of Confederate Veterans came about in another way. About four years ago the Union veteran was in Petersburg, Va., visiting the old battle ground. He was invited to a meeting of Confederate Veterans and responded to an invitation to make a speech. So highly did he praise the bravery of the soldiers of the south during the Petersburg siege that he quite won the hearts of the old Confederate scated about him. The feeling of friendship resulted in an invitation to the members of the Confederate camp to visit the G. A. R. post to which Mr. Anderson belonged in Springfield, Mass. The southern veterans went to Springfield in a body, and soon afterward unanimously made Mr. Anderson a contributing member of their camp. And this incident is a striking illustration of the union of the north and south.

union of the north and south.

Grant Threw Away His Cigar.

There used to be a rule late in the war against smoking at the war department. All visitors there were required not to smoke within the old building. A story used to be told by Lieutenant James Hutchinson, formerly of the Thirteenth New York volunteers, that Grant, when a lieutenant general, approached the building, a cigar in his mouth. A veteran of the reserve corps, which Hutchinson commanded, was on guard. Hutchinson was officer of the day. "You can't go in and keep your cigar," said the soldier on guard to the general, and he quietly threw the cigar away. General Halleck, after Grant departed, issued an order that officers should be allowed to smoke within the building, but it is said this never was suggested by General Grant.—Washington Post.

In Battle With the Merrimac. home to sleep among his own people. Here was an actual shrine for devotion.

Those who gave a thought to Edith idly argued that Judge Bromley was more than able to support his son's wife and daughter. If she did not ask him, it was no affair of theirs.

She did not ask either from him or any man. Pride had prompted her independent words in the first days of her bereavement, and now, when she found the struggle almost beyond her strength, pride closed her lips. So she worked silently at the decorative work furnished her by the father of an old school friend. The house was Jack's, and this insured her a home. Her work paid for the rest. Only Ford, the giver, knew how pitifully small the rest was, and Ford—well, there was only one man Ford told.

The music grew fainter as the prosession moved on to the cemetery. Finally it died away. The tears, too, had ceased to fall as mother love brought comfort to the wounded heart. What if the world had forgotten? She had Nelle left—Nelle with her father's bonny blue eyes and crisp curls. Suddenly she started up in surprise, and the december of the congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and they are the prospection of the congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and they are the prospection of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and they are the prospection of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and they are the prospection of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and they are the prospection of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and they are the prospection of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and the proposition of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and the proposition of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise, and the proposition of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise and the proposition of the Congress, but the Hoosiers departed to such a surprise and the Story of a Negro Sentinel and General William T. Sherman.

Booker T. Washington recently told a gathering of negrees that one of the great faults of his race was a disposition to exhibit knowledge under any and all circumstances, and asserted that until the negro learned not to display his vanity he was useless in any confidential capacity. By way of illustration he told a story which, he said, might be or might not be apocryphal, but which was good enough to be true. General Sherman had been told that the soldiers of a negro regiment in his command were lax when on sentry duty and showed a fondness for passing doubtful persons through the lines just to indulge their power to do so. To ascertain if this were so he muffled himself one night in a cloak and tried to get past a black sentry. After the "Who goes there?" the "A friend!" and the "Advance, friend, and give the countersign!" had been exchanged, Sherman repiled: "Roxbury."

"No, sah!" was the polite but firm response.

"Medford."

response.
"Medford."
"No, sah!"
"Charleston." Sherman next tried.
"No, sah; no, sah!" said the negro determinedly. Then he added: "Now, see heah. Yo' can go fru th' whole blamed joggrafy, but Massa Sherman he done say that nobody can get pas' me wifout sayin' 'Cambridge!' "—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Seventh Michigan's Exploit.

The success of the brilliant move across the river at Fredericksburg makes a bright page in the annals of the Seventh Michigan infantry. Confederate sharpshooters lined the opposite bank and impeded the work of laying pontoon bridges, which had finally been abandoned. A call was made for volunteers to cross and drive the enemy out. Soldiers of the Seventh seized some empty pontoons, rowed rapidly across, jumped ashore and drove the Confederates from the rifie pits and from the houses. Two Massachusetts regiments followed and aided them in holding the position.

In the Iron Brigade.

In the Iron Brigade.

The greatest casualties in any regiment at Gettysburg were in the Twenty-fourth Michigan of the Iron Brigade, which fought on the first day in Me-pherson's woods near Willoughby Run. Three-fourths of its men had been cut down before the regiment yielded. Entering the fight with 28 officers and 468 men, it lost a total of 363, including 69 killed, 247 wounded and 47 missing. These were the boys who captured the colors of the Forty-eighth Virginia at the Wilderness.

Neighborly Neglect.

"Every one knows the dislike of the country person to interfere with his neighbors," says the London Globe.
"A good instance occurred in the midlands. Farmer Jarvis, driving to market, saw through the open door of a barn the body of a neighbor suspended from a beam and drove on, revolving the tragedy. When he reached the market town, he imparted the news with deliberate emphasis. "Good heavens!" exclaimed the other. "And did you cut him down? "No," said the farmer, more slowly still; 'he wasn't dead yet."
