In Point of Architecture It is in a Class by Itself.

One moonlight night in June, 1902, while strolling through the grounds with Mr. Charles F. McKim, one of the members of the park commission, we seated ourselves on one of those mounds which tradition ascribes to John Quincy Adams' taste in landscape architecture. That afternoon crowds of people arrayed in Joyous costumes befitting the semitropics had come from the hot city to rest under the trees and listen to the Saturday concert of the Marine band. The musicans, clad in white duck, were located in a little depression, so that the sound of the music rolled up the slopes to the attentive audience.

of the music rolled up the slopes to the attentive audience.

A year before we had observed the same effect at Versailles, and both the similarities and the differences of the two pictures were being discussed as we sat in the quiet night behind the locked gares where not a sound from the city streets broke the grateful noise of water spinshing in the fountains. On the high portico the president sat mild a group of dinner guests, and the lights of their cirars were "echoed" by the drowsy fireflies flitting about the grounds, only the brilliantly lighted windows of the secretary's office even suggesting the workaday world. The moonlight, shining full on the White House, revealed the harmonious lines of its graceful shape.

moonlight, shining full on the white House, revealed the harmonious lines of its graceful shape. "Tell me," I asked the architect, "among the great houses that have been built during recent years in the general style of the White Housemany of them larger and much more costly—is there any that in point of architecture surpasses it?"

"No; there is not one in the same class with it," he replied deliberately, a judgment confirmed later under the noonday sun.—Century.

Mining at Great Depths.

In no other district in the world are active mining operations carried on at such a depth as in the Lake Superior copper region. The No. 5 shaft of the Tamarack mine is the deepest, in the world, having attained a vertical depth of 4,940 feet, nearly a mile. Not far behind it is the Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet and Hecla, which is down 4,920 feet. Another deep shaft of the Calumet and Hecla is the No. 4 of the Calumet branch of the property. This is down 7,800 feet on an incline of a mile and a half. In view of the marvelous efficiency of the modern hoisting engine no considerations of a mechanical nature need limit the prospective depth of shafts.

The greatest obstacle to deep mining is the proportionate increase in temperature. In the Lake Superior copper district State Geologist Lake has ascertained that the temperature in the emple varies one degree for every 110 feet. The temperature in the deepest shafts of the Tamarack and Hecla varies between S5 and 90 degrees, and in view of these conditions it is evident that considerable depths can yet be attained in this section.—Chicago Chronicle.

Andy Adams.

Andy Adams, author of "The Log of a Cowboy," is a native of Indiana. As a youth he went to Texas, where for more than ten years he worked on cattle ranches. He rose from a common hand to the position of foreman on the old western trail, winning popularity among a class of men whose fealty is not easily gained. In 1888 he gave up cattle life and turned to mining, being now located at Colorado Springs. When he realized that the life of the old days was gone forever he began to put some of his actual experiences on paper, for it now seemed to him to have been romantic, though it did not appeal to him in that light when he was compelled to sit in a saddle from sixteen to twenty-four hours at a time in all kinds of weather.—New York Mail and Express.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

One of the late Stuart Robson's most disastrous theatrical failures was the dramatization of "The Gadity," which he produced for two weeks in New York several years ago. "The Saturday night when the play had its last production," says an actor who was in his company, "he was in a very jocular mood. Think of it," said he as he stood in the wings preparatory to going on; "think of it," it has cost me $1,000 evry time I played this part. [The loss for the three weeks was $20,000.] Talk about your public spirited citzens. Where do I come in? Where is my monument? And look how calm and indifferent those fourteen of the lost, strayed or stolen are out there in the audience over the honor that is about to be conferred upon them. You'd think from the way they sit that they didn't know it costs me almost $100 apiece to entertain them. Look at that fine sample of respectability over there with the red whiskers and Edam cheese head. Think of spending $100 to entertain him." All through the entr'actes he was in the liveliest of moods. 'I have a good mind to make a speech, 'he said after the first act. He assumed a mock threatening attitude. 'Yes, sir, I've a good mind to go out and tell them that

An Opportunity For Some One.

A short time ago the civil service commission announced an examination for the position of disciplinarian in the Indian service.

It was decided that applicants must be proficient in penmanship, spelling and copying, arithmetic, school management and pedagogy, general management and discipline of pupils, geography of the United States, history and government of the United States, English grammar and analysis, physiology and hygiene and military factics.

The prospectus contained the information that the the person fortunate enough to stand the highest among all the applicants would receive the position of disciplinarian at Fort Totten school, North Dakota, and would receive the princely salary of $600 a year. Chief Examiner Serven a few days after the date of the examination was announced received a letter from a young man in Missouri which read:

"I dunno that I'm much on hyglene, but you ought to see me with a crosscut saw."

A cynic who is apparently not in love with the civil service suggested that plano playing be added to the curriculum.—Washington Star.

It Takes Years to Climb.

The project of climbing the loftlest mountain on the earth, Mount Everest, in the Himalaya mountains, whose tremendous head rises, according to trigonometrical measurements, 29,002 feet above sea level, has now reached a stage immediately antecedent to the actual attempt. A party led by Mr. Eckenstein, an experienced climber, has set out for the foot of the great peak. Several celebrated mountain climbers have expressed the opinion that the feat is feasible, but only by the method of gradual ascent, whereby the adventurers may become inured to the effects of a rare atmosphere. Months and even years may be spent in ascending to higher and higher levels, a long pause being made after every considerable advance. The highest ascent now on record is that of Aconcagua, in the Andes, the elevation of which is 23,080 feet, 5,022 feet, or more than a mile, less than the height of Everest.

Wagner and the Return to Nature.
A Utopian society has established itself in Ascona, a little place on the borders of Italy and Switzerland. This little society, which numbers thirty-eight individuals, seeks to solve the problem of how to live happily. The members are pledged to observe dertain simple rules of living which they have carried out now for three years. They eat no meat, but live principally on fruits and herbs, and they wear one simple garment only and no hats. There are sixteen women in the sect.

They know no laws save those of nature, and they annuse themselves with Wagnerian music. The founder of the colony is a Belgian. Each new member is initiated on his finding sufficient money to buy a plot of land, by the cultivation of which he is expected to support himself.—London Mail.

support himself.—London Mall.

Magellan's Strait.

Interesting facts about the geological history of the southern end of the new world were developed by the recent Princeton university expedition to Patagonia. The terraces on the plains of southern Patagonia are sea cliffs cut during pauses in the slow emergence of the land, and the present coast is the latest representative of this series of cliffs. Before its submergence great transverse valleys were eroded across the land, and since the re-emergence of the latter these valleys contain small intermittent rivers. The southernmost of the ancient valleys, which has not yet entirely emerged, forms the strait of Magellan.

emerged, forms the strait of Magellan.

Sartorial Remonstrance.
Are men's clothes today so utterly unworthy of the painter's art? Are they so completely devoid of taste and beauty that they are so shamefully reproduced? We have regularly attended the Academy now for many years, but never do we remember such a poor show of portraits; they cannot prove otherwise than to be the laughing stock of tailors. We wonder that gentlemen are content to take such caricatures from the hands of the artist when the poor tailor has to suffer for a misfit.—Tailor and Cutter.

NEW SHORT STORIES

Apropos of Senator Foraker's recent statement that the president was "quick on the trigger, but not too quick," C. B. Stackhouse of Omaha tells an amusing story of the president's western trip, says the New York Tribune. The presidential train had pulled into Hastings, the end of a division, and, following his usual custom, Mr. Roosevelt sent for the fireman and engineer and, shaking hands with them, made a complimentary little speech on the skill with which they had handled his train, concluding with these words: "You and I have a right to be on Ira-ternal terms, for, you know, I am an honorary member of the Brotherhood of Locemotive Firemen."

The remark was received with dead silence, to the president's amazement, and the men departed without reply-and the men departed without replying.

Turning to a rallroad official, Mr. Roosevelt inquired why his little speech fell so flat and was told that at the time of the Burlington strike the engineers and firemen on that road severed all connection with the unions, and the men whom he had addressed were what his "brother firemen" would contemptuously term "scabs."

"That," says Mr. Stackhouse, "was a time when the president was too quick on the trigger."

The Bishop Apologized.

Underhanded Work.

M. Jules Cambon, the former French ambassador, had a great regard for the energy of the United States. He desired to see this country prosper, "for," said he, "when you have money you buy from us, who have goods to sell."

"I grieve," he remarked. "You Americans usually are fair in everything and deal with others aboveboard. But mow I observe that you will, when necessary, have no hesitation in employing underhand methods or go to the uttermost depths in accomplishing your desires."—Detroit Free Press.

Nothing New.

A young medical student at Bowdoin college once asked the late Professor Parker Cleaveland if there were not some more recent works on anatomy than those in the college library. "Young man," said the professor, measuring the entire mental caliber of the youthful scholar at one glance, "there have been very few new bones added to the human body during the last ten years."—Youth.

BASE BALL.

The first defeat received this season by West Hazleton club was administered to them yesterday by Drifton team, which won an interesting game at West Hazleton by a score of 7 to 3. Boyle and Bonner were the battery for Drif-

Lime on Potatoes.

We have often given an opinion about using lime on potatoes in a single word—don't! While lime will frequently increase the yield of potatoes, it is the worst thing you can use if there is any scab on the seed. This scab is a skin disease which thrives best when the soil is alkaline. The lime gives the germs just the condition they need for growing and spreading, and as seed is rarely if ever free from scab you are sure to the very a scabby crop if you use it. We mave tried several times to raise a crop of potatoes on a tough old meadow, but never succeeded in doing it. We would much prefer to grow a crop of corn first and then follow with potatoes.—Rural New Yorker.

How to Get Bulletins.

Where farmers desire to secure copies of publications of the agricultural department they should apply preferably to their members of congress or United States senators, providing they know the numbers or names of the publications, for the reason that the bulk of the farmer's bulletins are printed under act of congress and every senator and representative receives a quota for distribution. The secretary of agriculture also receives some copies, but the demands should preferably be made on the congressmen, as congress is the body which authorizes the money for the printing, and it is right that applications for such documents should be made direct.—Tennessee Farmer.

Writing from LaFargeville, N. Y., on February 7, 1902, Rev. Fr. Joseph Pontur, of St. John's Parish, said: "One of my parishloners, almost despondent of ever getting cured, given up by the doctors as a consumptive, upon my firm advice is using Father John's Medicine and since has been constantly improving to the great joy of her parents and friends."

Again, four months later, Rev. Fr. Pontur writes: "The young woman referred to in my letter of February 7, 1902, who was given up by all the doctors as a consumptive, continues to improve wonderfully by using Father John's Medicine."

What You Eat?

You can eat whatever and whenever you like if you take Kodol. By the use of this remedy disordered digestion and diseased stomachs are so completely restored to health, and the full performance of their functions naturally, that such foods as would the one into a double-bow-knot are eaten without even a "rumbling" and with a positive pleasure and enjoyment. And what is more—these foods are assimilated and transformed into the kind of nutriment that is appropriated by the blood and tissues. Kodol is the only digestant or combination of digestants that will digest all classes of food. In addition to this fact, it contains, in assimilative form, the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties.
