And for 30 years water rates in Lackawanna and Wyoming valleys have remained unchanged.

The cost of labor and material has soared not only in the entire period embraced by the last three decades but in the comparatively brief interval since Germany asked waivers on the Kaiser.

And because we ask for a 25% rate increase, which is less than a 7% return on the cash we invested here, the editor of the Scranton Times likens us to Jesse James.

Harken to ye editor:

"Jesse James never performed a bolder holdup than is now being attempted by the group in control of the Scranton-Spring Brook Water Service Company."

We don't know how much cash the publisher of the Scranton Times has invested in his plant; but we feel safe in hazarding a guess that he is reaping more than 7% return on his money.

Overlooking for the minute any question of merit in this controversy we wish to remark that it isn't necessary to love the Water Company. If you refrain from peddling fiction about it, you are doing well enough.
