SOMEBODY'S MOTHER

A Story by Lois Kocher, Student in Lake Township Schools

It was May 11, and May 12 was Mother's Day. In the city there were hurrying crowds, rushing taxies and autos, and pedestrians scurrying across the street when for a moment, traffic would stop.

On the corner of West Chester Street stood a large crowd waiting for a lull in traffic, and through the crowd there walked a white-haired little old lady with a basket of pansies and violets on her arm. She was unlike the usual street vendors, she was very genteel in appearance and the thin lined face expressed sorrow and suffering. Her English, when she spoke to people who purchased flowers, was very good.

Observing all these things, and led by the thought of my own mother back in the little Nevada town I had left a year ago, I decided to buy a bunch of pansies and make the accost stepping up to her I purchased the flowers and asked several questions about the city, and found they were all answered intelligently.

I spent a pleasant half hour with my new acquaintance, then decided to lunch at a nearby restaurant and invited my new friend to dine with me. After some slight hesitation she accepted the invitation and after being seated in the restaurant the conversation became more personal, and when a chance remark about the World War was passed I noticed the happy expression of joy on the little old lady's face change to one of sadness, and I asked her if she had any sons in the war. I found three had been killed in France, and that there was an invalid husband at home who had been injured during the battle of the Marne. This brief history made me think of my home more forcibly than ever; of the many who had suffered similar losses because of the war and of the agony and fear

W. Wyoming and Hunlocks Keep Clean Slate In Rural League --- Dallas and Beaumont Are Tie for Second Place

League Standing	W.	L.	Pct.
West Wyoming	2	0	1.000
Hunlocks	2	0	1.000
Dallas	1	1	.500
Beaumont	1	1	.500
Roaring Brook	0	2	.000
East Dallas	0	2	.000

Last Saturday's Results
West Wyoming 3, Dallas 2.
Beaumont 7, Roaring Brook 1.
Hunlocks 11, East Dallas 3.

Where They Play Today
Dallas at Roaring Brook.
East Dallas at Beaumont.
West Wyoming at Hunlocks Creek.

Although high winds were the order of the day they seem to have little effect on the base ball spirit existing in the Rural League. Beaumont journeyed to Roaring Brook Saturday where they shoved the down country boys as low in the cellar as possible by a 7 to 1 score, but to make the count even their neighbor Hunlocks Creek friends gave East Dallas a lacing to the tune of 11 to 3 and also placed them in the cellar position.

The Dallas clan went over to West Wyoming where the best game of the day took place losing a heart-breaker by a 3 to 2 score.

Chet Culver was on the mound for Dallas and although losing a hard fought battle he left an impression with the fans that he can pitch ball and the Wyoming boys can consider themselves lucky to win the ball game. Culver let the hard hitting West Wyoming club down with three hits while Dallas collected a total of eleven.

This may seem like some ragged playing on the part of the Dallas team but the boys put up an errorless game especially in the infield where Owens, Stitzer and Evans worked like big leaguers completing three double plays and making several hard stops.

The batting honors went to the veteran Stitzer who poled out a double and three singles out of four tries. Culver did his part with two singles. Steve Lasco played his first game with Dallas and while Culver didn't give him a chance to do any fielding. He gave a fine exhibition of base running. Ted Wilson also got in during the last four innings and proved himself capable of handling an outfield position.

Score By Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Dallas	110	000	11	2	1
W. Wyo.	000	200	01x	3	3	1

LATIN LEADS IN STUDENTS' CHOICE

The Department of Public Instruction has completed a study which shows that of the 342,838 girls and boys enrolled in the junior and senior high schools in Pennsylvania, 168,902, or approximately one-half of the students, are registered in foreign language classes.

The exact figures covering enrollments in the several languages are given in the following table:

Language	Number of pupils enrolled
French	50,286
German	6,329
Greek	478
Italian	16
Latin	98,326
Spanish	13,467

Total 168,902
Latin, the survey shows, still hold first place in interest, being far in the lead of all the other languages taken together. The Classical Investigation of 1924, which was nationwide in extent, announced as one of its findings that the number of pupils in secondary schools who were studying Latin was in excess of the number studying all other foreign languages. Pennsylvania thus reflects what appears to be typical of the country at large.
