Dallas and West Wyoming Furnish Thrills and Upsets in Rural League; East Dallas and Beaumont Threaten

Season Now Well Under Way With All Teams Showing Strength As Potential Pennant Winners—Roaring Brook in Cellar Position Upsets Beaumont Team

INTEREST IN LEAGUE GROWS

Many upsets were seen in the Rural League in the past two weeks when East Dallas walloped the Dallas nine by a 14 to 0 score only to see Beaumont trounce the league-leading West Wyoming by a 9 to 1 score.

East Dallas, all primed up over its Dallas victory, took a trip to Roaring Brook where it lost what it gained at Dallas by a 15 to 10 score. Discouraged over this defeat, only part of the club turned out Saturday to meet Beaumont. What a surprise the boys got when they trounced Archie Austin's clan by a 7 to 2 score.

While all these changes were being made Dallas came to life and took a hard-fought game from Hunlocks Creek by a 6 to 5 score and set Roaring Brook boys back to a 8 to 2 score to keep on the top of the heap with West Wyoming. Hunlocks Creek, which led the league in the first part of the season, has lost four straight games, although it maintains second place position in the league. All clubs seem to be of equal strength and should furnish some real excitement in baseball before the season is over.

WILLIAM A. MARTIN BURIED WITH HONORS AT ARLINGTON, VA.

Lieutenant Commander Martin Commanded Vessels Which Carried First American Troops To France

The Wilkes-Barre Record of Thursday morning carried the following contributed article concerning the burial of Lieutenant Commander Martin of Huntsville, whose death occurred Memorial Day morning.

The burial of Lieutenant Commander William A. Martin in the Arlington National Cemetery at Arlington last Monday afternoon finely illustrates the thoughtfulness of the government for those who have been in national service. On the previous afternoon in the home at Huntsville a funeral service was held by Rev. C. H. Frick, assisted by Rev. Harry Henry. The Mt. Greenwood Kiwanis Club of which Mr. Martin was an active member, were conspicuous in the service, and a guard of honor was stationed at the casket.

The body started for Washington accompanied by a funeral party of nine on the 5:17 Lehigh Valley train last Monday morning. Undertaker A. C. Kelly of Trucksville turned the body over to naval agents at Washington who took it direct to the receiving vault in the cemetery and the friends to the gate. At 2:30 a caisson drawn by six horses and accompanied by pall bearers from Fort Myer led the funeral party to the receiving vault. The procession was led by a large section of the famous United States Marine band and a guard of honor composed of 32 marines armed with rifles and blank ammunition followed, and these were followed by the friends.

The procession passed the Amphitheater and Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and paused under the hill. The band, stationed to the left of the grave played Nearer, my God, to Thee as the flag-draped casket was carried to the grave, and while the services were conducted the bearers held the flag as a shelter over the casket. Rev. C. H. Frick, chaplain of the 109th Field Artillery and pastor of the deceased, was assisted at the grave by Captain Dickens, chief of naval chaplains. Three volleys were fired by the escort, a bugler sounded "taps," the sailor's goodnight. So ended the ceremonies in honor of the one who conveyed the first American soldiers to France and commanded vessels which bottled the German and Austrian submarines in the Aegean Sea. The widow and mother and sister were tendered the sympathy of the Navy Department at the hand of a Naval captain, and after pausing at the grave of the Unknown, the friends returned to Washington and took the train home.

Farm Crops Make Gains During Week

Hot Weather and Showers Make Up For Unfavorable Weather of Early July.

With the exception of scattered local showers at many places during the first half, the week was generally fair with an abundance of sunshine. Temperatures were above the normal during the first four days with maxima in 90 degrees at most stations on Friday. A reaction to cooler set in on Saturday night and light frosts formed in exposed places in western Pennsylvania on Monday morning. No reports of damage were received, however. Corn planting is well under way in all the northern counties except in a few localities in the extreme northeastern portion of the State. In southern counties planting is completed except in a very few places and the crop is growing nicely.

Winter wheat and rye are reported as very good and are heading nicely in nearly all sections. The warm weather of the week was very beneficial to oats and the crop made excellent progress. Rain will be needed soon, however. Pastures and meadows continue in good to excellent condition and are furnishing excellent feed for cattle. Clover is in bloom in most sections.

The potato crop, while getting a late start on account of unfavorable early spring weather, made excellent progress during the week and planting of the late varieties is progressing quite generally. There has been very little damage from bugs this season although a few appeared in western sections this week. Truck crops improved during the week under favorable weather conditions and are making up some of the ground lost earlier in the season. Tobacco planting continued, with some blight reported at scattered stations, although the crop generally is fair to good. Fruits, as a whole can be described as in only fair condition with many correspondents very pessimistic; some kinds promising only half a normal crop. The berry crop is reported as good to excellent, although rain will soon be needed. The week as a whole was the most favorable of the spring for crops, and farm work.

Biographical Sketch of the Author

By Wesley E. Woodruff

William Penn Ryman, one of the most prominent citizens of Wilkes-Barre, and a leading lawyer of the Luzerne Bar, passed into his final rest at his home on South Franklin street, July 31, 1899, just as the shades of evening had closed around the brightest of one of nature's loveliest days. Mr. Ryman had not been a well man for years, for he had recovered from a former desperate illness only by force of will and by extreme care in his routine life. In this way he was spared to those whom he loved, and who loved him, and for useful endeavor, until some months ago, when he again failed in health. Such was his strength of resolution, however, that he kept up, until exhausted nature made it impossible to do so longer. Even as he felt the shadows deepening he never lost his courage, his serenity or his cheerfulness of spirit, and he still had the pleasant greeting and the smile of a cordial spirit until a merciful oblivion closed his eyes. For several hours before the end he was not conscious, and the end came falling into slumber at the closing of the day.

William Penn Ryman was born in Dallas August 23, 1847. He was the son of Abram and Jemima (Kunkle) Ryman, whose family was of German extraction, and settled originally in New Jersey, though three generations were born on the old homestead farm at Dallas. William P. attended the schools of Wilkes-Barre and then prepared for college at Wyoming Seminary. He entered Cornell University as a sophomore at the first opening of that institution, and completed the usual four years' course in three years. He was graduated in the class of 1871. He then took the two years' course at Harvard Law School, completing it one year, and afterwards came to Wilkes-Barre being admitted to the Luzerne bar from the office of the late Edward P. Darling September 20, 1873, and to the United States Court 1882. He

Early History Of Dallas And Surrounding Communities To Be Recounted In The Dallas Post

Wyoming Historical and Geological Society Gives this newspaper the exclusive right to publish the famous Ryman history.

HISTORY OF DALLAS

Some time ago the Dallas Post was fortunate in securing one of the now few remaining copies of the Ryman history of The Early Settlement of Dallas Township. So interesting is the book that permission was asked of the Wyoming Historical and Geological Society to print the entire volume in the columns of The Post where everyone might have an opportunity to read it. The request was cheerfully granted and with this issue the first installment appears.

The history, was originally prepared by William Penn Ryman as a brief paper for The Wyoming Historical and Geological Society, and was read before the Society, by request, December 11, 1885. It was so full of interest that it was at once referred to the publishing committee, and Mr. Ryman was unanimously requested to prepare a second paper on the same subject. This latter paper was also read before the society. At his own suggestion, that a much larger amount of data was still unrecorded about the township, both papers were returned to the author for enrichment. This task was with him a labor of love, taken up during his leisure hours, and the last touches were added after the disease which ended his useful life had fully developed.

Even in his last days he still hoped to have strength to add a chapter on the part played by Dallas township in the late Civil War. But the pen fell from the hands too weak to hold it, and this chapter remains unwritten.

Cars Smashed In Serious Accident On Lake Road

Drivers Held By Local Police For Hearing Before Local Squire

What might have been a serious accident occurred Sunday night about 9:15 when an Essex sedan driven by C. E. Coyle of Plymouth sideswiped a Chrysler sedan driven by George Blizard of Kingston on the State road just in front of the home of James Robinson.

The Essex car was being driven in the direction of Harvey's Lake and the Chrysler was coming toward Dallas. After the crash both cars were completely disabled and had to be towed to Oliver's Garage. The left front wheel of the Chrysler and both mud guards were torn away. The Essex suffered similar damage on its right side.

Opinion differs as to who was to blame for the accident. At the hearing before Squire Malkemes of Shavertown on Monday night, Blizard was told to prepare an itemized statement of the costs of repairing his machine. In the event an amicable agreement cannot be reached between the two drivers, Blizard says he will sue for damages.

In the machines at the time of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. Blizard and his wife's father and mother. Coyle was accompanied by another young man and two girls.

Local Districts Poll Big Vote For the Republican Candidate and Luzerne County Swings Back to Its Republican Majority With Forty Per Cent. of County Voting

LOCAL WORKERS ACTIVE

On Tuesday last Luzerne County elected Dr. C. Murray Turpin to represent this district in the halls of Congress. With the election of Dr. Turpin, a Republican, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is now represented with a hundred per cent delegation of Republicans.

The election was unusually quiet, only here and there were there small demonstrations of rowdism or noise. Election night, due to the vote being unusually close on the first returns, excitement ran high in the respective political headquarters. Towards morning when practically all of the county had been heard from, Dr. Turpin's lead was close to three thousand votes, however, several Democratic strongholds came in, reducing the majority to twelve hundred.

Although not polling the vote of last fall, local districts made a very fine showing which was greatly appreciated by county leaders.

The vote in the districts in and surrounding Dallas was as follows:

District	Turpin	Casey
Dallas Boro., N. D.	182	9
Dallas Boro., E. D.	80	7
Dallas Twp., S. D.	203	9
Dallas Twp., Kunkle D.	55	8

Lehman township southwest sure are real Republicans. The vote being, Turpin 23, Casey 0. They sure hate Democrats down below Lake Silke-worth, which is the southwest district.

Local Workers Active

In most elections, especially when there is a chance to receive pay for their services, there are many workers around the polls. This election no workers were hired due to the restriction in spending money in a special congressional election, there were only a few workers at the polls, but they worked hard and deserve great credit for their services.

Dr. Turpin will leave early Monday morning and will take his oath of office in the House of Representatives at Washington at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Entertains

J. C. Lewis of Trucksville entertained at dinner at the Bridge tea room on Monday evening. His guests were: Charles Traian, Ernest Voight, Arthur Bradbury, Norman Ringstrom and Charles Price. Following dinner the guests adjourned to Mr. Lewis' home where cards were played.
