Joy Riders Come To Grief

Marmon Sedan Crashed Through Heavy Fence, Over Wall and Into Squire Anderson's Yard

A large Marmon sedan driven by Walter McKaye of Scranton crashed into the heavy fence in front of Squire Anderson's home early Sunday morning and toppled down over the embankment into his yard.

In the car at the time were three young men and three young women who had been out for an early morning ride. Save for a few scratches no one was injured. The car escaped with but slight damage.

The car was being driven up Franklin street and when the driver reached the corner at the new high school building he was unable to make the turn and crashed into the fence, tearing it down and breaking the concrete retaining wall. The car was pulled back into position on the road by the wrecker from Oliver's Garage. Later the driver and occupants of the car were given a hearing before a local squire and fined for reckless driving.

Adolphe Barreaux to Tour Country Towns Till He Finds Ideal Girl

Editor's Note: Adolphe Barreaux, famous illustrator, will start out on June 15th on a nationwide tour by auto, combing the rural districts in search of a girl for a canvas entitled "Americana" who can fulfill the dream in his mind and perfectly embody the spirit of America.

Soon he may be stopping at your local hotel or farm or boarding house! In the exclusive story below, Adolphe Barreaux tells why farm girls are the best artist's models.

Country girls have "it." The artificial life of city girls make them undesirable for the beautiful paintings which go to all parts of the country. Complexion is one of a model's greatest assets and we must go to the country for "it," and when I say "it" I mean that intangible yet vital quality which makes one stand out above all the others. Now beauty is considered more an

Wolfe-Keifer Wedding Plans Announced

A wedding of especial interest to this community will be that on Saturday, June 22 at Irem Temple, when Miss Barbara Lois Kleper of Shrine View, becomes the bride of Lewis S. Wolfe of Wilkes-Barre.

Miss Barbara will have as her attendants, Miss Mary Hart of Wilkes-Barre Mrs. Charles Butler of Forty-Fort Miss Marion Shields of New York City, Miss Virginia Storey, Wilmington, Del. Miss Barbara Hofmeister, Dallas, Miss Marjorie Taylor, Maplewood, N. J. and Miss Jayne Thurston, Beechurst, L. I. and Miss Dorothy MacCallum, Kingston, as bridesmaids. Miss Peggy Low MacKeeley will be flower girl.

The best man will be Frederick Keifer, brother of the bride, and the following will act as ushers: Bernard O'Brien, Jamaica, L. I., Miller Steele, Brooklyn, N. Y., Robert Harrison, New York City, Stewart Evans, Robert Eyerman of Wilkes-Barre; Charles Butler, Forty-Fort; William Mutter and Drew Mutter of Maplewood, New Jersey.

affair of curves than of angles. The beautiful girls of the present successful musical shows are girls with bosoms, curves and rounded lines. And now that sensible figures are in style again it is to the girl of nature, the country girl that artists are turning in their eternal quest of beauty to interpret to people in city and farm.

Another feature that makes the farm girl so desirable a model is that many poses are exceedingly difficult to hold and the city girl, worn out by a round of parties and night clubs, is totally unfitted to maintain a position for the required length of time which is seldom longer than twenty-five minutes. The country-bred girl brings to this work the necessary vitality and stamina.

I am now at work on a canvas entitled "Americana" with a myriad of heads of girls of all types to be found in this country. Looming over all is to be the figure of the perfect American woman combining strength, beauty and cosmopolitanism—but for this great central figure I am still searching for a model.

It has drawn on me that she is not to be found in the big cities, in the hives of humanity, but on the farms where nature blooms, unadorned by the hand of artificiality. Therefore I am starting on a nation-wide tour of search, confident that somewhere on an American farm is the perfect American girl I am seeking.

Breaks in Roof and Wide Dormers Give This Home Attractive Touch

An Abundance of Sunshine Will Always Make Cheerful Rooms Within This Charming House for Though Attractive Shutters Ornament the Windows They Will Always Be Opened Wide to Admit the Light and Air.

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The modified type of the colonial home building design which has an irregular pitched roof and wide dormers is commonly termed the "Dutch Colonial." This a popular type of home because its exterior appearance is made attractive by the breaks in the roof and the wide dormers. However, in the interior arrangement it follows rather closely the colonial.

Such a home is shown in the accompanying illustration. This is a five-room house, 26 feet wide and 22 feet deep. The five rooms are large.

however, and are of the type that are wanted by those who are building their own homes.

The overhang of the roof at the second floor sill and the gabled roof over the entrance porch are features which make this house out of the ordinary. The entrance door leads directly into the living room which is

Oak Flooring Proven Best by Hard Test

A young man consulted a friend of his who was in the lumber business about building a home. They went over the plans carefully, and when they had finished the lumberman turned to the young man and said: "Of course, you will want oak flooring."

The young man had not thought a great deal of the floors—he was too occupied with other details. The "of course, you will want oak flooring" seemed so much like a foregone conclusion the young man wondered why he would "of course" want it.

As an experiment he talked with another man who was well known for his business ability and his sound judgment. During the conversation the older man remarked: "You have forgotten to specify oak flooring."

There it was again, that taken-for-granted remark.

When the young man built his home his floors were oak, and years later as he looked at their unchanged beauty he knew why if he built again he would want oak flooring, "of course."

That was not an unusual happening. It has been years since the supremacy of oak flooring has been disputed. Oak flooring has grown to be a necessity to the majority of home builders. The permanent beauty and durability of oak flooring, the perfect floor, have made it highly desirable and almost indispensable in the plan of a home.

The reason it has enjoyed popularity, besides those mentioned above, is that it is so easy to keep oak floors in a state of high finish. In the floors lie a great part of the charm of the interior of a home.

Upon entering a room one of the first things that meets the eye and leaves either a favorable or unfavorable impression is the floor. If it is an oak floor that has been given the little, though necessary attention, there will be recognition of its beauty that cannot be described, but is felt by all—a feeling of quality and richness that speaks of refinement and taste.

Floors are not only a part of the house, but they are a part of the furnishings as well. Yet they are subjected to daily service far more severe than any piece of furniture. To withstand this service and still look well they must be considered as to material, methods of laying and finishing, and attention given their upkeep.

14 feet by 21 feet. The open stair out of the living room beside the entrance door leads to the second floor. An open fireplace is set in the outside wall with doors on either side leading to the open porch. This porch may be walled and glazed to make it into an "all-year-round" sun parlor if desired.

The dining room is 10 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 6 inches, and the kitchen is of the same width and is 8 feet deep.

The stairs lead to a hall at the rear of the second floor at one side of which is the bathroom. Both bedrooms open off this hall, one on either side of the stairway. These rooms are large, one being 12 feet 6 inches by 14 feet, and the other 10 feet 6 inches by 17 feet 6 inches.

The house is of frame construction and sets on a concrete foundation; has a basement of the same dimensions as the house proper. This is the type of home that the small family desires. Its rooms are large and airy. The arrangement of them is such that the work of caring for the home can be done with the least amount of effort. It is attractive from the exterior appearance, and when surrounded by shrubs and flowers as is shown in the illustration, it will make a very attractive home.

ing a satisfactory floor merely is a matter of doing the right thing the right way.

In the first place, oak flooring, although a highly finished product, dressed to a satin surface accurately machined and side and end matched carefully, is not perfectly uniform in quality, as there are many companies manufacturing it, but it is as nearly "right" as it is possible for nationally known and accepted manufacturers to make it. The laying and care of the floor necessarily must pass to other hands.

But other hands are just as capable in acquiring a permanently beautiful floor as the manufacturer is in furnishing the material.

It merely is a matter of following the few but essential rules of laying and caring for the floor that are more or less necessary to any floor. Those rules are obtainable from any lumber dealer and are in a clear, concise form that eliminates worry and study on the part of the home owner. Another aid in the selection of oak flooring is to buy flooring of a well-known and proven brand.

However, whether the home owner studies oak flooring or not, as the years pass on oak floors will teach him a lesson in flooring that will keep him marveling at its lasting beauty.

Porch Is Made Livable With Small Touches

The passing of winter is marked by the siren call of spring for all to come outdoors.

The porch may have suffered un-wanted hardships through the wintry months, but it can readily be made quite a livable place with a bit of ingenuity. E. Helen Dunbar supplies several suggestions in an article for the March issue of the People's Home Journal. Outlining the points to be considered in adding dignity and comfort to the living porch, she says:

"People are becoming more and more eager to get out-of-doors, so let us make the most of porches, however hopeless they may seem at first. No porch exists which cannot be made more livable and attractive at the same time. The principal things to keep in mind as fundamentals, no matter what kind of a porch engrosses attention, are first to secure some privacy by the use of awnings or even simple Japanese screens, second to make the porch comfortable and inviting, the chairs must be carefully selected for comfort first of all, and, third, to make it colorful and very gay and happy, with plenty of little intimate things about so that it has some personality of its own."
