

FARM POULTRY

CLEAN GROUND IS BEST FOR RANGES

One of Most Important Points in Growing Pullets.

Clean ground for ranging is one of the most important points in the growing of healthy pullets which will become vigorous and profitable layers, it is pointed out by the poultry husbandry department of the Ohio State university.

"A large percentage of the mortality in the growing flock, as well as in the matured laying flock, is caused either directly or indirectly by intestinal parasites," P. B. Zumbo, poultry specialist, says in a recent extension service publication. "These parasites, as well as many disease germs, are carried over from year to year in the soil."

Zumbo urges that chick ranges be on land on which no other chicks have been raised or old hens ranged, for at least two years. Alfalfa, he says, makes one of the best chick ranges. Clover is almost as good, and blue grass comes next.

"Many poultry men think an alfalfa or clover field is too valuable for rearing chicks. This is a mistake. Poultry grown on good range will give a return equal to that from any live stock, or better. Good results can be obtained by having two or more ranges, and a crop can be grown in the meantime. This method will provide clean range and will enable the owner to have the brooder house near the farmhouse, saving time in going to and from the house. When this method is used, one acre of land should be provided for each 500 chicks."

Wonderful Feats With Turkeys Are Reported

Really wonderful results with turkeys are reported from the Ontario government turkey farm in Norfolk county. Years ago this province used to raise turkeys by the thousands but disease got in and flocks have been diminishing to such an extent that each year thousands of birds are brought in from the West. The disease puzzled people and except where there was unlimited range the raising of turkeys languished. Even in the places where there was plenty of range, such as in the rocky districts on the edge of forest lands, difficulties in the shape of foxes and wolves were encountered. It looked for a while as if there would be practically no turkeys raised in Ontario. But Prof. W. R. Graham took hold of the thing and he soon found out that the disease came from the ground and the germs were so hardy that they could live over in the coldest weather. He adopted the plan of feeding everything in troughs and moving these troughs each day and his results have been unusually successful. Losses have been light on the experimental turkey farm and some excellent birds raised.

Poultry Notes

* It pays to worm the poultry. *
* It requires 21 days to hatch hen eggs. *
* Care must be taken that chicks do not crowd in corners and smother. *
* Shut the sheep in at night, allowing them to bed in the corral or shed. *
* Coccidiosis usually occurs in young chicks from two to six weeks of age. *
* When the poulters are about eight weeks old, they can be removed to the rearing ground. *
* Tapeworms have been named as the cause of death of 50 per cent of the chickens in some flocks. *
* Changing breeds every year has never yet been found a safe foundation for a profitable poultry business. *
* A month lost in growing out pullets means the loss of a month's production next fall when eggs are a good price. *
* Any variety of wheat is good for poultry. In fact, small undeveloped shriveled wheat if dry is even better than the fully developed kernel. *
* The farmer who produces eggs of uniform color, weighing an average of 23 ounces per dozen, and which are held in a cool cellar, can ship to eastern markets by express to advantage. *
* The profit from the farm flock depends to a large extent on the number of eggs the hens lay. *
* Hens cannot lay eggs without protein. Skim milk is one of the best forms of protein for use with all classes of poultry. *
* Mongrel geese plucked regularly yield one pound of feathers a year. Pure-bred geese yield twice as many and, besides the good prices of feathers obtained, the goose is worth as

Man in Africa First
Africa's claims for credit as the source of race and language have inspired various academic expeditions into the country. Several years ago there was published a scholarly work upon the African theory which sought to trace this influence over to America in the days long before the coming of Columbus—indeed, before America became a separate continent. It is now well established that man existed in Africa when Europe was under ice.
