

History Of Dallas Continued From Last Week

"Jerry quoted 'Uncle Vere' very often. He would generally finish a sentence with 'as Uncle Vere said.' A common answer to a salutation as 'How are you, Jerry?' would be 'Forked end downwards,' Dr. Robinson, who married Polina Fuller, Uncle Vere's oldest daughter, Jerry's cousin, could never get over laughing about Jerry's forked end downwards.

"Elder Griffin Lewis was an early settler there. He lived in Jackson township near Huntsville. He was the only minister among us for many years. He was a large, stalwart Vermont—a man of impeccable honesty and integrity, and exemplary Christians. He was not noted for his eloquence, but for his solid good sense, and among his neighbors a peace-maker. He married Hannah Rogers, sister of Dr. Rogers' father, elder of Joel Rogers. He has two sons James and Jonah. The latter is now living at Battle Creek, Mich. James died a few years since in Detroit. Aged 84, he married one of his daughters. One married Captain T. O. Bogardus; one married Palmer Brown (she is still living, 1886); the youngest married Thomas Worthington.

"As you wish me to say something about myself, I was the third son of Jacob I. Bogardus; was born in Lehman (or Bedford as it was then) September 15th, 1813, five days after the fourteen I went to the city of New York where my father apprenticed me to the saddle and harness trade. I re-battle of Lake Erie. At the age of 21 I remained in the city for about five years after which I returned to Lehman and work on the farm. The first office I ever held was Constable. I had an execution in favor of Joseph Worthington against McCarty (I forget his first name). (Probably Edward). He turned out his only cow. Mrs. McCarty came out with tears in her eyes and said it was her only cow. I told her to keep her cow until I called for it. I laid the case before Mr. Worthington. He directed me not to sell it. I thought of that as the business of a constable, to be the instruments of the law to distress the poor, I had enough of that glory. I resigned and John Linskill was appointed by the court as my successor. I shortly after left for Philadelphia and entered in the employ of J. M. Botton & Co. as shipping clerk in a forwarding and commission business. I remained with them three years. In the spring of 1833 my father removed to Kalamazoo, Mich. I followed him in next December with a bright prospect of entering into the mercantile business, but was disappointed by false promises. In 1840 I returned to Pennsylvania, stopped at Williamsport, and through the kindness of a good friend, I obtained a situation as a book-keeper for John B. Hall & Co. In November following I was married to Miss Louise, only daughter of Truman and Clarissa Atherton. At the earnest solicitations of my wife's father I left Williamsport in the spring of 1841 and took charge of his farm. Remained on the farm seven years (as long as Jacob worked for his wife). My old friend G. M. Hollemback said to me several times, when I met him in Wilkes-Barre: Mr. Bogardus, it seems to me you could do better than work on the farm. I thought perhaps he had something for me so I would see what it was. I told him I thought I could, and wished I could see an opening. Said I, perhaps you have one. He said he had and invited me to his office. He then unfolded me his plan, viz., to rent me his old ware house, put me up a store at canal basin (on the same ground where now stands the new L. V. R. R. depot in Wilkes-Barre). He had thrown a pall of cold water on me. I could not have received a more sudden chill. I could see even living in it but he assured me there was money in it; and knowing him to be a good business man, I trusted in his judgement, which proved to be correct. The first year by strict attention to business and by the help of my good wife I found, at the close of navigation the following fall, I had accumulated $1200 over and above my living; and house rent and had built up a paying business. I re-tailed in one year 15,000 bushels of oats. My prices for hay and oats, corn and chop governed the market. I introduced the first dray in Wilkes-Barre, drawn by a large bay horse weighing between 1700 and 1800 pounds. Joe Keller was drayman. My business was always prosperous, and my business relations with the people of Wilkes-Barre and the surrounding country were almost of the most pleasant kind, and it does me good when I visit my old home to receive so many hearty greetings.

Farm Calendar

Remove Honey From Hive—Comb honey should not be left in the hive very long after it is sealed, especially at the close of the honey flow. The bees will continue to add propolis to the sections and will stain them as long as they remain in the hive.

Grow Well-Bred Cows—"Safe," "sure" and "cheap" are terms which may be applied to dairy cows when home-raised, provided they are of good breeding, from healthy cows, and well grown.

Cull the Poor Layers—Although culling can be practiced as soon as the chicks are hatched, nearly 40 per cent. of an average flock of hens will probably have to be culled between June and September. By eliminating the poor producers which quit early in spite of proper feeding and management, less labor and feed will be needed to obtain equal returns from the flock.

Plant Late Vegetables—Among the garden crops which can be planted in late July and early August are endive, kale, kohlrabi, lettuce, radishes, late turnips and spinach. Keep the garden working for the family larder.

Take Care of Flowers—Dahlias require plenty of water and close cultivation. Remove surplus buds to insure beautiful blooms. A dressing of bone meal will prove beneficial.

Feed the Berry Patch—Strawberry beds will develop stronger and more productive runner plants if sidedressed with nitrate of soda and superphosphate.

Protect the Potatoes—Flea beetles can be controlled by spraying with arsenate, say State College entomologists. Add three or four pounds of the material to 100 gallons of bordeaux mixture.

To The Motoring Public!

The Wyoming Valley Motor Club and the Luzerne County Insurance Exchange deem it advisable to warn the motoring public against purchasing cheap substitutes for standard automobile insurance, whether sold directly as insurance or under the guise of so-called "Service Contracts." There are certain types of so-called SERVICE CONTRACTS which are sold by solicitors, who represent said contracts as substantially as of the same nature as insurance contracts. Said solicitors, according to affidavits which we have been able to collect, represent the said contracts as furnishing indemnity or protection against claims resulting from accidents involving bodily injury, property damage, fire, theft and collision losses.

When the said contracts are actually delivered, which is always after payment has been made in advance, they are found not to furnish any of the foregoing forms of protection.

The standard so-called SERVICE CONTRACT issued by Gyp Clubs and some detective agencies provides:

(a) That, if your car is stolen, the service company will TRY TO GET IT BACK FOR YOU, but IT WILL NOT PAY FOR THE VALUE OF THE STOLEN AUTOMOBILE.

(b) That, if your car is damaged by collision with another automobile, the service company will TRY TO RECOVER A SUM FROM THE OWNER OF THE OTHER AUTOMOBILE, BUT FAILING TO COLLECT FROM SAID THIRD PARTY, the said service company WILL NOT PAY YOU FOR YOUR DAMAGE.

(c) That, if your car causes personal injury or property damage of third party and claim is made against you for damages, the service company WILL DEFEND A LAWSUIT, BUT IF THE VERDICT GOES AGAINST YOU THE SERVICE COMPANY WILL NOT PAY A LOSS.

Many persons purchased the above described form of contract upon representation that they are buying insurance. Do not allow yourself to be fooled. Buy only sound insurance from reputable companies and agents; and, if in doubt, consult the Secretary of the Wyoming Valley Motor Club, the officers of the Luzerne County Insurance Exchange, or your own insurance agent.
