FARMERS KILL 215 DEER ON PLEA OF CROP DESERTION

Following unprecedented slaughter of deer reported to have been destroying crops, field officers of the Game Commission have been directed to investigate fully all such cases. During September 215 deer were reported killed by farmers as compared with seventy-nine in the same month last year.

Farmers who kill deer and fail to report each one are liable to the same fine as an illegal hunter.

Officers also have been instructed to report existence of salt licks near the borders of fields where farmers have been killing deer.

PLENTY OF LAND

Although offers of forest tracts whose value will far exceed the $1,000,000 available for land purchase are already on file, owners continue to flood the State Forest Commission with additional offers. Sale contracts for seventy-nine tracts already have been approved.

First Snow of Season Thursday

The heavy snow flurries of Thursday were quite surprising to many of us newer residents from the standpoint of age, but to many old timers who recall snows this early in October, it was not a novelty for time of year.

Many persons interviewed remember the heavy snow storm which visited this section in October of 1890, when several inches was recorded.

However, on Thursday, for a period of about an hour, the storm started out "a la blizzard" and covered the ground with a nice blanket of about one half inch deep. Of course, Old 29 came out shortly after and quickly melted it.
