forty years,' etc.

"Now ejectment is a possessory action, and the writ avers that the defendant is in possession, while the right of possession remains in the plaintiff who brings the suit. Certainly this is not established by showing that the plaintiff is actually in possession, and has been for the last forty years. The referee concludes his report by finding in favor of the plaintiff for the land described in the writ. We are utterly at a loss to understand how a judgment in ejectment can be either entered or enforced in favor of a party shown by the evidence to have been in actual and peaceful possession, not only at the time of bringing the suit, but for forty years previous thereto.

"Apprehending, however, that we may possibly not rightly understand the meaning of the referee, we refer the case back to him, with the remark that if his statement of the facts is precisely what he intends, there would seem to be no cause of action.

"Stanley Woodward, Judge."
Later the referee filed a supplemental report on the re-reference, wherein he rebuts the inference of the plaintiff's possession from that part of his former report quoted in the opinion of the court, and again awards the disputed land to the plaintiff. Accompanying his supplemental report the referee handed to Judge Woodward the following extra-judicial vindication of the true intent of the former finding:

"Luzerne County, ss:

"Epyher vs. Hoover. No. 200, January Term, 1883. Ejectment. Supplemental "History of the Case."

They made me a referee
In a land case uncommonly long-winded,
An ill wind that blew a good fee,
Because for a fee they contended.

And I said to myself, my report
Is lucid, at least to my own mind;
And when it goes up to court,
On the usual exceptions, tho' stone blind.

Dame Justice will see what I mean;
But wit, too, is blinding by flashes,
And a stroke of it might intervene,
Should she lay the law down on my dashes.

And behold, in a finding of fact,
The Judge found—bad luck to my dashes—
The plaintiff possessed of the tract,
And then follows his wit, with its flashes:

"Possessed of the piece in dispute,
What more could a plaintiff desire?
At the time he started the suit,
And upwards for forty years prior."

Did it take me ten days to find out,
With a cursory sort of digression,
What the whole blasted case was about,
And who was in peaceful possession?

There were acres one hundred and three—
Perchance more—altogether, were aching
To get a small slice of the fee,
And the title to three, it was taking.

The plaintiff one hundred possessed!
But his deeds called for three in addition!
He ought to be sorely distressed,
But, dear Judge, I don't mean in perdition.

I said what I meant and I meant
What I said, and I say that I said it,
It is not what I wrote I repeat,
But the cursory way that you read it.

The defendant's attorney he took
Two days my dull mind to enlighten,
Oh! the fists in my face that he shook,
To inform me, you see, not to frighten.

Now he claims that my report is sent back,
That the case may again be gone over,
How the side of Old Laughter will crack,
When that Bull gets again in the clover.

But I think I can stand the attack,
At ten dollars a day, till it ended;
To go up again and come back
On a teeter like that is just splendid.

How fine to ascend and descend
On that see-saw aforesaid a-straddle
With law points to boot at each end,
And myself, as it were, in the saddle.
Respectfully submitted,
D. M. JONES.
To the Honorable Stanley Woodward, Judge.

A very pleasant party was tendered Miss Evelyn Louise Deater at her home at Laketon on Thursday evening. The occasion was Miss Deater's birthday anniversary. Games, music and dancing were the chief diversions of the evening and a dainty lunch was served at a late hour. Those present were: Josephine Higgins, Violet Higgins, George Smith, Jr., Grover Anderson, Ella Crispell, Dorothy Grey, Walter Hanibal, Miss M. Williams, C. McHose, Pauline Davis, Mary Higgins, Fred Swanson, Katherine Kerr, Esther Jackson, Raymond Grey, Mrs. Elmer Kerr, Mrs. Derby, Henrietta Deater, Thomas Deater, Alice, Reynold, Henry, Elmer and Mr. and Mrs. David Deater. Miss Evelyn received many beautiful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kitchen entertained Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jackson and daughter Ruth at dinner on Thursday evening.

An improvement worthy of note has been made in the laboratory of the school. Three heavy white pine tables have been placed along the left side of the room, with stools which can be placed under them when not in use. This enables each student to perform his own experiment.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harlos called on Mrs. A. J. Garinger on Sunday afternoon.

The boys' varsity of Laketon high school played the William Penn Juniors at basketball on Friday evening and won by a large margin. The Juniors and Sophomores, who recently organized class teams, also played and the Juniors won. The ex-high team or Sandy Beach Five, defeated the William Penn Reserves.

Mrs. Edgar Stem entertained her Larkin club at a very pleasant party on Wednesday evening. Games and music were the chief diversions of the evening, followed by refreshments. Those present: Mrs. Frank Jackson, Mrs. Fred Davis, Mrs. Alfred Rogers, Mrs. Harvey Kitchen, Mrs. Adda Garinger, Mrs. D. P. Thomas, Mrs. A. A. Allen, Bethia Allen, Ruth Jackson, Otis Allen, Philip Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stem. We wonder why Phil Thomas and Otis Allen were there!

James Altemus has been confined to his home for the past week due to illness.

The Ladies' Aid Society was entertained by Miss Emma Odenkirchen and Mrs. Michael Getzman in the church dining room on Thursday afternoon. A tasty lunch was served following the regular business meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baer and family and Mr. and Mrs. John Barry spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Searfoss.

The employees of A. L. Stull have been busy the past week moving the paraphernalia to Mountain Springs in preparation for the ice harvest, which is a big event each year.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harlos and daughters, Ruth and Alberta, of Kingston, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Garinger and family.

Joel Kieper is on the sick list. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Higgins and daughter of Plymouth and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keener of Kingston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Higgins.

Miss Iris Kitchen, a student nurse in Wilkes-Barre General hospital, entertained Miss Jean Eckner at her home on Sunday.

William Crispell, who has been employed in Detroit for the last few months, is spending some time with his sister, Mrs. Stephen Ward.

Marjorie Kitchen is confined to her home with a severe cold.

Arthur Lloyd is now employed by the Wyoming Baking Company. Arthur likes his new position very well.

David Morris, Allan Wilson and Edward Wilson motored to Falls recently on business.

Miss Louise Stevens spent Sunday as a guest of Miss Helen Erhet at Luzerne recently.

Mrs. Bridget Clarey is visiting her daughter, Mrs. David Morris, Sr., at Luzerne.

Ain't Science Wonderful?

Veterinarians have discovered, according to Farm and Fireside, how to remove the bark from a dog and the bleat from a goat. It remains only for them to eliminate the mosquito's bite and the bee's sting to make country life practically 100 per cent perfect.
