Joseph Grundy Fought Child Labor Bills

Charles E. Fox, Former District Attorney of Philadelphia, Records Grundy's Activities in 1915 Legislature

People do not forget, and records do not lie, declared Charles Edwin Fox, former district attorney of Philadelphia, in a strong statement in which he directed attention to the real attitude of Joseph R. Grundy, who seeks to remain in the United States Senate, toward child labor. Mr. Fox narrated Grundy's actions at Harrisburg when this legislation was being enacted, against Grundy's vehement protests.

Mr. Fox vigorously challenged Grundy's claim that he was a friend of the Child Labor Bill, and that he is a friend of labor under any conditions.

Instead of displaying a friendly attitude toward the measure when it was before the legislature in 1915, Mr. Fox characterized Grundy as its "most vehement, violent and unrelenting enemy," and he refers to records to bear out his statement.

True to the standard that has invariably marked his long career, Joseph R. Grundy, in 1915, placed the interests of the manufacturers and industrialists above everything, said Mr. Fox, and had his will prevailed the Child Labor bill would have been defeated and the mills, factories and sweat shops would still be crowded with children of immature minds and bodies.

"Mr. Grundy's remarks on child labor," Mr. Fox said, "remind one of what the old-fashioned lawyer used to call a 'plea in confession and avoidance.'"

"The Child Labor bill was finally enacted over his violent opposition in the 1915 Legislature. Now study what the Grundy pamphlet recently issued says about it.

"1. He refers to what the 1905 Legislature did. (It did next to nothing.)"

"2. A long review of why the Philadelphia North American, as far back as 1900, hated Grundy and coined the word 'Grundysism.'"

"3. Some comments on the North American's agitation against Edwin M. Bigelow of Pittsburgh."

"4. Some dubious explanations as to why the Child Labor bill failed in 1913."

"5. A review of the Compensation bill as finally passed Governor Brumbaugh's administration."

"In other words, nearly a thousand words written under caption, 'Child Labor,' and there is not a paragraph, directly or indirectly, on what Mr. Grundy really did or did not do when the Child Labor bill was being passed by the 1915 Legislature."

"There is ample reason for this silence on Mr. Grundy's part, because he could not, in truth, utter a word to support his contention that he was a friend of the Child Labor bill. He was its most vehement, violent and unrelenting enemy."

Character To Be Basis of Legion Award

Black Diamond Post American Legion Will Present Medal to Outstanding Eighth Grade Boy in Dallas

Official American Legion School Award will be given by Black Diamond Post, No. 395, of Kingston, to the boy in the eighth grade of Dallas schools who is considered by his schoolmates the best candidate for the honor. Similar awards will be made throughout the Greater West Side from which the Kingston post draws its members.

Eighth grade teachers are urged to communicate immediately with George Stookey, chairman of the Black Diamond Post Americanism committee and a member of the State and National Americanism committees. Mr. Stookey is planning the contest. Communications to him may be sent to American Legion Home, Market street, Kingston.

Students to compete for the award will be nominated by the teachers and will be elected by the students. The medals, three inches in diameter and bearing the motto, "For God and Country," will be awarded at the regular meeting of Black Diamond Post on Friday, June 13. Parents of the students honored will be invited to attend the meeting.

Basis of the awards follows:
 Honor—Strength and stability of character; high standards of conduct; keen sense of what is right; adherence to truth and conscience and devotion to duty and practice of clean speech.

Courage—Bravery in the face of opposition and danger, and grit to stand up for the right and do one's duty.

Scholarship—Scholastic attainment; evidence of industry and application in studies.

Leadership—Ability to lead and to accomplish through group action.

No Relocation Of New Highway

Sordoni Says New Highway Planned For Dallas Will Go Where Citizens Want It To Go

During the past several months there has been considerable discussion in Dallas concerning a proposed new State road to be built through Dallas borough over a route other than that which is now followed by the State highway.

The construction of such a road would shunt through traffic off Main street, and it is believed by many would work a distinct harm to Dallas and its business institutions.

Business men and citizens alike have at times discussed the feasibility of forming some type of community organization to aggressively work against any move on the part of the State Highway Department to relocate the State highway through Dallas.

Yesterday the fears of local business men were set at rest when they called upon Senator A. J. Sordoni at his offices in Kingston and were given the following statement:

"TO the People of Dallas and Vicinity: It has come to my attention that certain political propaganda has been distributed in reference to a new concrete road being built through Dallas street.

Please do not pay any attention to idle rumors of this kind. So long as I am a Senator and road improvements that will be made in Dallas, or in the vicinity of Dallas, will be freely discussed with the people of that vicinity, and their wishes will be respected, and the road will go, insofar as in my power it may lie, in the location that the people of the district want it to go.

Sincerely,
 ANDREW J. SORDONI.

Dallas Drops Third In Row

Heights Swamps Dallas Athletics By 13 to 7 Score—Poor Management Blamed For Dallas Defeat

On big inning was all that was necessary to beat Dallas last week at the Coal street baseball diamond. Had Manager Cooke started to pitch Pazanski, Dallas would have had a victory to its credit today. In the first inning of last week's game the Heights boys pounded Demko all over the lot with five hits and three bases on balls. The bombardment occurred in the third inning again when Pointek, a former Dallas player, lifted a high one out to right centerfield for a home run with one on base. Bert Stitzer hit a beautiful tripe with two on the base lines in the Dallas part of the third inning. The line-up:

JUST AMONG US FANS

By CID
 There never was a base ball game,
 The truth you must confess—
 But what some bird? ? ? true, brother, true.

Heights had nothing on Dallas. Both teams displayed third class baseball.

But this week's game will be entirely different. A complete shake-up in the lineup will appear on the diamond. A bad inning.....v.....w; swinawmond with any number of new faces.

Sloppy fielding and timely hitting is correct, and mostly sloppy fielding. True, like any other pitcher, Demko had a bad inning, but we are of the opinion, like others who expressed their opinion, that Demko would prove his ability to pitch first class amateur baseball.

Pazanski shows better form each

PINCHOT'S RECORD

Pinchot employed non-union labor in the construction of State office building, despite protests of labor.

Pinchot closed State employment agencies by depriving them of funds and gave no consideration of the interests of the unemployed.

While State Forester, Pinchot practically stopped the planting of trees, but spent great sums of State funds in a publicly campaign to advertise himself in his contemplated effort to secure the nomination of Governor.

Pinchot violated his oath of office and the Constitution of Pennsylvania by resigning or Forester one day in order to be reappointed the next day at a greatly increased salary. The Constitution says:

"EXTENSION OF OFFICIAL TERMS AND INCREASE OF SALARIES PROHIBITED"

"Section 13. No law shall extend the term of any public officer, or increase or diminish his salary or emoluments, after his election or appointment."

Pinchot brought many outsiders into Pennsylvania and placed them in lucrative State jobs. He failed to recognize the men and women of Pennsylvania who supported him in his campaigns of 1922, 1924 and 1926.

Pinchot did nothing for the War Veterans, but during the war tried to break a lease on Washington property so he could rent it at great war-time profits.

Pinchot refused to recognize the public school system of Pennsylvania and set his son to a private school at Harrisburg, which he organized and operated under some fantastic new theory of child training.

Pinchot wants to abolish the Public Service Commission, but does not ask you to vote for candidates for the Legislature who would pledge themselves to support such a Ripper bill.

Pinchot cut appropriations to State hospitals, homes for feeble-minded and epileptics, sanatoria and State-aided hospitals over 25 per cent from what they had previously received, causing intense suffering to the working man and unfortunate poor. State property was in a pitiable condition when Pinchot left office and cost the State many millions to repair and improve.

Pinchot's depriving State institutions of funds was followed by riots at the Western Penitentiary and the Slatington School, because of the poor quality and lack of sufficient food served.

Pinchot promises the public to build more roads, but he advocates cutting fees that would reduce revenues for road building from such sources over 33 1-3 per cent a year. Does the public want the road construction and road maintenance program reduced to any such extent?

Pinchot used money from the fifty-million dollar Road Bond Issue in the construction for political purposes of a road in Bradford county, causing Paul D. Wright, Commissioner of Highways, to resign rather than break his word with the people that the road bond money would be used only on the primary road system.

In 1921 Governor Sproul approved an appropriation of over twelve million dollars for highway construction, but on account of high prices following the war, he stopped use of appropriations. It was a good piece of financial economy on the part of Sproul. In 1923, Pinchot was Governor and used this Sproul appropriation, claiming credit for the work done through it, but charging it as a financial liability against the Sproul administration. This money, which Pinchot used, was part of the mythical deficit which he still harps on.

The only major measure passed under Pinchot was the administrative code, which greatly increased the number of job-holders and gave Pinchot almost unlimited control of the State Government.

Pinchot did not lift a hand to assist labor to improve the Workmen's Compensation Law and because of his indifference amendments suggested in the interest of the working men and women of the State failed to pass the Legislature.

Pinchot is worth many millions of dollars. How many men in Pennsylvania do his millions employ? Not one. Does he live in Pennsylvania? He does not. He lives in Washington and only uses Pennsylvania when he wants office.

Pinchot spent all of the $50,000,000 road bond issue, but did not appropriate a cent from the general fund for road construction purposes, as previous Governors were forced to do. Salaries were paid from funds which were previously devoted for road building.

In the session of 1927 it was necessary to have appropriated $4,374,522 to pay the debts left by the Pinchot administration.

Pinchot talks about "security in office for competent teachers," yet he dropped Dr. Finegan, State Superintendent of Schools, who did more to raise the standards of our public schools than any other man. He afterwards demanded the resignation of his successor, Dr. George J. Becht while he was lying dangerously ill in a hospital.

Pinchot's parsimonious program at Harrisburg led him to insist on the construction of an inadequate boiler room at the State Capitol to save expense. The boiler, which was not installed according to State regulations, exploded and two men were scalded to death. The Dauphin County Coronor's Jury found the Pinchot administration responsible for the lives of the two workmen.

Archie Butt, in his "Letters," reports Colonel Theodore Roosevelt as saying that Pinchot "had to be spanked every so often." May 20th is the time to administer the spanking.

PINCHOT CHEATED THE CONSTITUTION

The story of how Gifford Pinchot evaded the Constitution of Pennsylvania for his own personal financial profit is one of the sordid pictures of his career.

Pinchot got $3,000 by one of the cheapest and most contemptible subterfuges and he revealed himself as a technical raider of the State treasury in ignoring the plain intent and purpose of the Constitution.

This was when, by appealing to the then Governor William C. Sproul he took advantage of an act of Legislature increasing certain salaries so that he could grab the increase.

The Constitution says: "No law shall extend the term of any public officer, or increase or diminish his salary emoluments after his election or appointment."

Pinchot resigned as Commissioner of Forestry, at $5,000 a year, on May 31, 1921.

The next day, June 1, 1921, Gifford Pinchot was reappointed Commissioner of Forestry at $8,000 a year.

The original checks, now in the archives at Harrisburg, prove this. The check, made out to Pinchot for the half of the month ending May 31, 1921, reveals that Pinchot drew $208.33. This was at the old salary of $5,000 per year.

The check for the first half of the month of June reveals that Pinchot drew $333.33. This was on the basis of the salary of $8,000, which he was not morally entitled to under the intent of the Constitution.

Although he was a rich man, as he is today, Gifford Pinchot had no scruples against this despicable form of cheating the State Constitution. He, better than any other person, may well say, "What is the Constitution between friends?"

Those who are familiar with the history of the affair have declared that when the matter was broached to Governor Sproul he was amazed. He is quoted as saying:

"Do you mean to tell me that Pinchot really wants me to do this?"

The whole purpose of the Constitutional restriction in Article 3, Section 13, was to prevent any officials from voting themselves or having voted to them any increase in salary or to continue themselves in office in violation of public rights.

Dallas Tops Rural League

Game At Noxen Is Utter Rout With Dallas On Heavy End of 28 to 5 Score

After being held to five scattered hits by the tail-end Idetown club two weeks ago, the Dallas boys found their batting eye last Saturday against Noxen and rapped the offerings of Case to all corners of the lot to win by the one-sided score of 28-5.

In the early innings it looked like an old-time battle, but a few bad breaks soon took the heart out of the Noxen club and gave Dallas enough confidence to play like big leaguers. This does not mean that Noxen won't be in the pennant chase. It was just one of those days when the breaks go the other way and with such stars in the lineup as Lou Hackling, Turner, Case, Gayley, VanCampe, Horlacher and Krmelbein, there is no question but that the club will be heard from later.

East Dallas Defeats Idetown
 Fernman Wilson's East Dallas nine kept up its winning streak at the expense of Idetown, but had a fight on its hands to win by the slim margin of 5 to 4.

Alderson Defeats Beaumont
 Beaumont lost its third straight game when Alderson took them into camp by a 16 to 13 score. The Beaumont management lays its defeat to bad ground conditions and let it be known that things will be different when Alderson goes to Beaumont.

Last Saturday's Results
 Dallas 28, Noxen 5.
 Alderson 16, Beaumont 13.
 East Dallas 5, Idetown 4.

League Standing

Team	Won	Lost
Dallas	3	0
Noxen	2	1
Alderson	2	1
East Dallas	2	1
Beaumont	0	3
Idetown	0	3

LeGrand Auditor Council Elects

Votes To Retain a Same Tax Millage as Last Year—Takes Over Two Parish Heights Streets

At a special meeting of Dallas borough council held last night in the borough building, Lewis LeGrand was elected auditor to fill the office left vacant by Harry Mannear, who has moved to Buffalo, N. Y.

Council also voted to take over two streets in the aParrish Heights section, namely, Davenport street and Parrish street. These streets will be improved during the summer, although they will not be made into hard surface roads.

It was also voted that the borough retain the same tax millage as last year, 15 mills borough tax, 3 1/2 mill light tax and 2 1/2 mills sinking fund.

Although assessors are re-valuing all property in Dallas to bring about an equalization, the taxation for Dallas borough will be about the same as last year, since there will be no general increase in property valuations.

After voting the payment of bills to borough employees, council adjourned. All members attended the meeting with the exception of Councilman Hallock.

WILD ANIMALS DO NOT NEED HELP TO REAR THEIR YOUNG

A wild animal watches its young and needs no assistance from human beings in caring for them.

That was the suggestion offered by officers of the Game Commission to those who pick up young animals and birds and take them home in the belief that they have been lost.

Such young ones, officers said, were temporarily abandoned by the mother at the approach of a human being and should not be touched.

Although a fawn is one of the most difficult of all small wild animals to locate in the woods, instances have been reported where they have been picked up by persons strolling in the woods.

Possession of a wild animal of any kind that is protected by a closed season is punishable by fines.

PURCHASES ISAACS HOMESTEAD

Warren G. Yiesley of Kingston has completed negotiations for the purchase of the Isaacs homestead in Dallas township, located on the Fernbrook-Jackson road. The property includes the home, garage and about five acres of land known as the Old Orchard.

Mr. Yiesley, who is official court stenographer for Luzerne county court of Common Pleas, will move his family into their new home within the next two weeks.

Mr. Yiesley is a good citizen and will be welcomed to our community. During the past several weeks Dallas and vicinity has been favored as the futures homes of almost a score of good families from the valley section.

Huntsville Christian Church

The sermon theme, "What Made Pentecost Possible," anticipates the Pentecost celebration on June 8 of the 1900th birthday of the church. This service at 9:30 will be followed by the Bible school.

The record of A. J. Sordoni speaks for itself. In his present campaign he is running independently and is not linked with either of the major State political groups in the Republican party.—adv.

Township Boys Get Letters At Annual Banquet

Eighty-five Persons Attend Colorful Affair Held Wednesday Night At Township Vocational School

Good sportsmanship was the theme and red and white were the favorite colors Wednesday night when members of boys' and girls' athletic teams of Dallas township vocational school received their letters at the annual football banquet for work done on the football field and basketball court.

The affair was one of the finest ever held in the school building and attracted more than eighty-five students, parents, friends and faculty members.

The evening's program was opened with an excellent dinner served by the girls of the domestic science department of the school. Throughout the evening there was group singing, after dinner speeches, musical numbers and readings.

The wide hallway on the second floor of the school building was beautifully decorated in the red and white colors of the school and here the banquet table was placed with its colorful lamps and decorations and laden with good things to eat.

After the invocation by Rev. G. Elston Ruff pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Shavertown, America was sung by the assemblage.

Prof. Girton, principal of the school, introduced the toastmaster, Prof. Calvin McHose, principal of Lake township schools. Mr. McHose capably carried out his work and added much to the success of the program with his witty remarks and introductions of the speakers.

Prof. McGeehan, athletic director of the football, baseball and basketball teams of Hazleton, and a man who has coached Hazleton basketball teams to a State championship, gave an excellent talk on the qualities which make a good athlete. An important point which he brought out in his talk was that the best athletes and the men that every coach likes to have report out for a sport are the athletes who are high ranking students in their school studies.

Rev. G. Elston Ruff spoke on Good Sportsmanship and the part it plays in winning athletic contests and playing the game of life. He likened life to a baseball game with Character, Training, Religion as players and with Life as the pitcher hurling the ball of Opportunity to the individual at bat. The man who makes a success of life must hit the ball squarely. To circle the bases he must have character, courage, strength and training.

Prof. Kester of the vocational school faculty gave a brief resume of the football season, relating incidents from the more important games and giving the highlights of the season.

Prof. Girton introduced the members of the township school board to the assemblage and presented the letters to the team members. As each boy came forward to receive his letter, Prof. Girton related some anecdote regarding the player's ability, prospects as an athlete or accomplishment during the season.

During the course of his address Prof. Girton announced that first steps will be taken toward the formation of a Dallas township Parent-Teacher Association on Monday night, May 19, when parents and teachers are invited to attend an organization meeting at the home of Mrs. John Girvan on Claude street, Dallas.

Interspersed between the addresses there were musical selections and recitations, "Doc" Laycock of Shavertown sang "I Were a Rose," and a trio composed of Messrs. Laycock, Girton and Adler sang "I've Been Working on the Railroad," as an encore they sang a sacred number. A piano solo was given by Elizabeth Newman, an eighth grade student of the school. Jean and Jessie Ritchie gave a piano duet and Bertha Updyke gave a reading.

Those who received letters were: Football—Thomas Morris, captain; Harry Ross, Merle Anderson, Elwood Spencer, Bruce Spencer, Robert Girvan, George Fetzter, Roymond Carlin, Clark Fowler, Alex Matukaitus, William Butler.

Basketball—Thomas Morris, Harry Ross, Merle Anderson, Robert Phillips, Edmund Tanona, Alex Matukaitus, William Butler.

Girls—Helen Spencer, Marion Kunkle, Elizabeth Girvan, Mildred Nulton, Margaret Lanco, Mildred Mildred Hoyt, Doris Lauderbach and Grace Honeywell.

ROTARIANS ATTEND ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Dallas Club Will Be Well Represented At Williamsport

A number of local men, members of Dallas Rotary Club, attended the annual district conference of Rotary clubs of the fifty-first district which opened yesterday morning in Williamsport and will close Friday night with the governors'
