CAROLE LOMBARD

CAROLE LOMBARD was reared with two brothers who took her training in hand at a very early age, according to their own ideas of what a sister—usually a necessary evil—should be like. Naturally they thought she should be as much as possible like her brothers. So Carole was laughed at if she played dolls, ridiculed if she cried and left at home alone if she tattled.

Perhaps you can guess what hobbies she developed. By the time she was sixteen she could sail a boat, ride a horse and swim and dive as well as the other Lombards and could beat them two sets out of three on the tennis court.

The fact that she grew up slim and blonde and fragile looking in spite of all these activities was something over which the brothers had no control.

When, in her last year at a Los Angeles high school, Carole decided to enter the movies, she went about it with the same thoroughness with which she had mastered sports.

Tirelessly and with a determination that left no room for discouragement she studied voice pitch, make-up, gestures, clothes, mannerisms and coiffures. She never cherished the idea that her looks—which by that time were quite an item—would be sufficient to send her far in pictures.

She has earned a reputation as one of the best-dressed women in Hollywood but she denies that clothes are a hobby. "Clothes are a business," she says. "They should be a very serious business to every woman whether she likes them or not. I do not regard shopping as a pleasure, but I do it as carefully as I do my work at the studio."

She makes very sure that her figure, which many experts call flawless, remains at its 108 pounds. She has never dieted, however, and thinks that the "fad" diets which exclude candy and other wholesome and necessary foods are foolish and dangerous. Exercise and sane, well-balanced meals are the clue, she thinks, to slenderness as well as health.

Books for the Blind

Through American Red Cross Chapters, 3,827 volumes of novels, class books and others, transcribed into braille for blind readers, have been added to libraries, in the past year. These books are to be obtained through the Library of Congress and city libraries. This activity, carried on by a great number of devoted women volunteers in Red Cross Chapters, had its inception in preparing books for war blinded.

TRAP NEST YOUR HENS

By J. H. Bodwell

More and more poultrymen are trap nesting their birds, especially during the winter months.

Of course, it takes more time, but it is more profitable to keep less birds and trap nest them than to keep a few more birds with the same labor and do no trap nesting.

The following advantages of trap nesting should certainly receive the consideration of the poultrymen.

1. Eliminate loafers accurately, thus tending to increase profit.
2. Eliminate mortality to a great extent as culls will be found and disposed of while they can still be sold for meat.
3. Eliminate crowding in nests. Pullets can keep quiet and are not bothered by other birds while laying.
4. Helps eliminate loss from pick outs. The oviduct returns to position before the bird is released so it does not invite other birds to pick. If a little hemorrhage starts from laying the egg, the vent will be dry before bird is freed.
5. Helps to prevent early molt for the bird's condition will be watched more, closely and if she is poor in flesh she will be fed to overcome this.
6. Eliminates monthly and periodic culling.
7. Know which birds to keep the second year.

SHERIFF'S SALE

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1931, AT 10 A. M.

By virtue of a writ of F. Fa. No. 29, December Term, 1931, issued out of the Court of Common Pleas of Luzerne County, to me directed, there will be exposed to public sale by vendue to the highest and best bidders, for cash, at the Sheriff's Sales Room, Court House, in the City of Wilkes-Barre, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, on Friday, the 27th day of November, 1931, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the said day, all the right, title and interest of the defendants in and to the following described lot, piece or parcel of land, viz:

All that certain piece of land in the Township of Kingston, County of Luzerne and State of Pennsylvania, bounded and described as follows: BEGINNING at a corner of land of William Mission on the public road or old turnpike road; thence along said public road North thirty eight degrees, forty-five minutes West Three and eighty-five one hundredths (3.85) perches to a corner; thence North fifty-one degrees East, ten and four tenths (10.4) perches to a corner; thence South thirty-eight degrees forty-five minutes East three and eighty-five one hundredths (3.85) perches to a corner of land of William Mission, and thence along said Mission land South fifty-one degrees West, ten and four tenths (10.4) perches to the beginning.
