

Foresters Honor Washington Day

Foresters in the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, which is co-operating in the nation-wide celebration of the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth, have made numerous tree plantings in various parts of the State and have dedicated them as Washington bi-centennial memorials.

An ornamental planting, considered unique and particularly appropriate to honor the memory of the Father of Our Country, was made under the supervision of District Forester Henry B. Phillips, with headquarters in McConnellsburg, at the Siding Hill Public Camp, Fulton county, in the Buchanan State Forest District. Thirteen large hemlocks, the State Tree of Pennsylvania, representing the thirteen original colonies were set out in a huge circle. Each tree was planted by a citizen of the State that the tree represents.

Phillips claims there was no difficulty in getting tree planters from the thirteen states, inasmuch as Siding Hill is along the Lincoln Highway, and tourists having automobile license plates of the states were stopped and requested to participate in the ceremonies. Without exception they were pleased to do so.

New Hampshire and Georgia were the two states from which Phillips found it hard to get tree planters. Fortunately, he remembered in time that his wife Julia Tillman Phillips, a relative of United States Senator Tillman, was originally a citizen of Georgia, and so that problem was solved.

A Washington memorial tree planting in that section of Fulton county is particularly appropriate, inasmuch as President Washington traveled that way on his return from Fort Bedford to Philadelphia at the time of the Whiskey Insurrection in 1794. Phillips recalled that his great-grandfather, Alexander Philson, was one of the leading insurrectionists. He was captured and imprisoned in Philadelphia as a result of this trouble, though later in more peaceful years he served in the State Legislature. In view of these circumstances Phillips feels that he had done the memory of George Washington a good turn for more reasons than one.

Sunday School Leaders Plan Big Meeting

Sunday School leaders throughout the World are turning their thoughts to the eleventh World's Sunday School Convention, which will be held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, next July 25-31.

This will be the first time a world religious gathering has ever been held south of the equator. The Christians of Brazil are making plans for the comfort and the entertainment of their guests coming from the four corners of the earth.

The government has granted the use of that magnificent building, the municipal theatre, for the Convention sessions.

Various local committees have been at work doing their part to make it an event long to be remembered. They have prepared a program of sight-seeing in addition to that supplied by the Tourist Agencies. There will be banquets which will add to the joy and fellowship and mutual understanding of those from the many nations represented.

Throughout all of South America, and especially in Brazil are local committees working up delegations to this great Convention.

The Convention theme is "O Christo Vivo" which in Portuguese is "The Living Christ" which expresses the central purpose of Christian Education everywhere, and the seven days program, including all the theme and will be discussed by program participants in Portuguese and English from fifty-four nations of the World.

A special youth program has been prepared and this World Council of Youth will have sessions on five days of the Convention, ending with a banquet by the young people from many countries of the World.

Agency will hold an important part of the evening sessions and Sunday, during the Convention, will be given to visiting the various Christian Churches of Rio.

Various interesting tours have been planned for those attending the Convention. Some of these of ten weeks duration covering both coasts of South America with a trip across the mighty Andes points for from $85.00 to $905.00 and shorter trips, just down with a stop at Bermuda, two weeks in Rio and home by way of Trinidad at a cost of $300.00 up and practically all expenses paid while on sea and land and including sight-seeing, English speaking guides, etc.

Mr. H. C. Heckerman of Bedford, Pa., a vice-president of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association, has been placed in charge of information and registrations for Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware and he informs us that minimum and medium priced space is already becoming a problem; mentioning that Pennsylvania with more than 50 registrations on February 1st was leading all other states in registrations.

Business Beans

THE man with a business bean knows that he has to store up enough energy to last him through a business day. These days are busy now, so he buys beans. In fact, the male of the species has been buying beans in one form or another ever since those youthful days when he went about with his pockets bulging with beans for ammunition to shoot in that trusty weapon once known as a "slingshot" and now dubbed a "beanie."

Valuable Energy

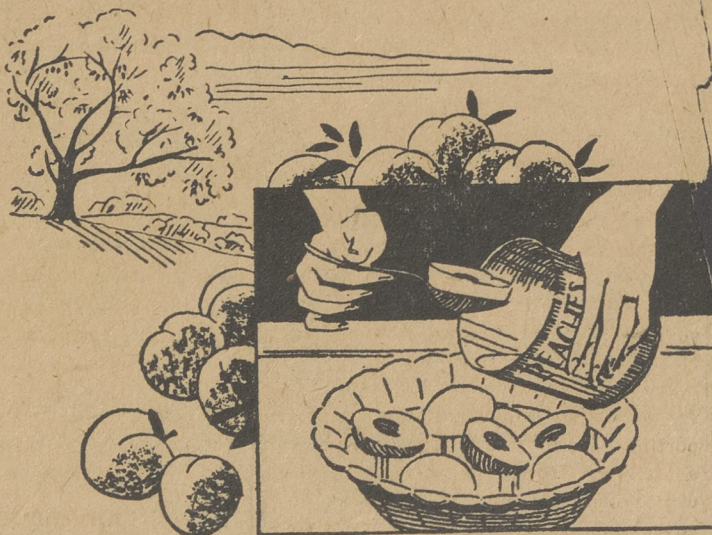

That excess energy of which he was once so prodigal—back in the days of the beanie—is coveted by the man of today in order to accomplish the day's work. And a big bowl of oven-cooked beans, flavored with molasses, seasoned with sugar, browned and sizzling with hot pork, goes a long way toward affording the needed energy.

The woman who prepares the luncheon dish that "hits the spot" for men, these chilly days, elects to serve beans. Here is a "different" bean dish for the business man's lunch, or for the boy whose business is going to school:

Baked Beans Parmesan: Sauté one small sliced onion and one diced canned pimiento in two tablespoons of butter until golden brown. Add the contents of one No. 2 can of oven baked beans, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and three tablespoons of grated Parmesan cheese, and heat thoroughly. Serve very hot, garnished with sweet gherkins. This serves four hungry persons.*

Peaches Are Plentiful

THIS year's peach crop is the largest in the history of the country. This is the good word from the Department of Agriculture—and since peaches are always popular, news that they are plentiful would seem to be another indication of "better times."

Just where the popular peach came from originally, no one seems to know. Peaches have been cultivated in Persia and China from time immemorial. You recall in the Arabian Nights descriptions of priceless treasures, among which peaches are named with rare perfumes, silks and precious jewels.

Colonel Goodbody Speaks

That well-liked radio personality, Colonel Goodbody, says in speaking of the mystery of the peach: "Some experts say it's an off-shoot of the plum family—and you'll have to admit that it is something like a plum. Others agree with old Charles Darwin who said it was an almond that developed a thick juicy flesh—and of course the seed is a good deal like an almond. Others argue that the peach is neither a plum nor an almond, but a separate family that originated in China."

In the Market Basket, a publication issued by the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, we were recently told "Right now, while the fruit is in surplus, it should be utilized to the fullest extent by homemakers." The shelves of the corner grocery are well stocked with canned peaches, which are still cheap and very delicious.*

A $1 Dinner for 4

THIS is the day of the dollar—you go a long way to get one, but a dollar goes a long way, once you get it. The above model dollar dinner combines fresh and canned foods, and, incidentally, canned food prices have not yet advanced, but they no doubt will by the first of the year.

Tested Recipes

Beets with Vinegar Dressing: Heat the contents of one No. 2 can of sliced beets, drain and keep hot. Mix together four tablespoons sugar and one teaspoon cornstarch and add with one tablespoon butter, three tablespoons of vinegar and a few grains of salt to the beet juice. Cook until creamy and pour over the hot beets.

Apple Crustades: Cut four square or oblong blocks of bread, without crusts, and scoop out the centers, making boxes. Brush on all sides with melted butter, and dip in brown sugar (using one-fourth cup of butter and one-half cup of brown sugar in all) coating both inside and outside with the butter and sugar. Fill with apple sauce (use the contents of one 8-ounce can of apple sauce). Top with another piece of bread also dipped in butter and sugar and bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—until brown, or from ten to fifteen minutes. Serve warm with one-half cup of cream. This serves four persons. If desired, small molds may be lined with bread dipped in butter and sugar instead of making the crustades.*
