ANIMAL EXHIBIT WILL TOUR FAIRS

The Game Commission's live wild animal exhibit has "taken the road" to tour until September 24.

The exhibit this year is larger than ever before. It will be in charge of Harry VanCleve, veteran trapper and assistant chief of the bureau of predatory animals, assisted by Blair Davys and Earl Carpenter, also expert trappers.

The exhibit will appear at the Butler County Fair, Butler, August 16 to 19; Clarion County Fair, Clarion, August 23 to 27; Huntingdon County Fair, Huntingdon, August 30 to September 2; Schuylkill County Fair, Cressona, September 5 to 9; the Forty-first Annual Bean Soup of McClure, Snyder County, September 16 to 17, and the Lehigh County Fair, Allentown, September 20 to 24.

Several Bear Cubs and fawn deer, as well as racoons, wild cats, beaver, red and gray foxes and porcupines will constitute the major portion of the animal exhibit. In addition there will be a large display of certain mounted birds and animals including adult and immature specimens of all the hawks native to Pennsylvania. These exhibits meet with much favor wherever they appear and many contacts are made especially among the sportsmen and farmers who learn much about wild life from the Commission experts.

4. BUILDING UP YOUR MUSCLES

While exercise will develop your muscles you must also feed them. Protein foods are body-building foods. They aid in building up your muscles.

The protein foods include meats, eggs, fish, milk and dairy products, cereals and beans and peas. Your diet should include at least one of these foods every day.

If you have a cereal, milk, eggs or bacon for breakfast; a salad or sandwich and milk for lunch and meat, vegetables and a piece of cheese for dinner you will be supplying your body with all the proteins it requires.

Vary your diet every day but include one of the above foods in your menu.

Night Club Has Unique Fireplace

Fireplace of Coal Feature of Novel Dining Room Being Built At The Meridian Restaurant.

Probably nowhere in northeastern Pennsylvania and certainly not in this section is there a more attractive or unique dining hall and night club than that which John Sullivan, owner of Meridian restaurant, is having built at the back of his building on Main street.

The dining hall is about three stories in height, having high ceilings surrounded on all sides with windows for ventilation.

Above the dining floor a balcony runs around the four sides of the room with unique triangular paneled lodges for guests who wish to dine and dance.

The color scheme is carried out in deep reds and greens with artistic gold and silver decorations on the panels. Flood lights in the four corners of the balcony and twenty-five concealed bulbs in the ceiling illuminate the room.

Perhaps the most attractive features of the room are two massive fireplaces, one on the main floor and the other on the balcony. These were built by William Wilson of Dallas. The fireplace on the lower floor is built of field stone while the upper fireplace is built entirely of large chunks of coal.

With the opening of the night club early this fall or late summer, Mr. Sullivan announces that an orchestra will play there nightly for dancing, and that the management of the Meridian will schedule the club room for large private parties.

The dance floor will be one of the finest to be found anywhere being made of selected maple.

The whole atmosphere of the new addition gives a Spanish effect that is highly exotic and attractive.

Mr. Sullivan is to be complimented on his latest venture which is sure to make Dallas an attractive spot for those seeking good food, dancing and an attractive setting for their banquets and parties.

knowledge of the fundamental subjects Reading, writing, spelling and mathematics. Any school that did not give a rigid training in these subjects no matter what other subjects were taught failed in its full duty.

Mr. Morris had a keen sense of humor and was a lively conversationalist. He loved the out-of-doors and the outdoor sports of hunting, fishing and tramping through the woods. Even at his advanced age he annually spent considerable time fishing and hunting, spending last summer camping along a lake in Wyoming county by himself and frequently was visited by old cronies.

Press Comments

Commenting on his death The Wilkes-Barre Times Leader said of him.

The deceased was a man extraordinarily intelligent and well informed. He was respected as one of the best generally educated men in this vicinity. Not only did he possess a real fund of exact knowledge but he possessed the rare ability to impart it to his listeners. In his dealings with his fellow men he was honest and straight-forward and expected honesty and straight-forwardness in those whom he dealt. He never failed to declare openly for principles which he believed to be right. In his attitude he was serious-minded and intolerant of frivolity. All in all, Mr. Morris made a thoroughly reliable friend and companion and will be keenly missed not only by his family but by his acquaintances as a guide counsel both in public and in private affairs.
