Miss Madeline Sullivan, Miss Theta Mead, Thomas Gould, Anna McGuire, Helen Sullivan, James Labar, Dorothy Sullivan, Harry Roush, Agnes Harding, Clarence Labar, Ethel Pettibone, Gerald Sullivan, Mary Wallo, Mrs. J. Sullivan and Stella Fiske, all of this place.

A turkey dinner was given for Mrs. Dorothy Anderson at her home, Point Breeze, Harvey's Lake on the eve of March 8, in her honor on her birthday anniversary. Among the guests present was Miss Amelia Feuchter, R. N., of Philadelphia.

Lake Township To Appeal Road Case

Decision Handed Down by Dauphin County Court To Be Carried To Higher Courts

Appealing the verdict handed down August 1, 1932 by Judge William M. Hargest in the Dauphin county courts in favor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in its claim for $20,949.66 from Lake township for road construction in that township during the period from 1920 until 1927, Lake township is preparing to carry its case to the Supreme court through its Attorney, Granville Clark of Wilkes-Barre.

The history of the case is an interesting one and is similar to one in Delaware township where $12,441.11 is being sought by the State and in Dallas township where the State seeks to recover $934, as the township's share in maintenance of State aid roads.

Between the years 1919 and 1927 the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania performed work and supplied labor and materials to maintain and repair the highway around Harvey's Lake and in other portions of the township, previously maintained as State-aid highways under an agreement made with the township in 1905 when the township and county agreed to pay together one-fourth of the expense. The State bases its claim for fifty per cent of the cost of road construction on an act passed in 1911 which says that fifty per cent of the cost of the township in which such roads lie.

Relief Sales Tax Forms Are Mailed; Must Pay April 1

Special Levy Will Continue Until February 28

Mailing of return forms to taxpayers for reporting the Emergency Relief Sales Tax is now under way, Secretary of Revenue Leon D. Metzger announced recently. The Department expected to have taxpayers supplied with forms by February 28.

"The non-receipt of a return form by a taxpayer does not relieve him from the obligation of filing a return," Secretary Metzger said. "Any taxpayer failing to receive one should apply to the Department of Revenue at Harrisburg, or to any one of the other seven district offices of the Department in the State."

The district offices referred to are located at Philadelphia, Altoona, Pittsburg, Meadville, Ridgway, Williamsport and Scranton.

Returns must be made on or before April 1 and accompanied by a check for the amount due, Secretary Metzger said. The Department can assess the tax where the taxpayer fails to make a return. The same power is given where the Department is not satisfied with the taxpayer's return, or where the taxpayer refuses to permit the Department to verify the accuracy of the return.

In certain of these cases, the law makes provision for the Department estimating the additional amount of tax to be paid, together with a 10 per cent penalty, of the amount so assessed. There is no appeal from this assessment or penalty.

The law provides but four exemptions. They are: sales by farmers of their own products; sales made to the United States Government; interstate commerce transactions, and sales for resale. A complete record of all tangible personal property must be maintained during the six months the tax is in effect. This record also must be preserved for two years after April 1.

Sees Reforesting As Solution For Using Idle Land

Dr. Ziegler Wants 4,000,000 Acres "Put To Work"

Reforestation is the single solution of the idle land problem in Pennsylvania, Dr. E. A. Ziegler, director of the Forest Research Institute, Mount Alto, asserts, in Bulletin 51, a recent publication of the Department of Forests and Waters.

Four million acres, or one-seventh of the entire State area, are idle and should be put to work, because this huge acreage of non-productive land is increasing county tax sales to a degree that is alarming, it is pointed out. According to Dr. Ziegler, it is the duty of the State to assume leadership in reforesting the idle land in the Commonwealth, particularly some two million acres of abandoned cleared farmland. He proposes a program of State-wide reforestation under the leadership of the Commonwealth, with counties and municipalities encouraged to take part in the movement.

More than three and one-half million acres have been abandoned by Pennsylvania farmers during the past quarter century. The 1930 United States census reported that during the five-year period 1925-1930, open farm land was being dropped from agricultural use at the rate of 108,000 acres per year.

Normally Pennsylvania consumes about 1,000,000,000 board feet of lumber each year and less than one-sixth of this amount is cut within her borders. As much as $100,000,000 worth of wood is bought outside the State by our people annually in normal years.

Dr. Ziegler believes that Pennsylvania's idle land can be reforested as a self-liquidating public work. He compares the problem in Pennsylvania to that in New York State where the legislature has pledged $1,000,000 a year for the next twenty years to retain its idle lands and restore its forest industries.

He believes that a ten-year plan of State-wide reforestation in Pennsylvania would in years to come support many forest industries that are now idle or abandoned and would give considerable work to unemployed labor, as well as help decrease the rapid rise of tax delinquency in many of our counties.

The bulletin "Reforesting Pennsylvania's Idle Land as a Self-Liquidating Public Work" is available for free distribution from the Department of Forests and Waters, at Harrisburg.

Six Local School Districts In One

Pennsylvania, being more efficient and economical and giving better assurance of equal opportunity for children in rural districts.

In-brief, the larger unit, as the new code stands, means that existing school districts of less than 5000 population would be merged to form districts, so far as practicable, of 5000 to 11,000 population, with a single board of nine directors to conduct the affairs of the resulting larger district. Every existing district of 10,000 or more would remain as it is. Newly set up districts of less than 11,000 population would be known as districts of the fourth class. The present 2587 districts would be reduced to approximately 500. The principle of the unit also would provide bases for more equitable distribution of State aid, it is said.

More Local Control

Approval of the larger unit principle has come from many Pennsylvania men and women not associated with schools or school administration. The Educational Commission includes representatives of taxpayers, agricultural, civic and commercial organizations, the fields of finance, law, and business, and federal and state government.

The larger unit would place administration of consolidated school districts affairs into the hands of a greatly reduced number of directors having a larger degree of local control, Doctor Rule says. The existing larger, well-organized, and efficiently operated districts have demonstrated their ability to manage their own school affairs.

While publicity has been given to the larger unit principle for Pennsylvania for almost a year, the exact set-up that appears in the new code was not worked out until recently and was first announced when the recodification of school laws was presented to the Legislature as a new School Code on February 6. This has given rise to a number of misinterpretations and misconceptions of the actual proposal, chiefly on the belief that it will necessitate increased building operations and transportation costs.

Mistaken Ideas Prevail

Doctor Rule says this is not the case, and is quoted as follows: "Some have mistakenly interpreted the plan as requiring the consolidation of schools, the transportation of children long distances by busses, the abandoning of present buildings and the erection of new school plants. "The plan involves none of these. Such matters are left to the discretion of the directors of the larger unit as they are now to directors of present districts. The plan in essence provides for consolidation of administration of schools in the hands of approximately one-fourth as many officials as at the present time with a larger degree of local control."

Members of the Legislature have been asked by Doctor Rule for their criticisms and those of their constituents, which he believes will be helpful in "revealing its merits and needed adjustments to make the plan fully serve the needs of your schools." Suggested outlines of districts erected on the new code requirements are being prepared in tentative groupings for information of citizens in the various counties. These will not be final, since authority to establish larger district lines is vested in the State Council of Education, if and when the larger unit is provided through legislation.

Junior Garden Club Attracts Children

Shavertown Junior Garden Club of America, composed of twelve girls between the ages of ten and twelve have completed a number of very pretty scrapbooks filled with nature pictures and very attractively made and has sent them to the children's ward of Nesbitt Memorial West Side hospital. The club is the only one of its kind in Wyoming Valley and is supervised by Mrs. David Spry. The members hold monthly meetings, with nature study hikes and picnics in the surrounding country during the summer.

Junior Garden Clubs are sponsored by the magazine, Better Homes and Gardens, the editors of which realize the necessity of developing in children a love and pride in their homes. As a basis for this necessary development of good citizenship, the relation is growing upon people that gardening is the basic art upon which children may build in a firm, healthy and constructive foundation for future careers in every phase of life.

Junior Garden clubs of America and its activities are based upon the newest methods of child education. The art of garden making, flower growing, and nature appreciation has been presented to Juniors from 4 to 15 years of age, as a delightful adventure and unfolds its wonders as they grow from Sprouters to Climbers and finally become Master Gardeners in this great garden club organization. Anyone desiring information concerning this movement or any one interested in organizing similar clubs may communicate with Mrs. David Spry.
