SCHOOL NEWS MONROE TOWNSHIP Orchestra

New members will soon be added to our orchestra as several contemplate the purchase of new instruments.

Professor George Kaschenback of Wilkes-Barre will be engaged to teach the orchestra one lesson per week. This will be paid for out of the money from November 24th entertainment.

Mrs. Snow will continue the orchestra work also, and will teach the advanced selections, played before the public.

Grade News

The honor students of the fifth and sixth grade are: fifth, Verna Traver, Lillian Ward, and Marcella Gavek; sixth, Emory Kitchen, Wilbur Bigelow, and Emma Stevis.

There are twenty-two students in the fifth and sixth grade who have attended school regularly for three months.

Sophomore News

Dora Annyl a student of the Sophomore class has returned to school following a two weeks illness.

Elwood Patton, a junior shot a seven point buck, and Kenneth Traver, a Sophomore, a three point buck.

Water System

The students of the Senior High School are conducting a subscription campaign for the Curtis Publishing Company. The school has participated in similar campaigns in previous years. Last year we purchased our radio from the returns.

This year we plan to use our share of the money from this magazine campaign to purchase drinking fountains for the water system, we hope to have installed in the school.

The magazines which we are selling are "The Country Gentleman," "The Ladies Home Journal" and "The Saturday Evening Post." Your co-operation and support will be appreciated.

Water In Sight

The most worthwhile project since the building of the school is now under way. There is a movement to take surplus water out of the buildings and pipe in good drinking water.

We can thank our school paper for furnishing the spark that has slowly kindled the blaze of enthusiasm leading to the water project.

The financing of the system is to be divided in three ways. The township is to furnish the pipe, the state emergency, labor relief work, and the school itself the fixtures, fountain and sinks.

Moves like this portray spirit and community foresight.

ETIQUETTE OF GREETING CARDS

While the etiquette of greeting cards is generally understood, there are a few points which are frequently raised. The most important is the matter of signature. If it is to be printed or engraved on the card, it must be in keeping not only with the lettering already on the card, but with the design of the card itself. For the more formal card, the old-English or Gothic letters or "copper-plate" script is preferred. For the man's card the plain lettering, Block letters on gold, silver or colors for the card in the modern manner. Casual script in color for the informal card.

When the calling-card plate is used for engraving the names, effort should be made if possible to select a card with a verse so worded that the names may be placed at the top rather than the bottom of the verse as strict good form frowns on the use of such titles as Mr. or Mrs. in a signature. While it is not always possible to adhere to this point if the cards already bear a verse, it should be born in mind if a greeting is selected to be engraved with the name.

A smart innovation this year is to make the signature the central feature of the design on the front of a booklet, with the sender's own handwriting used in color, as for example a card of rough-finish ivory-toned paper bearing the name written diagonally across the front in red and set off by red stars.

Cards signed individually by hand are increasingly in vogue and many of the new cards in booklet form have a blank inner page or even omit the conventional Merry Christmas phrases from their face with the thought that the sender will write his or her own seasonal message.

The informal type of signature is growing in popularity. A young married couple, for instance, find it a bit smarter to use a signature such as "Sally and Bill Suttin". These cards, of course, are intended for immediate friends and relatives. In general usage either the husband's or the wife's name may come first, although strictly speaking, the wife's name comes first in a joint signature when the formal Mr. and Mrs. is omitted.

Signing cards is apt to be a problem for a widow. For her close circle of friends she signs her name optionally either Mary Brown or in full, Mary Graham Brown. For more formal cards the husband's name is used, as Mrs. John Brown. Cards sent to a widow are similarly addressed, using the full name.

It is entirely correct for a person in mourning to send and receive cards. Care is naturally taken, however, to

Class Song Contest

The Class Song Contest held recently at College Misericordia created much interest among the student body. Miss Mary Graham, of Luzerne, wrote the words and music of the Senior class song, which won highest recognition by the judges.

The other compositions were written by Miss Marie McDonald, a member of the Junior class; Miss Helen Delehanty, of the Sophomore class, and Miss Kathryn Buckley, a Freshman.

French Club Meets.

The French Club has been reorganized, and under the capable leadership of Miss Mary Conlan, president, the members of the club hope to produce many plays and entertainments during the year. Miss Claire Sweeney is vice-president, and Miss Helen West is secretary.

Italian Dinner.

The Secretarial Science Department of College Misericordia served a delightful Italian dinner to the entire student body, on Monday, November 27th.

The waitresses were dressed in Italian costumes, and the dining room possessed a real Italian atmosphere.

The affair was such a huge success, that the department is planning to give a series of such dinners.

The money realized on the dinner is going toward the purchase of a Library, as well as several other articles for the Department.

select appropriate designs which do not stress the idea of holiday merriment, but convey rather a sincere message of seasonal good-will.

In sending cards to an employer, it is a frequent gesture of courtesy especially if the sender is a woman, to address the card to Mr. and Mrs. even when the sender of the card is not acquainted with the wife. This is done only when the card is sent to the home address. The secretary may send a card to her employer or any office worker to the head of her department, addressing it to the office.

In selecting your cards, good taste as well as consideration for the postal department suggests a conventional size neither too small nor over-large nor oddly shaped. The large cards designed for later framing are of course exceptions. Cards should be mailed in sufficient time to ensure their delivery before Christmas. The belated card suggests an afterthought on the part of the sender.

Addresses should be written by hand in ink. If there are two envelopes, the address is written in full on the outer one. The inner envelope is left unsealed and bears only the name of the recipient.

Wear Red, Says Hunters' Warning

Game Commission Secretary Urges Safety Measures In Woods

Wear red and lots of it, says Ernest E. Harwood, Executive Secretary of the Game Commission in a personal appeal to all deer hunters. It takes only a few cents to buy all the red cloth you need and but a few minutes to sew it on. Some hunters think because they wear a one-time red, but now faded, hunting cap that they have all the protection they need, Harwood added. But they want to get this idea out of their minds. Also, he continued, don't think for a moment that because you have hunted 10 or 12 years without wearing red, you have become to rifle bullets. You haven't. I remember a case which happened a few years ago, Harwood related, where a hunter, wearing only a faded red cap and regular tan colored duck hunting coat and breeches, killed a deer. But while leaning over to get it his red cap was not visible to another hunter who topped a knoll a couple of hundred yards away.

Atmospheric conditions (it was misty) coupled with the movements of the hunter bending over his kill, led the newcomer to believe he was looking at a deer. On top of that, a forked sapling perhaps 50 feet on the other side of the bending hunter appeared, to the now stretched imagination of the other hunter, to take the form of a big buck, and he fired and killed his fellow hunter. Now if he had worn red over his back he probably would be alive today, and the other chap would have been spared the mental torture that will be his for the rest of his life. You may say you don't care to wear red. Don't take this attitude. Wear it to keep the other fellow from making a mistake. Become accident minded continued Secretary Harwood. So far this season we have had less accidents than for quite a few years. I beseech each and every deer hunter who goes afield this year to do his part in preventing additional accidents. Every effort to help hunters become accident minded is worthwhile, if it saves only one life.

Another thing: Be careful when hunting near Citizen's Conservation Camps. The boys in these camps are doing much to help forward your interests by building fire trails and roads

APPLE GROWERS HOLD SHOW IN WILKES-BARRE

The Luzerne County Fruit Growers Apple Show opened on Wednesday, at 40 West Market Street, Wilkes-Barre.

Growers brought their fruit for entry starting Wednesday at 8:00 a. m., and all entries were in place by noon. At 1:00 p. m., judging started with Mr. J. L. McCartney of the Horticultural Extension Department of State College in charge.

The Show this year was the first conducted by the Luzerne County Fruit Growers since 1926. This year's show was a new venture, in that there were no cash awards.

Fruit Growers responded very encouragingly to this new feature of no cash awards, and the public saw a very interesting and beautiful exhibit of apples presented for their inspection.

The show will be open each day and evening up to and including Friday night and the public is invited, free of charge.

through remote forest areas. They will not always be at their camp headquarters. Many of them will be working on the roads and in the brush. If you happen to get a shot that is in line with those camps or working crews, be a sport and pass it up. The killing or wounding of any of these boys will invoke much justified criticism of our hunters generally.

The presence of these Conservation Camps if a hunter is new at the game, may well serve the purpose of providing a land-mark upon which he can fix his general location at all times. Study the entire lay of the land before you start out and you will find, that with serious application it won't be long before you are able instinctively to get your bearings.

In conclusion Mr. Harwood asked all hunters to be good sports calling attention to the old adage—It always has paid—it always does pay—it always will pay—TO PLAY SAFE!

Speaking Of Coming Events

ONE of the gloomiest shadows is that cast by the perennial Christmas gift problem. At least it is forbidding to those weaker mortals who put off their shopping until the last minute and then find themselves panicky as they search wildly for some decent gift for Dad or Cousin Bill or Mrs. Slaudenspiegel.

We don't say it's the most expensive gift in the world, but we honestly believe it's one of the nicest. We mean a membership in Wyoming Valley Motor Club (which, of course, includes membership in the A. A. A. and a year's subscription to the Motorist). In case you agree with us, we'll be happy to send a cheery letter and a club card to any one on your gift list.
