Fly to Kidnap Trial Scene

The nonchalant mood displayed by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh in this picture snapped recently at Woodward, Okla., where the famed flying pair were forced down by mechanical trouble during a western sky jaunt, disappeared when news of the capture of Bruno Hauptmann reached them, reviving poignant memories of their first-born's pitiful fate. Soon afterward, the Lindberghs took off for New York to aid the government in grand jury proceedings against the kidnap suspect.

Visits Post

James Evarts, for seventeen years rural mail carrier out of the Hunlock's Creek office, was a recent visitor of the Dallas Post. Mr. Evarts drove all the way from Hunlock's Creek to answer a classified advertisement appearing in The Post only to find that the desk which had been advertised was sold before he reached Dallas. There were many who answered this advertisement of a desk for sale, and the first one who answered it brought the desk. Anyone having another desk for sale would do well to advertise it in the Post for there are a number of persons in this region who would like to buy one.

Millions For Home Construction

To return to work the idle men in the building industry and renew their lost purchasing power, the government has authorized millions of dollars of loans by banks and other agencies which have been insured against loss by the government.

Several million unemployed workmen are ready to do the job of fixing up the 16,000,000 buildings throughout the country that need improvements and repairs.

A goodly number of those buildings are in the Back Mountain Region. Is your home one of them? If it is you'll never have another opportunity like this one.

Architects, contractors, lumber dealers, banks, and newspapers are waiting to answer your questions and help you to make arrangements to get money to carry out the work you want. Don't hesitate.

SUGGESTIONS

During the ensuing week The Dallas Post will print suggestions for home improvements written by men who are actively associated with the Better Housing Program. Your bank and your lumber dealer also have hundreds of suggestions for you, or you may write to the Federal Housing Administration, New Post Office Building, Washington, D. C.

TO MEMBERS OF THE BUILDING INDUSTRY

The population of Dallas has increased nearly 200 in the last three years. This means a need for homes here.

Only one town in Luzerne County has a higher employment percentage than Dallas. That means that local residents have money to spend.

You will be the first to benefit from the National Housing Act if you co-operate by supporting it.

Item two in the NRA Bulletin stresses the importance of advertising.

Every medium can be utilized: newspapers, radio, movies, direct mail, magazines, billboards, window displays, car cards, handbills, etc.

Other members of the building industry have already started.

Advertisers are getting inquiries many times the normal average, as a consequence of revived interest in the home, brought about by the National Housing Act.

Manufacturers of the things that go into homes and business properties already have under way ambitious Fall advertising campaigns.

If you have not already started an advertising effort it is not yet too late to stake your claim to some of the gold in "them thar modernization hills."

This is not "bunk". Members of the building industry are actually cashing in on advertising.

The Standard Sanitary Corporation says: "The inquiries already received from advertising have far exceeded our expectations, representing 8 to 10 times the normal fertility of such inquiries."

Another company advertised kits for contractors and sold 2,165.

New construction during the last two years was a bare 10 per cent. of the 1926-29 volume.

This is your opportunity to benefit.

Will you grasp it?
