Fresh Water Is Old Trick

Although the manufacture of fresh from sea water is generally considered to be of comparatively recent origin, old records investigated by Canadian National Steamships, show that when Sir Richard Hawkins made a voyage from England to the West Indies in 1593, he had a distilling apparatus on board his ship.

MARINE CORPS 159 YEARS OLD BORN DURING THE REVOLUTION

"Leathernecks" they are known as because of the stiff leather collars worn by them several decades ago; "Sea Soldiers" they are called due to their soldierly duties while serving at sea; "Devil Dogs" the Germans dubbed them during the World War as they had little or no regard for danger; but, when the First Continental Congress, meeting in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, passed an Act on November 10, 1775, nearly eight months before the Declaration of Independence was signed, authorizing their organization, "Marines" appeared in the official documents.

The personnel of the Marine Corps are landing, building and fighting troops, usually attached to the Navy. Its organization includes practically all army branches — infantry, artillery, aviation, etc., and the Corps as a whole is a complete small army.

Back in the days of flintlocks and fighting tops, the "Sea Soldiers" wore green coats, white waistcoats, and buff-colored trousers that disappeared in leggings reaching above the knees. A three-cornered hat, perched on a white powdered wig, completed the uniform.

Many of the ornate decorations worn by the "Leathernecks" were discarded during the last century, but the marine of today in his smart blue uniform with red and gold trimmings is still a colorful figure.

The emblem of the Corps is a hemisphere bearing the map of the Americas superimposed upon a fowl anchor and surmounted by an eagle with spread wings. The emblem is emblazoned upon the Corps standards and worn by officers and enlisted men as insignia. The motto of the Corps is "Semper Fidelis" (Always Faithful).

The record of the Corps is one which will bear comparison with that of the most famous military organizations in the world's history. During more than 90 of the 159 years of its existence, this small body of men has been in action against the Nation's foes. From the battle of Trenton to the Argonne, Marines have won foremost honors in war and, in the long eras of tranquility at home, generation after generation of them have grown gray in war in both hemispheres, and in every corner of the seven seas, that our country and citizens might enjoy peace and security. In every battle and skirmish since the birth of the corps, its men have acquitted themselves in a manner of great distinction, winning new honors on each occasion until the term

He's A Wanderer

A fur seal touches land for the first time in from seven to nine months when it reaches its summer home on the Pribiloff islands in the Bering sea. The distances this seal has covered during the intervening period of migration is approximately 5,000 miles.

"Marine" has come to signify all that is highest in military efficiency and soldierly virtue.

It was their service in Mexico and Tripoli that furnished the theme for the Marines' Hymn, "From the Halls of Montezuma, to the Shores of Tripoli".

On their 159th birthday, November 10, Marines all over the world will pause to glance back over their glorious record of deeds and service to the country.
