

Farmers May Be Benefitted By New Milk Law

New Law Designed To End Dairy Inspections, Importation of Unfit Milk

Pennsylvania now has a new Milk Sanitation Law which will set up a uniform standard of dairy inspections and wage war on behalf of Pennsylvania dairies against unfair competition from inferior cream, imported for use in manufacture of ice cream.

The new law passed the Legislature during the closing hours of the record-breaking session and was immediately signed by Governor George H. Earle.

The law is a revision of the Act of 1929 under which the bureau of milk sanitation in the Department of Health has operated. The movement for revision which resulted in the new law started nearly a year ago under the leadership of W. K. Moffett, director of the bureau.

"We found ourselves powerless under the old law," Moffett said, "to act upon serious complaints from consumers and dairymen. Consumers frequently demanded that the Department of Health supervise the quality of cream and other dairy products used in the manufacture of ice cream."

"The bureau of milk sanitation has been unable to give the consumer of ice cream the health protection to which he is entitled. Of 122,736,302 pounds of 3.5 percent butter-fat milk equivalent of cream shipped into Philadelphia alone during May, 1935, only 4,049,740 pounds were produced on Pennsylvania farms. In other words, Pennsylvania farmers have lost markets for twenty-nine and one-half pounds of cream used for manufacturing purposes in Philadelphia for every pound that they now ship to that city for such purposes. None of the sources of cream shipped from outside of the State could be inspected by the department of Health until the new law was passed a few days ago. This, despite the fact that the Department of Health is responsible for the consequences for such cream to the health of the people in Pennsylvania. What is even worse, it is estimated that the sources of more than 75 percent of the cream shipped into the State was not inspected or approved by health officials of any state.

"Our consumers are entitled to sanitary dairy products and our farmers are entitled to protection against competition from unsanitary cream which they themselves are prevented by Pennsylvania law from producing for the market. The new law gives the consumers and the farmers these protections.

"Furthermore, the new law gives us power to act on the complaints of hundreds of farmers who have been bedeviled by a multitude of dairy inspectors from various boards of health and dealers with different and conflicting regulations. The Department of Health is now authorized to establish uniform standards of dairy farm inspections. It is probable that the inspectors to recommend a set of uniform regulations. Municipalities are permitted by the law to exceed such regulations if they so desire.

"The new law passed the Senate 27-21, and the House of Representatives, 169-19, and, on another occasion, 198-4.

Community Mourns Mrs. Mary Hutson

Daughter Of Pioneer Family Here; Seventy-Seven Years Old

The number of friends and neighbors who attended the funeral of Mary Rachael Hutson on Monday, June 24, attested to the esteem and respect in which she was held during a lifetime in this community.

Mrs. Hutson who was 77 years of age at the time of her death, was the widow of the late Archie E. Hutson who preceded her in death some ten years ago. She was the daughter of William and Elizabeth Brown Shaver, pioneer residents of this community. She was born March 11, 1858, in Clearfield county where her father had lumber interests. At the age of five she returned to Dallas where she made her residence for the balance of her life.

Mrs. Hutson was a woman of unselfish devotion and one whose many kindnesses will not soon be forgotten by her neighbors and by the boys and girls now grown to manhood and womanhood whom she loved and helped to rear. During her earlier years she frequently assisted the late Dr. Henry M. Laing in caring for those who were ill in the community.

Besides her daughter, Bertha, at home, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. F. A. Koehler of Dallas and Mrs. F. P. Smith of Kunkle and two brothers, Harry and Chauncey Shaver of Harvey's Lake.

Funeral services were in charge of Rev. Joshua Brundie. The pall bearers were nephews: Paul, Merle, Russell
