CALLED THIS WEEK

William Major of Lehman was in call on us on Friday. Mr. Major has been a life long resident of this region and has been a subscriber to The Dallas Post almost since the first day it was published. With him on his visit was his son. Both men were shown through the plant and watched work being done on some of the weekly publications produced by The Post.

PAYS US VISIT

Hugh Murray, who wrote the little poem about the Ford V-8 on our editorial page last week stopped in our office Saturday afternoon for a brief visit. Mr. Murray is keenly interested in the development of his home community. And if you ask him he'll tell you that there is no better place in which to live than Dallas. Incidentally he is quite a hand at verse. We hope to publish soon a poem he has written on "Birds".

Bugbee Is Optimistic About 1936 Outlook

A Student Program Furnishes Carol Music

That the economic outlook in America is more optimistic with the close of 1935 than it has been since the depression set in was the emphatic statement made by Professor Leroy Bugbee as he addressed the Dallas Borough Parent Teacher Association in the high school auditorium Monday evening.

Whether the sudden spurt of business has a sound foundation or has been artificially produced by the government's spending program, Mr. Bugbee said he was not prepared to say. He does know, however, that the farmer today is getting better prices than he has any time since 1923 and that his prosperity in turn is affecting the prosperity of the people as a whole.

Mr. Bugbee in summing up the issues that will demand attention in 1936, listed the farmer's presidential vote, the soldiers' bonus, the League of Nations, disarmament, and international trade treaties. On the last of these he feels hinges the recovery of the world.

The school band entertained with several martial numbers and the grade children, under the direction of Miss Harriet Neufeld of College Misericordia, sang Christmas carols from foreign nations.

Mrs. Arthur Dungey presided.

We had a pleasant visit with W. M. Spencer Saturday afternoon when he came in to visit the Post plant. Mr. Spencer is about as cheerful a visitor as we have and we are always glad to have him call and chat with him about current happenings.

Dallas Township To Give Play

Senior Class Will Present Play Tonight

"The Red-Headed Stepchild", a three-act comedy by Charles George, will be presented by the Senior Class of the Dallas Township High School in the Dallas Borough High School auditorium Friday, December 20, in the afternoon at 2:30 and again in the evening at 8 o'clock. Due to some misunderstanding the auditorium will not be available on Wednesday evening, the night previously set for the play, so it had to be postponed until tonight.

The action of the play centers around Bess Russell, breezy Western daughter of Richard Russell, who comes to visit her father and stepmother in their fashionable home in Chicago. Totally uneducated in the ways of society, Bess finds herself in many embarrassing and amusing situations but by her personal charm and generous character finally wins the hearts of the whole household.

The play is full of humorous situations, witty dialogue, attractive settings and good old fashioned romance. Characters: Richard Russell, Charles Girtin; Mrs. Russell and stepmother of Bess, Marie Keifer; society matrons, Alice Elpper and Lillian Spencer; Briggs the butler, Merle Condon; Dudley Russell, Jim Oberst; Lucia Russell, June Chance; Elizabeth Russell, heroine, Alberta Hofmeister; George Garrison, presumably Lucia's admirer, Jack Edwards; society girls, Betty Edwards and Charlotte Siperko; Flora Farman, Maryellen Stonem.

Miss Elizabeth Love has given hours of her extra-school time to direct the play.

Where Quality Counts and Your Money Goes Fur

These Prices Effective in Our Stores in Dallas and Vicinity

TO OUR READERS

The unusually large number of visitors who have dropped in at the office of this newspaper during the past week merits some expression of gratitude on the part of the Post's staff, particularly since most of them came bearing money for their annual subscriptions.

Although it is a busy time for a newspaper, every effort was made to welcome the guests cordially and, in many cases, to show them through the plant, but some of them may not have realized how happy the staff was to receive them.

We feel that an apology is due many who were unable to secure the little electric lamps we are giving with each subscription in the color they desired. The response to our gift offer has exceeded even our fondest expectations and the large supply we had on hand at the beginning of the week was quickly exhausted. Early this week another order was placed with the manufacturer in Lansing, Michigan, with instructions to ship it to us by the quickest method possible. We expect this shipment daily and as soon as it arrives will make every effort to have the proper colorings delivered promptly to everyone who wants a lamp before Christmas.

When we billed our subscribers this week for the first time in five years it was with some misgivings. Like everyone else, we, too, have gone through a depression. Since newspapers are not usually classed as necessities of life we feared for the worst. But, believe it or not, we found that there are a lot of people who couldn't keep house without The Dallas Post—at least that is what they told us, and Mrs. A. R. Holcomb kept us a family tradition by sending four Christmas gift subscriptions to her sons and daughters, living in distant communities.

The response to our renewal notices at this Christmas time has been deeply gratifying but probably most of all we have enjoyed the contacts with old readers who have ferreted us out in our inconvenient location up her on the hill. We have had pleasant chats with them and their encouraging comments have made this season especially happy. We have probably met more real friends and nice people during the past week than during any similar period since we have been in Dallas and this is not overlooking the fun we had during the Trade Expansion campaign last spring when we also had a large number of visitors.

Of course we've had the usual number of unpleasant telephone calls. Living in Dallas over a period of six years one gets rather used to that, but it all adds spice to the program. Many of these persons have never been in our plant. Don't know us, don't know their neighbors and we in turn don't know them although we'd like to. We'll bet right now there're not half as hard-boiled as they sound on the phone—fact is we've never met a really honest-to-goodness hard-boiled person back of the mountain. But to get back to these people who telephone, if they'd just give us a break before they hang up we'd say this to them:

If at any time any reader of our paper feels that there is an error in his account or that he has been billed unjustly we want to know it. We are anxious to correct any error immediately that may arise in billing 3,500 subscribers, which naturally is pretty much a mechanical matter. Losing a friend through such an error however, is no mechanical matter. We consider it personal. That's why we've adopted this policy. Wherever an error has been brought to our attention or wherever there has been any doubt we have proceeded on the assumption that the reader is always right and corrected the matter to his entire satisfaction.

We've lived too long in this community to want to lose friends through some petty little error or misunderstanding and we hope to stay here enough more years to have a whole lot of new friends.

So we say to all a Merry Christmas to you and may health and happiness be yours and all your loved ones.

Howard Rislev, Manager
