"I may say I'm regarded as quite smart," announced the applicant for the position of typist. "I've won several prizes in crossword and jigsaw puzzles and word picture competition, lately."

"Yes, but I want some one who can be smart during office hours," returned the prospective employer.

"Oh, this was during office hours," said the girl.

Timid Householder (resourcefully after discovering two burglars at work): "D-d-don't take any n-notice of me—I'm only walking in my s-s-sleep."

A meek little man was walking home from the funeral of his masterful wife. Suddenly a roofing tile fell and struck him on the head.

"Gosh," he said, "Sarah's got to heaven already."

At the wedding anniversary of a railway magistrate, one of the guests, noticing a somewhat lonely looking and rather shabbily attired man in one corner of the parlor, walked over and sat down near him.

"I was introduced to you," said he, "but I did not catch your name?"

"My name," replied the other, "is Swaddleford."

"Oh, then, you are a relative of our host?"

"Yes," rejoined the "poor relation," with a grin, "I am his cousin, five hundred thousand dollars removed."
