Earl Monk, local plumber and heater, has asked The Post to explain to his friends and customers that he is still actively engaged in business locally. Because of several large contracts he has been called upon to fill out of town a number of persons, he says, are under the impression that he is no longer in business here.

On the contrary, Mr. Monk's business has been expanding constantly. In addition to his line of plumbing and heating supplies, Mr. Monk now handles the Vulcan Stoker and will be glad to have any interested persons call at his home to see one in operation.

Mr. Monk has his shop in his home now and his telephone number is 138. He has just finished several good sized heating jobs, complete with stokers, in the valley.
