The needle arts have come into wide popularity. This series of 12 articles offers ingenious tips and instructions on various items which women will find both economical and fashionable.

V—Fagoting

for the next stitch across the opening.

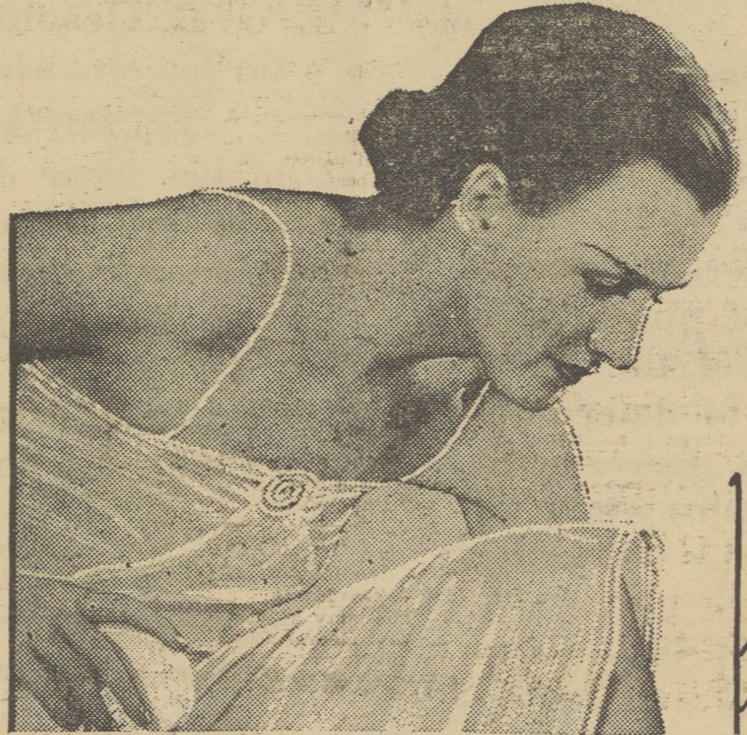

1. Fagoting Stitch. Make slanting stitches from side to side, passing the needle under the preceding stitch, as shown. Space the stitches about a quarter of an inch apart.

2. Bar Fagoting. Make stitch across opening; then twist needle under and over and under this stitch, as shown. Draw needle through, and then make a quarter inch long stitch parallel to the edge, bringing the needle out ready

Bias Trim Basted to Paper Ready for Fagoting Yoke Design. Cut out neckline of garment to depth desired for yoke, and bind edge with hand felled binding of Bias Trim. Cut plain pattern of yoke, mark design on it and baste to top of garment, as shown. Baste Bias Trim over design marked on yoke pattern; then fagot, as illustrated. When fagoting is finished remove basting.

This shows what you can do with fagoting. It adds a delicate touch to the garment. Your Sewing Corner will send you directions for this slip if you send in a stamped and addressed envelope asking for: "Leaflet on Cut Your Corners."

JUST—

Just a little bit of kindness,
As you journey 'long life's way,
Will help to lift some burden,
Or brighten someone's day.

Just a smile that's bright and cheery,
Or a pleasant how d'ya do,
Will help to cheer some stranger
And gain a friend for you.

Just a song when things look gloomy,
Or perhaps a helping hand,
Will help to lift a weary heart
From off the sinking sand.

So do your little bit each day,
A song—a smile, or deed—
'Twill help to make a better world
And you'll reap from each small seed.

—Elsie E. Oney, Dallas.

Junior Women's Club Combines Meeting With Dinner at Irem

"How much am I offered for this?" was the theme song of the Dallas Junior Women's Club when they met on Wednesday night at Irem Temple Country Club for a dinner-meeting and at which time they held a white elephant sale.

The forty-two attending members were seated at a U-shaped table which was prettily decorated in keeping with Lincoln's birthday. Large bouquets of red tulips and blue hyacinths were most effective on the white tablecloths, with red tapers for illumination.

In the absence of the president, the secretary and vice president opened the meeting and Mrs. John Durbin was named president pro tem.

Final plans for the dance and the fashion show were announced and approved. Committee reports were given with the music chairman, Mrs. Thomas Robinson, announcing the beginning of rehearsals by the Glee Club for the classical minstrel to be held in April.

Mrs. Robert Bodycomb was auctioneer and sold to the members the "White Elephants" they had brought.

LAING FIREMEN

Henry M. Laing Fire Company will meet tonight at 8 in the hose house for a regular meeting.
