Meat Prices Up; Fruits Advised

Post's Food Shopper Gives Advice On Economical Buying

It is a relief to turn to fruits and vegetables at this time when meats are on a continued upgrade. In general all meats are higher and more money is being paid for live cattle and pigs than ever before.

The late PEACH season is beginning and is promising to be of generous proportions with consequent low prices. Peaches are delicious eaten raw and lend themselves to most cooked deserts in which apples are commonly used.

BARTLETT PEARS are now plentiful and low in price, PLUMS continue to be generally available and many APPLE varieties are now in market. NECTARINES, FIGS and APRICOTS are obtainable but less common. The HUCKLEBERRIES both wild and cultivated are more reasonable. Eastern grown CANTALOUPEs are attractive in both quality and price. WATERMELONS are higher and less plentiful. GRAPEFRUIT from California and the Isle of Pines begins to be available.

Vegetables Abundant, Low in Price
With most vegetables abundant and low in price, LIMA BEANS, BEETS, CABBAGE, CARROTS, CELERY, LETTUCE, other SALAD GREENS, PEAS, POTATOES, SQUASH, TOMATOES are particularly attractive.

Forequarter Cuts Now High
Recent increases in meat prices are being felt more in the forequarters or chucks than in the so-called hindquarter or tender cuts. This is particularly true of BEEF and LAMB. FOWLS offer the best poultry value, though DUCKLINGS are moderate in price.

EGGS are cheaper than last year at this season and are a really good value. CHEESE, too, is relatively inexpensive and a good protein food. Good values are to be found in the FISH market. Variety in cooking is necessary when variety in type of fish is lacking.

Here is a menu made up of seasonable food items which are moderate in price:

- Cream of Celery Soup
- Deviled Eggs
- Tomatoes Stuffed with Fish Salad
- Marinated Vegetables
- Bread and Butter
- Peach Turnovers
- Coffee
- Cheese
- Milk
