Voice Of The People

LEHMAN SCHOOL BOARD

Lehman, Penna.
September 7, 1937

Editor, The Dallas Post: Times of distress and depression awaken many people to the facts, whether they be of personal or public interest. Perhaps too many times we are like those who look everywhere except in our own backyards for gold.

With pathetic cases of political agitation in school boards of the nearby cities and towns, numbers of citizens' attentions were attracted to an article which appeared in one of the valley's leading newspapers recently contrasting an outstanding and unusual school board with the many and usual boards of indebted districts.

Perhaps few people in Lehman Township realize that they have had gold in their backyards for some time—perhaps they do realize, for they have certainly thought clearly and judged rightfully the men whom they elected to carry out their Township's duties.

Eighteen years ago the school board had an indebtedness of $12,000, as the result of an endeavor to further education in their community by building a school building at Lehman Center. Later it became necessary in order to meet state requirements that they build an addition, which included a gymnasium, and additional classrooms, costing approximately $42,000. Again because of increased population an elementary school was erected at Lake Silkworth and soon an addition to that building was made when the Ruggles school was abandoned. An athletic field was added to the school and many other improvements have been made, all of which required much expense. Lehman can well boast because all of these obligations have been met in full, while the teachers have never missed a pay day and the township enjoys only a twenty mill school levy, and a balance of over $5,000.

At the present time there are two men now seeking reelection who have given of their time and effort in the last eighteen years. They have met all emergency's, and have striven with the help of their vast experience to give Lehman Township a record of which the inhabitants can boast. Mr. C. F. Terry and Mr. C. J. Brown have served their terms and are willing with the voters' permission to continue their creditable work as members of the school board.

Sincerely,
T. B. C.
