votes behind Judge Clarence Coughlin, his running mate, in the township, 31 votes behind in Dallas Borough, and 50 votes behind in Kingston Township.

The Sixth Legislative District, of which Dallas is a part, gave the Republican candidates their best showing, largely because of the solid majorities rolled up in this section.

Local communities also turned thumbs down on the Democratic-endorsed amendments which were voted upon on Tuesday. Every local district turned in an overwhelming negative vote on the proposals to amend the State constitution.

A summary of the county vote follows:

ELECTION NOTES

The two candidates who enjoyed the election most were Squire Ralph Davis of Harvey's Lake and Tax Collector John Isaacs of Dallas Township. Both men were re-elected with both nominations.

The accomplishments of Squire Davis and Collector Isaacs are more noteworthy when you remember that only judges can seek both nominations in the primaries. Both Davis and Isaacs are Republicans, and sought the Republican nominations, but their Democratic friends wrote their names in and gave them an extra nomination for good measure.

The highest vote polled by a candidate locally on Tuesday, was that given C. Murray Turpin in Kingston Township. He received 1,024 votes in the three districts there.

A number of people who hadn't heard about the strike which forced The Record to suspend publication Wednesday morning got quite a shock when they went out front to look for the paper with the returns. A good many of them were still wandering around bewildered when The Leader came out.

Someone has suggested that if this section continues to vote Republican, the Democrats will declare us an insurgent principality, exile us and put custom houses on the borders. Dallas has almost as much distinction now as Maine and Vermont.

The Republican County Chairman made quite a pre-election statement. "I certainly enjoyed a hearty laugh after my breakfast yesterday. And all because Dr. Leo C. Mundy got hold of a trick Halloween pencil, dished out some figures and claimed the county for Democracy next Tuesday by 20,000 votes." We'll bet the County Chairman almost died laughing Wednesday morning.

It wouldn't be an election hereabouts without a good fist fight. At least one gentleman sported a discolored orb (black eye to you) as a memento of the heated election in Dallas Township.

The most populous election district Back of the Mountain is the Southwest, or Trucksville, district of Kingston Township. It recorded more than 600 votes. The smallest district is the Northeast, or Carverton district in the same township. It cast less than 150 votes.

guage shotgun for $12 that day, hunted all day without a shot, and sold the gun back to the gunsmith for $8 on Monday morning.

But our spectacular career as a hunter is ended. It is, if we keep the oath we took under a shower of shotgun pellets somewhere on North Mountain last Fall.

We were a little late for the World War and except for the occasional raids on our office by irate subscribers we have never been what you might call "under fire". Never, that is, until that fine, crisp, brittle day last Fall.

We have often wondered what those hunters were shooting at. We should hesitate to accuse them of trying to kill us. But there was nothing else in sight. And had we been less fleet we might be mounted on the wall of somebody's game room today.

It is a rather blood-chilling experience to hear lead singing about your ears. Probably none of it was very close to our ears and our ears are big enough to give the vital spots a pretty fair margin of safety. But we were taking no chances. We dropped—and we stayed dropped until the pellets which were looking for us gave up the search.

In that moment we took the oath to stay out of the woods during November and December. We have held to it so far. This week, while our friends braved the hail of gunfire which raked every hill where a rabbit bounced or a pheasant lurked, we sat safely at our desk, our calm broken only by the dull echoes of conflict in the Huntsville sector.

There is only one thing we should like to know about the day we ran the gamut of gunfire. We should like to know how, on that day when our life hung by a thread, they managed to get a French 75 up North Mountain. We should like to meet the gentleman who accomplished that.

Citizens Select Election Boards

Voting Officials Are Named In Three Local Towns

Although not as important as the contests for bigger offices the campaigns by candidates for judge of election and inspector in voting precincts in Dallas Borough and Kingston and Dallas Township were marked by spirited rivalry in a number of cases on Tuesday.

At the General Election voters select a judge of election and a majority and minority inspector. In most cases there were only names of two inspectors on the voting machine so it was merely a question of giving one the majority over the other. In all cases Republicans received more votes than their Democratic opponents. The judges selected in the eight local voting precincts also are Republican.

The results of Tuesday's voting follow:

Dallas Borough North District: Clint Bollinger, Republican, judge; John E. Roberts, Republican, majority inspector; Stephen Tomasick, Democrat, minority inspector.

South District: Kyle Condiff, Republican, judge; John Reese, Republican, majority inspector; Scott Van Horn, Democratic, minority inspector.

Dallas Township Kunkle: Robert Prutzman, Republican, judge; James Mier, Republican, minority inspector; Wheeler Kunkle, Democrat, minority inspector.

Middle District: Harry Spencer, Republican, judge; C. C. Winters, Republican, majority inspector; Thomas Kepnar, Democrat, minority inspector.

Fernbrook: Ted Wilson, Republican, judge; Ray Williams, Republican, majority inspector; Lewis DeRemer, Democrat, minority inspector.

GAY - MURRAY NEWS COLD WEATHER COMING Let us make your home warm and comfortable with modern plumbing equipment. Our men recently installed a Delux Bathroom for Earl Jones at Factoryville while radiator heating jobs were installed for Dr. Geo. Norris at Dimock and Mrs. W. W. Lazarus of Tunkhannock.

Clients of our local law firm, Trembath and Farr, will find their neat office on Warren Street a very comfortable and convenient place to transact business. We installed both plumbing and heating for them.

When replacement heating boilers can be bought from $60.00 up, you can readily see that it doesn't pay to take a chance on an old worn out unit.

If you burn wood, we can make the cutting job easier for you with axes, cross cut saws, saw frames, chains or whatever else you need.

Walter Patterson on West Street, Curt Taylor at Dimock and Miss Cussie Mausele at Laceyville are all going to take the edge off cold weather with new cabinet heaters. We can furnish you either the coal or oil burning type featured by quality, beauty and reasonable prices.

Here's a story about a well that pleased us, so we have to tell. About Howard Miller and Michael Schuster; They don't carry water like they used.

You guessed it. We installed new Goulds Pumps at their homes at Sprupp Hill and Adella.
