SHAVERTOWN — MT. GREENWOOD — TRUCKSVILLE

Rev. Gertrude Ross, former pastor of the Free Methodist churches of Dallas and Trucksville, now pastor at Windsor, N. Y., and Rev. Grace Heberling of Mes-hoppen, former assistant to Rev. Mrs. Ross here, visited local friends on Friday and Saturday. They assisted at the funeral of George Kitchen of Pioneer Avenue, Mt. Greenwood, Saturday afternoon.

The Lyric Boys' Choir, directed by Alfred Milner-Camp of the township is rehearsing for their concert at the Mountain Top High School in the near future. The concert was cancelled because of the very heavy snow storm last week. These boys, between the ages of 9 and 13, render a wonderful concert of high soprano and alto selections, and the community can feel proud of their singing.

Friends of the Shavertown Dairy are pleased to hear of the decision of the stockholders to continue in business. A new truck is being delivered and may add business to theirs.

The time of the radio broadcast of the Cappella quartet of the Free Methodist Church, Trucksville, from Station WBRE, Wilkes-Barre, has been changed from 10:30 a. m. to 8:15 a. m. every Sunday morning. This program of sacred music is given by Mary Holcomb, first soprano; Alberta Lyne, second soprano; Rosetta Hirsch, first alto, and Ida Smith, second alto. The favorable comments received have caused WBRE to make it a weekly program. Those wishing a request number may send a card to the broadcasting station and their selection will be sung as soon as possible.

Communications of public interest will always be welcome in this column. Just address them to your correspondent or to The Dallas Post.

Study Locations For New Building

Four Sites Considered For Proposed Trucksville School

At 12:30 Monday morning six weeks ago the residents of Trucksville were awakened by flaming skies and excited shouts which accompanied the burning of their grade school. In one and one-half hours all that remained was the brick chimney. Now the question is: When, where and how is the new building going to be built?

Weeks before the unfortunate fire the school board, at the request of representatives of the insurance companies, made an inventory of the schools and as a result insurance on the building, supplies and equipment at Trucksville was increased upon recommendation of the insurance underwriters.

An itemized record was made of each article in the building. When the fire occurred, the local board expected insurance without delay. The directors cannot understand the delay and have been in continued contact with the underwriters' representatives in efforts for settlement of the claim, as they wish to start building soon.

Where the new school will be built is a question of vital interest to parents, and the directors, who are anxious to build where it will be most convenient to all have looked over several places.

Will it be built at the old site? Those opposed point to the small playground, the low and wet grounds. The Robbins plot has been inspected. It is a large lot, level and centrally-located, but those objecting claim that it will be bad in wet weather, and that the proximity of the railroad tracks and the high trestle over the Carverton road are against it. There is also the question of whether the owners will sell.

Others are in favor of building a new building on the high school plot, in the grove in the rear of the new addition, but separate from the high school building. This course would not necessitate the purchase of more land, and the public could then use the athletic field for a playground. But this plan has critics, too, who say the site would be too distant from the homes of many children.

One plot lately discussed is that of Mr. Merrill of Wilkes-Barre. Those who are friendly to this site point out that it is high and dry, with good roads on both sides and only a few steps from the old school ground. The school buses must pass this plot going to the high school. There seems to be enough interest in this site to warrant the board's serious consideration before taking any action.

The board will meet shortly and it is hoped the claim will be finally settled. An architect will then be appointed and plans drawn so that the school can be built and ready for classes at the beginning of the Fall term.

Trucksville Woman Dies Sunday Night

Mrs. Alice Carver, 37, resident of Trucksville for the last 12 years, died Sunday night at her home, 27 Carverton Road, of a heart attack. She lived formerly in Sugar Notch. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 from Homer Graham Funeral Home, 395 South Franklin Street, with interment in Maple Hill Cemetery. Survivors include her husband, Frank Carver, and five brothers, William, James and Elmore Clark of Allentown, Russell Clark of Hanover Green and Ralph Clark of Forty Fort.

Considerable local interest is being manifested in the coming legislative election. This section, which is a part of the new Seventh Legislative District, formerly in the last session, is solidly Republican now, in the Back Mountain tradition. We have proved to be one of the few sections of the county that have not deserted the Republican fold in past years and at the moment how much this has been appreciated? When jobs are given out, how many are selected from this section. After the last election, when changes were made, they forgot all about us. This section should be given the next Representative post at Harrisburg, and will demand more consideration in party favors.

A Church Institute session will be held at Trucksville M. E. Church next Wednesday night, with services held at 7:15, class period at 8:15, lecture period. The speaker will be Rev. Russell May, new pastor of the Shavertown M. E. Church, who returned last December from South America. He will lecture on "Under the Southern Cross." These institutes are very helpful and interesting and the people of the township are extended a very cordial invitation.

George Smith and family of Harris Hill Road, Trucksville, have moved to Huntingdon. Mr. Smith is an employee of the Bell Telephone Co., and was transferred to Huntingdon. Best of success in your new position, Mr. Smith.

The PTA card party held in the high school auditorium was a fine success. Funds for the purchase of milk for the underweight children in the township grade schools for the coming year were realized.

To Enforce Rules Set By Milk Laws

McCarthy Warns Violators Permits Will Be Taken Away

A warning to local dairymen who are violating requirements of Milk Act No. 210 was issued by the Bureau of Milk Sanitation of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, through its district investigator, D. A. McCarthy, this week.

Mr. McCarthy announced all requirements are being enforced strictly to guard milk supplies and said permit holders who fail to meet the provisions of the act will be cited for a hearing in Harrisburg and have their permits to sell milk revoked.

He cited eight specific measures which milkmen must observe to the letter:

1. Farm inspections and veterinarian certificates must be on file at distributing plant and paid for by the permit holder. Some dealers have passed these expenses on to the producer. Violation of the practice will result in loss of permit.
2. Private water supplies of both raw and pasteurized milk where milk is bottled and prepared for market must be analyzed by a competent laboratory.
3. Health certificates of all milk handlers in plants must be filed at the plant.
4. Plants where milk is pasteurized will filter or clarify milk prior to pasteurization.
5. Proper receiving room equipment which includes weigh can and can washer must be installed.
6. Lavatory facilities must include locker room, wash bowl, toilet, individual towels and soap.
7. Bacteriological analysis of milk must be on file at the plant.
8. Proper sterilizing equipment will be required in every milk plant where milk is prepared or bottled.

Dallas Bank Adds 150 Safety Boxes

Marvelous Precautions Are Taken To Guard Valuables Left In Bank

One hundred and fifty new safety deposit boxes have been purchased by First National Bank of Dallas, to be installed in its modern vault.

The bank, which needed only twenty safety deposit boxes two decades ago, has had to add year by year until it now has more than 310.

Mostly such boxes are used by persons who have articles to which they attach a sentimental value or bonds, records, jewelry, etc., which might be stolen elsewhere. The boxes are in the great vault which is, in itself, a marvel of precaution.

No box holder can enter the vault without being accompanied by an employee of the bank. Each box has two keys, of different pattern, and both keys are needed to open any box. When one of the keys is lost there is no alternate but to break the lock, an expensive and difficult job.

Upon entering the vault, one is confronted by a large mirror which reflects the entire interior, making it impossible for anyone to hide. One feature which interests visitors is the dial on the wall and they are amused to see the delicate hand tremble in accompaniment to their voice. The dial is only one of the burglar alarms which protect the valuables left with the bank. It registers even the very slightest noise, and when such noises attain a certain volume—such as might be caused by hammering or an explosion—the dial sets off a burglar alarm.

The bank vault is so strongly constructed and so many precautions have been taken to defeat any possible effort to gain access to it that, although it has never occurred at the local bank, there is some chance that an employe might find himself locked in and compelled to wait until the great door could be opened. Formerly such incidents were extremely uncomfortable for the employee thus imprisoned, but the local bank vault not only has facilities for ventilating the vault but can pass in objects from outside.

Occasionally the valuables kept in the safe deposit vaults under such rigid precautions bring about amusing incidents. One day a box holder rushed in nervously and asked to be escorted to her safety deposit box. When it was opened she examined the contents hurriedly and announced that her diamonds were gone. Bank officials assured her there was no possibility way the diamonds could have disappeared. After a more careful examination, it was discovered that the diamonds were in the box, safe and sound. It then developed that the woman, had dreamed her diamonds were gone and the dream had been so realistic she had convinced herself.
