Lehman Thespians Win High
Praise For Fine
Work

"Patsy Strings Along," the three-act comedy-drama presented in Lehman High School auditorium Friday night by the Junior Class was the hit of the year.

The cast, which included Doris Krieger, Gilbert Tough, Anna Dropchinski, Laverna Warner, Howard Rice, Glenn Ehret, Wallo, Robert Kittle, Cliff Stroud and Edward Ide, played their parts like veterans.

Miss Kistler, who took charge of the make up, received a lovely bouquet of roses and snapdragons. Mr. Snyder, who directed the play and seemed to put his heart and soul into the effort to make it a success, also received a gift of appreciation.

POST SCRIPTS

She came with her husband over mountains and through rivers to make a new home. Perhaps she stood behind him one day when the news came that Indians had massacred the soldiers at Forty Fort and were running wild through the valley. Perhaps she saw Colonel John Franklin's wild Yankees riding to meet the Pennamites or heard them plotting their Fourteenth Commonwealth.

Today her grave is forgotten, too. All the graves are forgotten. No one has time to remember, we suppose.

In another month it will be Memorial Day and uniformed soldiers will swing along crowded streets to the music of blaring bands and salutes will be fired over graves and the air will be filled with eloquence.

Crowds will flock to cemeteries, walking over closely-clipped greenward, and little red, white and blue flags will flutter over the graves of men who fought and then died.

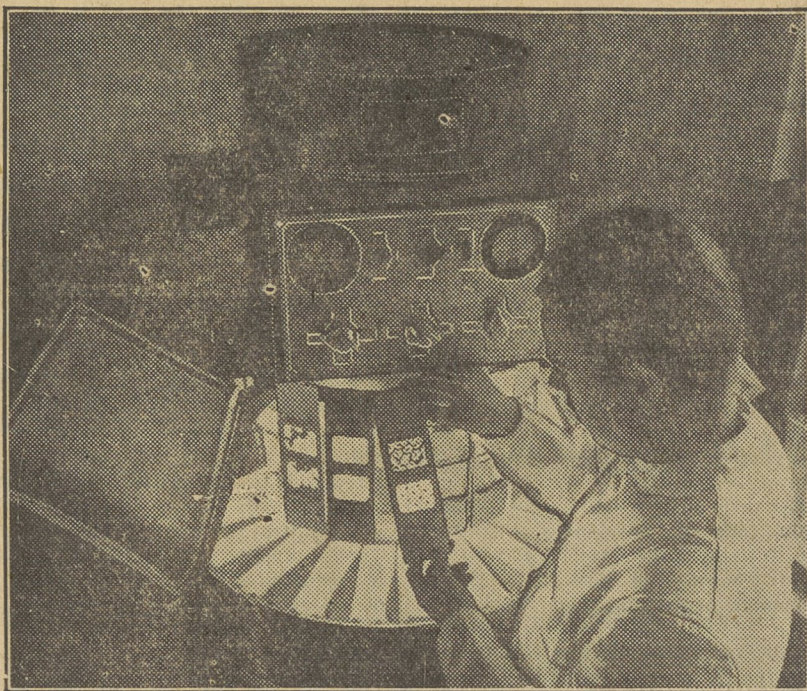

The flood of sentiment will sweep over the country but, unless this Memorial Day is different from those in the past, it will still be silent and lonesome and desolate in the old cemetery on Huntsville Street hill.

Perhaps, though, it will be different this year. Perhaps some local civic group—the American Legion, the Rotary Club, the borough council, the fire company or some other—will decide that the old cemetery deserves a better fate. Perhaps some men will march up Huntsville Street one of these Saturday afternoons, armed with axes and scythes and sickles and rakes.

And perhaps, on Memorial Day, people will walk into the old cemetery reverently and find the brush gone, the tombstones straight, the grass cut and the gate back on its hinges.

Peter Roushey and Christeen Rice, looking down to see how things are going in McClellandville, would be pleased.

Science Beats the Sun

INDUSTRIAL engineers have now developed the device shown above. Consumers Information reports, to test colorfastness of fabrics, so that manufacturers can make sure in advance that their materials won't fade in the sun. Women never used to be sure that their dresses and draperies would retain their original brilliance until they had actually been exposed to sunlight. But through the use of this machine, developed by industrial research experts, it is now possible to tell whether dyed fabrics will hold their color. This is just one more of the many examples of how industry helps the consumer.

The Old Scrap Book

Hello there:

This week our material is from the pen of Rev. R. C. Steinhart, Pastor of Evangelical Congregation Church, of Sunbury, Pa.

Folks today need a lot of loving. Face to face with problems and perplexities that have throwing power; that seem to drain the sap of life from them, they feel the need of a loving hand. Don't fail to be helpful. You will greatly improve when you stop pitying yourself.

What are you, a Pessimist or an Optimist? The Pessimist you know, sees a difficulty in every opportunity; the Optimist sees an opportunity in every difficulty. Which are you?

BE STILL

I will be still my soul faintly murmured;
As o'er me rolled a weight of woe;
I will but trust Him in the darkness;
Just trust Him as I onward go.

I will be still, yet I'm prone to grumble;
As each day finds me on my way.
I shall not grieve Him, nor shall I stumble,

But seek His face each passing day.
I will be still, His love I shall covet;
I need His Grace, so full and free.
I'll not doubt His love for I have proved it.

Along the way He's marked for me.

Say, friend, what are you going to do? If it's something good, you better do it now. If it's something mean, you better wait until tomorrow. Perhaps a good night's rest will sweeten your outlook on life.

When friends disappoint you and sadden your heart, and others distrust you, remember Jesus Christ . . . He remembered you, remember Him.
