

Route 92 Studied By Commissioners

New Activity Is Taken As Promise Of More Construction

Another survey of Route 92, between Dallas and Tunkhannock, has been made by Wyoming County Commissioners, in compliance with a request by the area office in Scranton, according to advices from Tunkhannock this week. The news raised hopes for construction of another section of concrete pave along the much-traveled highway.

The County Commissioners accompanied officials of the Department of Highways on an inspection tour and although there was no official statement, the opinion was advanced that bids will be sought on the contract within a short time.

"If this proves to be the case," commented the Wyoming Democrat, "it will be mighty good news to the people generally and particularly to those whose good fortune it is to live in the Noxen sector but whose misfortune it has been all too long to have to travel over the old road covered by this proposed building plan. It is doubtful if there is a piece of highway in the State with more grief to a road than on this particular stretch."

It has been many years since the project of a Tunkhannock-Dallas highway improvement was first mentioned. The past few years have seen a considerable portion of this dream materialize. That there may soon be more of it is good news, indeed.
