a trail of water all the way behind him. Pretty soon he came to Kingston Mountain and, quick as an eel, he sidestepped behind a tree. The bear couldn't stop, he was so heavy, and he busted right through the mountain. That's what they call the Luzerne Narrows now and the sweat from the Indian just rolled down through the gap and became Toby's Creek. The last I saw of the bear and the Mohegan they were racing North up the river. Two years and four months later to the day I heard a rumpus downriver and saw the Mohegan and the bear comin' up from the South. I figger the bear chased that Indian clear around the world. Never did find out if he catched him.

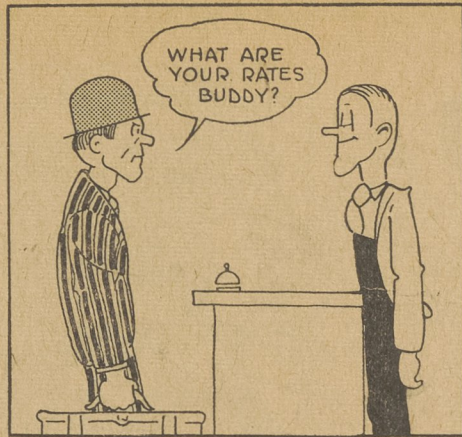

"It's time our bears got a little publicity and I want you to put a piece in the paper like this feller Cummings did and do justice to our bears. I'm trustin' you for the job because I know your imagination won't run away with you, although I'm not doubtin' this feller Cummings' stories, understand."

We promised to record Eph's testimony. "While you're here, though, Eph," we interrupted, "we want to get your promise to be in town next year when Dallas has its Old Home Week. We'll probably need you for reference. If there's a parade, we'll want you in that, too. Will you keep that in mind?"

"I certainly will, son," Eph promised. "Right now me'n Abe Pike is building a canoe to take us down the river to Harrisburg next month for Arthur James's doings at the Capitol but we'll come straight home and both of us will be lookin' foward to Old Home Week. Well, I gotta get back or Abe'll be wonderin' what happened to me."

Eph stood up, yanked up his baggy, homespun breeches, slung his rifle over his arm and waved good by. "Tell Johnny Hazeltine's boy I was askin' about him," he said, as he walked through the closed door and disappeared against the whiteness of the snow.

Snow Aids Hunters In Assault On Deer

(Continued from Page 1) the way from Dan Evans and Ted Hall, who suspended lunch for a few moments at Red Rock, shot their deer, and then resumed eating, to Kenneth Oliver, who saw 41 deer, but let it go at that.

Jenkins Shoots Biggest As far as can be determined, the biggest doe shot by local hunters was brought down by Dave Jenkins, who bagged a 175-pounder in the Thornhurst district of the Poconos Monday. The average weight ranged around 100 pounds.

Hunting at Loyalville, Ralph Brown and his son, Warren, each shot a 75-pound doe Monday, while the other son, Bob, met with similar success at White Haven. Bob Gould, out with the first two, shot a deer of about the same weight. Frank and Leonard Harvey bagged a doe apiece Monday up above Avoca. Headed for home, Leonard lent his gun to Dick Major, who subsequently shot an 80-pounder.

Dan Richards, Bob Hislop and 16 hunters from Pottsville traveled to the Poconos Monday and brought back twelve good-sized deer. Dan himself didn't shoot any, but Bob brought down a 100-pound animal. While Bob was waiting on his deer, several shots plowed into a tree and the ground next to him. "Hey! I'm here," he shouted, and then he looked just the other side of the tree and saw a big doe within five feet of him.

Micky White of Shavertown shot a deer at Rickett's just to keep on even terms with his wife, who shot her deer Monday. When Patrolman Fred Swanson shot a deer Monday, Chief Stevenson also grabbed his gun and weathered the bombardment on North Mountain, but to no avail. "But I didn't want one, anyway," said the Chief. "I was just looking around."

Paul Oberst, Pete's son, and brother Carl met with success in Root Hollow Monday. Paul brought down a fine 150-pounder, and Carl shot one that was above the average, too. Donald Grose and Jack Yeisley, hunting near Kitchen Creek Falls Monday, bagged their two deer before noon. Don brought down a 90-pounder about 9:30 and Jack shot a 121-pound doe shortly after 11 o'clock.

Correction: Only 41

And now we're back to Kenneth Oliver again, who says it was only 40 deer he saw instead of 41. Other local hunters who met with success:

Richard Templin, Clyde Veitch, Bob Keithline, Lester Garnett, Jim Knecht, Joe and Ted Lovelle, Mr. Korn, Tom Karkoff, John Honeywell, Edgar Hanson, Glen Kitchin, Gordon Koehler, Hiram Newell, Joseph Ide, John Gosart, Albert Harrison, William Pinken, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Moore, John Lee, Clarence Spencer, and Walter Mead.
