Moon's Eclipse Visible Tonight

Midnight Black-Out The Last Until 1942

The celestial time table will provide local people tonight with their first eclipse of the moon this year. The eclipse will begin at 11:54 p. m. when the moon, high in the Southern sky, will begin to move into the earth's shadow.

The shadow on the moon will reach 98 per cent coverage when the satellite appears orange or red with a slender tracing of white showing at the lower left edge. The moon will begin to emerge from the shadow at 1:36 a. m. It will be clear at 3:18 a. m.

This section was out of luck when there was a partial eclipse of the sun last April 19. It was cloudy here.

Two other eclipses were paraded before the world's telescopes this year: A total eclipse of the moon on May 3, visible only on the other side of the earth, and a total eclipse of the sun visible from near the South Pole October 12.

Tonight's moon eclipse will be visible from one end to the other of the Americas. This section won't have another chance to see it until August 25, 1942.
