Pembridge Held On Check Charge

Police Say He Passed Five Worthless Checks

Nabbed by city detectives after several Wilkes-Barre merchants had charged him with passing checks on a bank in which he had no funds, Jack Pembridge of Dallas was held for court in Wilkes-Barre this week in default of $500 bail.

Pembridge, who cashed worthless checks here recently but escaped prosecution when he made good, was taken into custody by Detectives Joseph Olds and Thomas Nolan on Monday afternoon. He was given a hearing before Police Magistrate Emerson Fletcher on Tuesday morning and jailed when he was unable to raise bail.

A former resident of Chinchilla, Pembridge came to Dallas several months ago to visit relatives and several Main Street business men say they cashed checks for him, only to discover that the checks had been drawn on a non-existent bank. When they threatened to prosecute, he made the checks good.

Frenbrook knows the man whose home gave refuge to Riley's cab-driver. It was in 1904 that Riley tried to cross Pierce Street, Kingston, on a bet and was drowned. Mrs. Blewett says, and until someone proves she's wrong we're standing back of her memory. Riley's driver clambered on a cake of ice, which deposited him on the front porch of a Mr. Clemow, who works at Harris Hardware Company in Kingston with Mr. Blewett and Lewis LeGrand. We refer Mrs. Blewett's correction to Attorney William Brewster, who, in his "History of the Certified Township of Kingston," says Riley was drowned in 1902. As for Bill Niemeyer, who insists there was no flood in 1904, we suggest that he thrash that out with Attorney Brewster, who is positive there was.

Despite her plaint that she is "all-wore-out-with-it-all," Dorothy Ames Carter of the Spring Feverish Carters, helps this department through a busy week by submitting an essay on April, as it might be interpreted by the following:

Chaucer: Whan that Aprille with her showwers sote . . .

Small Boy: April's Fool's past and you're the biggest fool at last, nyah, nyah . . .

Floridians to Northerners: Goom-bye.

Al Jolson: 'Tho' April sho-werses may come my way, they bring the flower-erss that bla-oom in May. . .

Brook Trout: Hooked again!

Fishin' Worm: Let's go see how the other half lives.

Street Vendor: Any umbrellas, any umbrellas . . . ?

Jim Farley: Primarily speaking . . . Census Taker: Huh?

Two Indians Taking Sulphur and Molasses: Ugh Ugh.

First Robin: Chirp.

First Crocus: Peep.

Eavespout: Drip.

You: Yawn. Yawn.

And to dispose of the last of the odds and ends which have accumulated on our desk, awaiting their chance to elbow into this department, there's this bit of nonsense verse, called "How to Make a Double Petunia Out of a Begonia", composed by an anonymous, helpful and slightly-mad contributor. It goes like this:

Begonia is a kind of sausage. A sausage and battery is a crime. People crime trees. Trees a crowd. Crowds make a noise.

Your noise is on your face. The eyes have it. Likewise the nays. Horses nay. Horses have colts. Go to bed with a colt. Wake up with double petunia.

And that, dear readers, is the way a lazy editor fills a column in a hurry.

Sees Free India Playing New Role invasion of the Moslems, who were accustomed to seclude their women. The custom was never widely adopted and has been virtually abandoned today. Miss Bativala said.

Women of India have had complete civic equality with men since 1500 B. C., she pointed out, and by 500 B. C. they were given further property rights. It was only with the coming of the British that India's social structure was changed and women pushed into the country's social and political background, Miss Bativala charged.

At present, she said, Indian women are second only to American women in the important public posts they hold. India has had 60 women legislative members and one woman Cabinet member since 1935.

Pillager Walks Into Trap Laid By Lake Police

Stevenson Says Suspect Had Broken Into Margie Cottage Seven Times

operate with Chief Stevenson and Assistant Chief Swanson and the investigation was widened to include all possible enemies of Mr. Margie. On an application for an operator's license at Harrisburg, police found that one of their suspect's printing resembled that of the message left at the Margie cottage, but the evidence was not yet convincing enough to justify an arrest.

The search narrowed on February 20, 1940, when someone entered Mr. Margie's garage at Pittston, threw white paint over an automobile and filled the radiator with turpentine. On March 7 someone visited the Margie cottage, but the damage that time was confined to penknife cuts on porch posts. Possibly the marauder suspected a trap.

Police Lay Trap

Determined to crack the case, whatever the cost, Chief Stevenson detailed Assistant Chief Swanson and Officer Arnold to maintain a constant watch over the cottage. Arnold was there Wednesday afternoon when Powell entered. Waiting, Arnold saw Powell smash eight windows, then the policeman covered him with a revolver. Showing no resistance, Powell accompanied Arnold to the police station where, for several hours, he denied any guilt.
