HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

January Lull—A Good Time to "Take Stock"

Are you enjoying the January lull? There is a let down, and a rather pleasant one, after the feverish Christmas season and we are glad of a chance to drift a bit, and it's not a bad idea if it doesn't last too long. In fact, why not do as the business world is doing—"take stock". Look around your house with a critical eye, not just for replacements, but rather to see if you can make your home more attractive and comfortable by change of color, rearrangement of the furniture, creating a new atmosphere perhaps, without great expense. When we live in a place our eyes become so accustomed to our surroundings that we don't really see them. It is a fact that "houses grow" as they are lived in, sometimes this growth is an improvement, and adds great charm and sometimes it just clutters them up with pictures, knick knacks and wrong color combinations that we don't notice ourselves, but which are constantly apparent to outsiders. Of course, there must be a basic motif back of what you do, which is determined largely by the type of house or background and, naturally, by the furniture. But it is a fact that furniture of different types may live together not only peaceably but harmoniously if the color scheme is good and if, for instance, there is a definite note of informality liveliness, or a definite note of formality, to make the room a unit. Your personality will be expressed here. How do you go about all this?

Combine Colors for Harmony

limited extent to modern. But as this column is but a short piece, I can't go into detail. I can merely wake up your imagination, and your ingenuity and give a few ideas.

Wall Pieces for Color

Have you thought of using a colorful piece of fabric to give both color and personality to a hall, or a room with plain walls? Such pieces are effective either by themselves or back of a mirror. In a hall or room with stairs leading out of it, they give color and pattern hung on stair wall. Against cream walls with dark wood work, as in the photograph, choose your pattern to suit the period of your furniture. In a modern setting, use modern pattern.

Spots of Decoration

Whatever your type of furnishing, windows and French doors can be made decorative by use of plants or plant stands in front of them, during the winter months. In the French Provincial room, illustrated, informal in character, the window group of chair tables with lamps and the plant in the window, has a lived-in look. On a wall with or without a niche, an iron bracket, with trailing plants may be placed above a small table. In an 18th Century room, or an early American room, with maple furniture, you can get the same decorative effect, but use a hanging shelf. In an informal room, put small pots of ivy on lower shelf and small books and ornaments above—keeping the table under it and chair by its side. In a formal room, the ivy might be omitted and the hanging shelf hung over colorful damask.
