Editorially Speaking:

Censorship: Tool Or Weapon?

Last week a war-long fued between the Churchill Government and the British Press reached its greatest crisis as the actual subjugation of the London "Daily Mirror"—for its policies of vigorous governmental criticism-was debated in Parliament. While the position of the "Mirror" itself may not be entirely defendable, since many of its attacks on the British government and military have been more bitter than well-founded, the issue involved is of vital concern to every publisher and person in England, and in all the other Allied countries as well. For when Parliament debated the outright suppression of a newspaper for its critical writings, it simultaneously put on trial the Freedom of the Press in democratic nations.

Undoubtedly it would be foolish and far-fetched to assume that the muzzling of one newspaper in England will bring about the wholesale censorship of the press within all Allied nations, including the United States. But there are unmistakable trends in that direction, and the very fact that a newspaper in democratic England can be suppressed for reasons other than sedition means that the individuality-or freedom-of news publications everywhere is in a precarious position.

In times of war there are certain restrictions which must necessarily be imposed upon the press. Dispatches which might disclose movements of troops, stratagems or other military information of a secret nature must be censored from general publication. Any material which will tend to impede the war effort must also be closely edited or perhaps killed outright. Generally speaking, the discretion of editors and publishers is sufficient to accomplish these ends, even without the aid of censor boards. Newspapermen and the public alike understand that secrecy has an important function in days such as these.

But there are limits beyond which the censorship of the press loses its usefulness and becomes a dangerous weapon, rather than a bulwark of defense. A public which willingly forgoes certain of its privileges in order to aid the war effort is one thing. A public which is kept completely in the dark on all matters which may be either disturbing or provocative is another. Reasonable censorship contributes, in a sense, to the general morale and purpose of the people. Their lack of complete news coverage on the war and defense fronts is a small sacrifice, and one readily made, as insurance for the safety and success of the armed forces abroad. But the substitution of propaganda for news-however hazy and incomplete-breeds distrust and even fear, and the revocation of the right to individual opinions and criticism can accomplish nothing but discontent.

So long as the people feel they are in the confidence of their government, they will back it to the limit, as a corporate enterprise. But once that government has set itself up as something apart and above the people, keeping its operations beyond their knowledge and control, it has traded stability and common determination for the uncertain and suspicion-riddled structure of a dictatorship. That's a poor prescription for efficiency and success under any circumstances, much less those of war.

Freedom of the Press is a powerful working force of democracy, particularly in times of war when any device which will tend to keep the people and their government together in common endeavour is an invaluable asset. A free press is a medium for the participation of the public in the management of its welfare, and is the mark of a nation of free men, as against a dictatorship. It has two principal disadvantages: government may be belabored and even hampered with criticism, and disasters and reverses will become common knowledge. But had news can be met with courage and resourcefulness, where no news at all may be met with growing uneasiness, lessening confidence and dangerous rumor. And if open criticism of government causes some bitterness and aggravation, it also serves to keep the people a part and parcel of the national administration-and this is perhaps the best defense against the inroads of totalitarian doctrines, which, in the long run, are a far greater menace to democracy than the Axis armies.

Special Registration For Back Mountain Voters Is Held Today

Borough Building Is Open To Local Citizens For Primary Registration Until 10 Tonight

A special registration of Back Mountain Region voters for participation on the May Primary Elections is being held today (Friday) in the Dallas Borough building on Mill street, and provides the last opportunity for local citizens to register party preference without traveling to the courthouse in Wilkes-Barre. Conducted by official registrars from the courthouse, the registration is open to all people of  $\diamondsuit$ the Dallas area, not just residents of the borough, and is the only special registration which will be held in uzerne County The borough building was opened to voters this morning at 10, and the first session of registration closes this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The clerks will sit again for a three hour period, beginning at 7 this evening, in order to give local people who work out of town during the day an opportunity to register.

Vol. 52

All citizens of this section are urged to take advantage of the special registration, which has been instituted in order to save rural and suburban residents the time, trouble and wear on tires entailed in the trip to the courthouse

Remember that no voter can participate in the primaries next month unless he has registered his party affiliation.

N

THE DALLAS POST

MORE THAN A NEWSPAPER, A COMMUNITY INSTITUTION

FRIDAY, APRIL 10, 1942

FIFTH POST EMPLOYEE TO JOIN ARMY TAKES

PHYSICAL NEXT WEEK Five former employees of The Post will be serving in the armed forces by next week when Wilbur Helmbold, a printer who has worked here for the past several months, is inducted through his draft board in Ashley.

First to go was Alan Kistler, who entered the army more than a year ago. Others now in the service are Norman Rosnick, Al Davis and Warren Hicks.

Wilson To Face

Grand Jury On

Wilson will be tried on three charges—sales of liquor on Sunday, sales to minors, and minors fre-quenting premises-with the Liquor Control Board as prosecutor. He was arraigned on these charges last

Thursday afternoon before Squire

J. P. Allen of Tunkhannock and Acting on the complaints of Nox-en residents, a group of ten liquor board agents and State Troopers raided Wilson's Noxen Inn on March held on $1000 bail for court.

Fleeing From The Terrors Of War!

Fleeing from the bursting shells and the fires that swept their homes, thousands of Chinese gather together what little possesions that they could carry and swarm into Chapei and Hongkew. The upper photo shows be able to carry out their pledge. a bridge across Soochow Creek crowded with fleeing refugees, and the low- The campaign is supposed merely er photo shows boats in Soochow Creek loaded with natives fleeing from the scene of destruction.

Noted Big Game Hunter Travels In From West To Visit Kiefers

Ernie Miller Runs Famous Montana Vacation Ranch, Thinks The West Should Be Kept Wild

Two tough looking hombres from the Far West swaggered into the offices of The Post a few days ago. One of the pair—a stocky baldish character, his hand never straying too far from the heavy six-shooter slung at his hip-plunked himself down across from the editor and swung his booted feet onto the desk top. The other, an unshaven, hard-looking man with a black cigar clamped between

More Sweat, Less Blood And Tears!

No. 15

Air Wardens Mobilize For Bond Campaign

"Pledge For Victory" Canvass To Be Held Next Thursday Night

Joining thousands of civilian deense workers all over the nation in the "Pledge for Victory" campaign to promote the sale of war bonds and stamps, local air raid wardens prepared this week for a house-tohouse canvass to be conducted throughout the Back Mountain Region.

The canvass, which will be un-dertaken next Thursday evening, April 16, in all municipalities and rural sections of this area, is designed to gain the co-operation of all local wage-earners in the war bond drive. Each air raid warden will be assigned a small territory to cover, and will carry pledge cards for the signatures of every citizen in his route.

Three methods of bond purchase are open to the signers of the 'Pledge for Victory": payroll deduction, direct buying from the Treasury Department or an authorized agent, and Post Office purchase. In the case of payroll deduction, arrangements are made with the employer of the signer to have a certain amount deducted from his salary each week for bonds. Many concerns already have blank bonds on hand to expedite this method. No high pressure methods will be used by the air raid wardens to make their prospects sign the pledge cards, and people are cautioned not to sign unless they will to encourage and make more convenient the purchase of the war securities and not to force citizens to buy.

The signed pledge cards will be turned into the government and tabulated for reference by the Treasury Department.

Wardens of Air Raid Sector No. 1, which covers Kingston Town-ship, met Wednesday evening at

(Continued on Page 8.)

Local Fanciers Will Show Dogs

Payne Will Judge Best Dog In Show

FROM_____ PILLAR TO POST

By MRS. T. M. B. HICKS, JR.

There are times when I wonder if all households run along the same Sunday track as mine. It is impossible to pry anybody out of bed until eleven A. M., at which time they assemble in the kitchen in bathrobes and curlers, or bathrobes and a stubble, depending upon the sex. They are starved from their long overnight fast, and they fall upon the hot cinnamon buns and the out-size pot § of coffee with enthusiasm. They prop their feet on chairs and make themselves comfortable while drinking the third cup over the latest copy of Time or the Sunday paper.

The Mother-of-Four starts the oven going and begins assembling the bony framework of the dinner, stumbling over out-stretched feet as she goes back and forth from the pantry to the sink. She bites back any appropriate remarks that may occur to her, for after all the institution of Sunday-breakfast-inthe-kitchen is her own brain-child. It eliminates setting the table in the dining room, clearing it, and resetting it, all in the short space of two hours. At twelve noon she reminds the family that dinner will be ready in about an hour and a half, and that if they want a bath as a preliminary to getting dressed, they'd better get upstairs. There is a concerted dive, each member intent upon getting the first bath along with the hottest water, and the kitchen clears miraculously.

We rise from the table at two P. M., replete with roast beef and baked potatoes. Time was when it was mashed potatoes, but the defense leaflets all say sternly, don't peel your potatoes, so we bake them in the oven and serve them on the half-shell in order to preserve the precious vitamins-or is it minerals? Everybody yawns, considers taking a nap, turns finally to the funnies in the Sunday papers.

At half past five there is a stir of life. The family emerges from its state of coma and begins looking hopefully toward the kitchen. Noses begin to twitch, a la rabbit, hoping to catch that choicest of all aromas,

(Continued on Page 8.)

Board One Calls Four Local Men For Service

Four men from this section were called for military service this week by officials of Local Draft Board No. 1 at Wyoming. They have been ordered to report to board headquarters Thursday morning, April 16, and will be sent from there to Wilkes-Barre for final physical examination and induction.

The men called were John Kudzinski, R. D. 3, Dallas; Paul Wesley Mahler, R. D. 4, Dallas; Frank Pearce Bennallack of Shavertown Little Fun"; "On The Mall" by Goldand Benjamin Harrison Jones, Mt. man; "American Patrol" by Mea-Airy Terrace, Shavertown. cham, and "System" by Bennett.

needed rest late Tuesday night.

night and Tuesday morning, Fire

The Maltby Mountain fire was the third in succession for the local

Dallas Crew Battles Five Big

Forest Fires Within 48 Hours

for more than eight hours Monday to flames on Maltby.

After battling five large brush and | crew on Monday. First call came forest fires within 48 hours, the early in the afternoon, when an 18-worn and weary score of local men acre blaze broke out in Kunkle-who make up the Dallas Volunteer on the Henney, Sweezy and Fire Crew came home for a much- Schwartz farms. Directly after the Principal conflagration to which were sent to White Rock, on the the Dallas fire-fighters were called hills south of the Luzerne Pike, to

was the huge blaze atop Maltby battle a rapidly-spreading brush

Mountain, back of Luzerne and fire. This was brought under con-

Swoyerville. Working at top speed trol just before the brush broke in-

Warden Grover Jones' men succeed- fighting, the Dallas crew was given ed in getting the raging flames un- a brief. respite Tuesday morning, der control, with the aid of the only to be called back to White

Carverton and West Pittston crews. Rock and another fire shortly be-

To Precede Concert

Tribute To Patron

In appreciation for the warm inmost outstanding patron, members of the Dallas Borough High School Band will initiate Joseph H. Macleigh as an honorary member next riday night, preceding their annual concert in the school auditorium. Through Mr. MacVeigh's efforts and financial assistance, together with that of several other local people, the band has been fully uniformed for the first time in its history. The concert itself will be one of borough bandsmen, with its varied conviction.

program of martial, classical and with several novelty numbers and Salvage Week popular arrangements interspersed solos, and routines by the three talented drum majorettes.

bandmaster, Robert Henderson, the 51-piece band has been in constant rehearsal all winter and now ranks in ability with the best school bands in the county. The program will include the following arrangements: "The Star Spangled Banner" "Remember Pearl Harbor" by Reid and Kaye, "Silver Threads Among The Gold' by Danks; "Sunbeam" by Olivaclote; "Anticipation" by Tiscombe; "Skaters Waltz" by Waldteufel Bennett's "Arline" and "Have A boys came in from Kunkle, they

After 16 hours of continuous fire-

(Continued on Page 8)

25 and found it crowded with his teeth, leaned against the door youngsters who were being served jam and kept a sharp look-out up liquor in violation of state laws re- and down Lehman avenue.

terest and co-operation of their garding minors. Fifteen of these were questioned by the agents and fore the jury Monday. Previous evidence had been gained proving that Wilson had sold liquor on Sundays.

County Grand Jury, Wilson faces penalties ranging from a fine of $300 to a year in prison. He was arrested by the State Police in 1924 for violation of prohibition laws, the finest ever presented by the but his case was discharged without

Under the direction of its new Is Postponed Collection Of Scrap To Be Held On 25th.

> The "Salvage for Victory" cleanup week which was to have been conducted here next week has been postponed until April 20th in order to avoid conflict with the air raid wardens' war bond promotion campaign.

Under the new arrangement, all scrap metal and other articles which ials for industry will be collected from house-holders on Saturday, April 25th. Collection will be made from door to door in Dallas Borough and neighboring communities by members of the American Legion and Boy Scouts.

Additional orders from the Bureau of Industrial Salvage, a division of the War Production Board, have reconstructed the "Salvage for Victory" drive along more ambitious lines. Though originally scheduled to be a one-week clean-up, the campaign has now been expanded to last the duration of the war. Following the first general collection on the 25th, which will be confined only to municipalities, centers will be established in each town for the concetnration of additional the concentration of additional According to Hugh Ridall, chairman of salvage collection in the Dallas Area, "everything except ashes and dust" can be utilized by industry and all waste or idle materials should be turned in.

"Yuh ain't seen a posse around here, have yuh, Brother?" asked will be subpoenaed to testify be- the latter. Assured there had been no sign of the vigilantes, he relaxed his guard at the door and took a chair. "Well," he said, "I'm Fred Kiefer-they call me 'Wild Cat' If convicted by the Wyoming Kiefer out west of Dallas-and this here's Ernie Miller, a pal of mine from Montana."

"Howdy, pardner," said Ernieand that's how we came to meet one of the most colorful characters who ever bunked at the Kiefer Ranch up at Shrine View.

Ernie-who refuses to be called Mister Miller, even in the effete East-spent most of last week visiting here with Fred and his wife, and, although he missed the lonesome howl of the covotes late at night, he felt right at home among the wide-open spaces of the Irem Country Club. A high-point of his visit was an impromptu party last Wednesday night, given by the Kiefers to celebrate his 50th birthday, and, what with the new friends he made here in Dallas and the renewal of his companionship with Mr. and Mrs. Kiefer, Ernie was doggoned perturbed when he had to pack his bags and go on to New York. He had stopped here enroute to a meeting of the Conservation can be converted to useful mater- Committee of the Campfire Club of America.

Was Kiefer Guide

Ernie and the Kiefers have been fast friends ever since they met for the first time last fall in the Olympian Hotel out in Seattle, Washington. As reported in The Post several months ago, in the annals of the Kiefer hunting expedition into the wilderness of Alaska, Ernie was outfitter and guide for the local couple on that excursion. He had been engaged for the job through mutual acquaintances in the Campfire Club, of which Fred is also a member, together with all the other big game hunters of any account in the country. And as soon as the Kiefers shook hands with Ernie, they knew their hunting trip was in good hands. And it was, too: they were after Ovis dalli sheepthe famed Alaskan White Sheepand after the expedition was over, Fred had bagged two of the magnificent animals, his wife had had

Boyhood Pals Meet Again In Australia

Two soldier boys of Lehman-William Edward Simpson and Alfred F. Lamoreaux-whose life-long companionship was broken off a year and a half ago when their army careers took them to separate units and stations have renewed their close friendship in far-off Australia. News of the happy reunion was received here Friday in a telegram to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simpson of Hayfield Farm. "Have met Alfred in Australia," read Edward's wire to his parents.

Corps simultaneously in August, president. 1940, and both are now private first combat units in Australia. Their progress in the air corps, as they doubtless learned when they met last week, was almost identicaljust as their boyhood lives in Lehman had been.

Join In Prayer

co-operation.

Members of the George M. Dallas O'Hara. Lodge, No. 531, F. and A. M., will join Masons all over the nation in hibitions are scheduled as part of prayer Sunday morning, May 31st, the show, planned to be the largest to implore Divine guidance in the ever held by the Luzerne County restoration of peace and order to Club. Entries can be made starting the world.

The patriotic motif is behind a sanction match of Luzerne County Kennel Club to be held Sunday, April 19, at Kingston Armory. Proceeds will be used to purchase athletic equipment for the 109th Field Artillery, Luzerne County's own regiment now in active service. Regimental officers have approved the benefit show sponsored jointly by the club and veterans groups including American Legion Post 132, and its auxiliary. Several hundred entries already have been received by Mrs. Joshua Byers, secretary, Both boys enlisted in the Air and Capt. Edward Harkins, club

A 25-inch high liberty trophy will class mechanics, stationed with go to the owner of the best dog in the show, the judge being W. T. Payne of Dallas, widely known breeder. Newton Brown, chairman of the show, has announced the judges as follows: Sporting group, Clyde Heck, Allentown; working group, Irwin Hollenback, Reading; terriers, Robert Foulds, Philadelphia toy and non-sporting group, Joseph Special children's classes and exat 11 a.m. Judging begins at 2.

Dallas Painter Begins One-Man Campaign For Street Markers

A neat, workman-like street | ten by residents of Lehman avenue, sign went up on the corner of Leh- each householder donating fifteen man avenue and Huntsville road a cents toward the cost of the new day or so ago as James Stile, public- sign. A similar arrangement can be spirited carpenter and painter of made for every street in the bor-Dallas, began a campaign for street ough, and Mr. Stile will build, paint markers throughout the borough. and erect each new marker as soon Impressed with Mr. Stile's single- as the necessary expense money has handed effort to bring improvement been raised.

to this community, The Post has The cost of markers will vary joined in his campaign and calls up- from street to street. In some cases on all house-holders of Dallas for two or more signs will be needed, and in others the lack of a corner The Lehman avenue marker, telephone pole will necessitate the which is similar to those of Kings- erection of a sign post. Individual ton and Forty Fort in appearance, donations will be increased where except for a bevelled water shed there is additional expense, but the which has been added to the top of average contribution is not expected the sign board to keep it clear of to exceed fifteen or twenty cents. rain streaks and bird lime, was It is suggested that one individual constructed, painted and erected at on each street make collections for a total cost of little more than a the marker, since no single donadollar. This sum will be underwrit-(Continued on Page 8.)

(Continued on Page 5)