Higher Income Helps Farmers Reduce Debts

National Farm Loan Association To Aid "Food For Freedom"

E. Dana Sutliff, secretary-treasurer of Luzerne County National Farm Loan Association, has returned from a two-day conference held in Harrisburg with Federal Land Bank appraisers who explained changes necessary to render the services which agriculture expects of this co-operative credit institution during the present emergency.

The National Farm Loan Association, co-operatively owned by farmers, makes loans available for the purchase of a farm, for farm needs and buildings in the proper operation of the mortgaged property and to provide eligible farmers with funds for general agricultural uses.

Rationing of tires and gasoline have necessitated changes in the transportation problems of the system and these details were discussed and plans outlined whereby the work of National Farm Loan Association can continue with efficiency.

Emphasis was placed on the benefit of keeping a normal value as a primary factor in all appraisals of farms for loans, since experience has shown this to be the sound basis of appraisal in a situation such as the world faces today.

Extra effort is to be exerted as a result of the conference to encourage the borrowers to make use of the higher incomes of today for the payment of existing debts.

At the same time, borrowers will be encouraged to build reserves out of higher farm prices to bridge the period when farm incomes may be lower.

In urging this, the Federal land bank system has established a "Future payment fund" in which farmer's can put extra income to be used when money might not be as plentiful as it is today. The deposit in the future payment fund earns the farmer the same rate of interest he is paying on his farm mortgage.

Secretary-treasurers will continue to refuse loans for speculative land purchases but credit will be extended to any eligible farmer for making sound and necessary shifts or developing a complete farm unit to meet the needs of the "food-for-freedom" program.

The purpose of the land bank system is to bridge the gap between the individual farmers' credit requirements and the money markets of the country and then to help the farmer get out of debt.

vide property holders of Goss Manor and caused a tie at 117-all between Floyd Chamberlain, a Clark candidate for committeeman, and his opponent Merle Shaver. When Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholson of Norton avenue—who have owned property in Goss Manor since last fall and registered for the primaries as residents of that section—appeared at the polls to vote shortly before the 8 o'clock deadline Tuesday night, their right to ballot was challenged by Tom Robinson, a campaign worker for Shaver. Surprised and angered by this interference, the Nicholsons left without casting their votes, thus setting up the tie vote between Chamberlain and Shaver. Mr. Nicholson protested the challenge at the court house Wednesday. How the tie will be decided has not yet been disclosed.

Aside from the tie between Shaver and Chamberlain, the county organization scored two other more or less inconsequential victories over the Clark forces: in the South district of Dallas Borough, county workers managed to bring about a slight plurality for Adrian Jones over Don Wilkinson, the vote reading 57 to 50, and in the South district of Dallas township returned 138 ballots for Davis as against 112 for Martin.

In the main, however, Clark decisively mastered the vote-getting power of the Fine organization in this area, gaining not only more than a 1000-vote margin for Martin and the balance of the state-supported ticket in the Sixth District, but also the election of 50 committeemen who have pledged his re-election as District Chairman, as against 22 committeemen elected from the county ticket.

Results of the committeemen elections:

Dallas Borough—South district: Joseph Jewell, 92 (unopposed); North district: James Bessecker, 113; Jack Hislop, 97.

Dallas Township—North district: Walter Elston, 122; Phillip Ellsworth, 41. Middle: Floyd Chamberlain, 117; Merle Shaver, 117. South: Earl Layaou, 114 (unopposed).
