There's Fun On Penna. Dude Ranches

Pennsylvania dude ranches furnish all the thrills of the Old West in an Eastern setting—riding being the principal diversion. Above is pictured a string of riders off for a canter in the Pennsylvania hills.

Luzerne County Crop Spoilage Can Be Halved

Prevention of waste in food distribution will be a vital factor in the effort of Luzerne county's 3,315 farm operators and workers to achieve their wartime harvest goals, it was indicated today in a survey by a leading distributor of Pennsylvania farm produce.

At least half of the estimated $11,708,000 annually lost from spoilage and damage to matured Pennsylvania fruits and vegetables alone can be prevented by the use of better grading, packing and by better and more direct distribution methods, Earl R. French, marketing director of the Atlantic Commission Company, A. & P. produce buying affiliate, declared in the survey's summary. He indicated that further savings could be realized from improved handling of other Pennsylvania farm products.

"If Luzerne county farmers, working with distributors, cut by half the average 10 to 12 per cent of fruit and vegetable shipments lost through damage and spoilage, they will have achieved the equivalent of a 5 to 6 per cent increase in production without any extra acreage, equipment or farm labor," French said.

"Under wartime conditions, use of efficient handling methods on the farm and utilization of efficient distribution channels is becoming increasingly important," he continued. "For example, Luzerne county's 2,657 farm family workers have found their job increasing production made more difficult because of the shorter farm labor supply, higher farm wages and limited availability of farm machinery and supplies.

"The latest census counted 658 regular hired hands in this county. Since that count was made, farm labor has decreased as much as 59% in certain areas and up to 36%."

But despite labor curtailments, he said, past performance indicates the farmer can approach food production goals. In ten years, covered by recent government reports, the farmer had increased his productive efficiency by 25.2 per cent. The average farmer, the survey revealed, fed 11.7 persons in 1929 and ten years later was feeding 14.1 persons from his fields.

"Dude" Ranches Give Color Of Oldtime West

Pennsylvania's "dude" ranches are playing host to a larger number of would-be westerners than in previous years, the State Department of Commerce reports.

Vacationists in increasing numbers from Pennsylvania and adjoining states are spending their "week off" in the saddle, exploring wooded trails and getting a dose of fresh air and food cooked over the open fire.

"An analysis of the numerous inquiries received in the Department indicates that vacationists from war production industries are taking advantage of the exercise and relaxation afforded by dude ranch life," Mark S. James, Secretary of the State Department of Commerce, said today.

"There is a distinct trend toward outdoor vacations and horseback riding is high on the preferred list," Mr. James added.

Pennsylvania's horse resorts also offer other informal recreational activities such as golf, tennis, swimming, boating, hiking, barbecues, barn dances and indoor entertainment for rainy days.

Several ranches are located in the Pocono Mountains not far from Stroudsburg.

Another dude resort is situated just a short distance south of Pittsburgh, near Uniontown, and still another is located on the outskirts of the Philadelphia area.

Near most Pennsylvania communities there are riding clubs or privately-owned stables where weekend vacationists can enjoy horseback riding.

Many persons head for these places evenings after working hours or, if they are on later shifts, they are riding in the early mornings.

The Department of Commerce will furnish upon request information concerning the State's dude ranches and other riding resorts.

LISTEN TO THE ROOSTERS CROW!

READ THIS!

Consumer attention will be focused on this season's record-breaking supply of poultry meat through a national retail merchandising campaign for broilers and fryers scheduled for the period July 16 through July 25.

During the sales drive the Nation's storekeepers will feature broilers and fryers as a Victory Food Special in their advertising and display material. Farm marketings of broilers and fryers are increasing and heavy supplies are expected on consumer markets during the latter half of July.

Increased consumption of this poultry meat at a time when supplies are in seasonal abundance will help conserve pork and other meat supplies urgently needed for this country's military forces, as well as for Lend-Lease shipment to the United Nations and other wartime purposes. With increased marketings on the way, prices to consumers should be attractive to stimulate a greater volume of sales of poultry meat and to encourage the conservation of other meats.

Poultry plenty is nothing but good news to the woman who sets before her family three good meals a day. For chicken—fried or boiled—is not only good food, but it is one of America's favorites for summertime eating.

From the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture come the following table tips on fryers and broilers. Ordinarily, you'll buy chickens to fry or broil by their dressed weight. That is the weight of the chicken picked but not drawn and including head and feet. The weight of a drawn chicken is about three-fourths that of a dressed chicken. Best chickens for table use are well-rounded—short and stocky rather than rangy. All bones are well-covered with flesh so that the chicken has a meaty look.

For frying—Get a plump chicken 14 to 20 weeks old and weighing between 2½ and 3½ pounds dressed.* One reliable clue to the age of the bird is the feel of the breastbone. If this is very flexible, the chicken is young enough to fry.

Since there is an upper limit to the weight of a chicken good for frying, buying for a large number of servings naturally means buying more than one chicken. A 3-pound fryer usually may be counted on to serve about four persons.

For broiling—Buy a plump chicken 8 to 12 weeks old and not weighing over 2½ pounds. If you want each broiler to make one serving get a small one—split it down the back and cook it whole. Larger broilers—split down both back and breastbone—make two good servings.

—U. S. Dept. Agriculture—Dept. Markets.

*Men who are raising fryers and broilers under our feeding plan are bringing them to this weight in from 8 to 12 weeks.

FACTS

There's the story in a nutshell direct from the U. S. Department of Agriculture—Agricultural Marketing Administration. It is written from the consumers' point of view. Now let's look at it from the producers' viewpoint. With broilers and fryers aplenty on the market, the wholesale price to our producers has not dropped below 21½c per pound live weight. That permits a man who has raised a thousand birds under our plan to make a net profit of more than $150. We've got a weekly market for 25,000 birds every week of the year, and the demand is constantly increasing. Here is a profitable business that any responsible man or woman can enter. It's your opportunity to aid the nation's war food effort and at the same time make a profit for yourself. Come in and talk it over.
