Three words worth 50% of his salary!

BIG EUGENE COLLEARY is short on words—but he's lo-o-ng on action! A machinist at Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, his vital job might be considered quite a contribution to America's war effort. But not by Colleary! He wanted to do something big.

So Eugene Colleary signed over one-half of his salary to the purchase of War Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan!

You might expect a man who's putting 50% of his salary into the war to crow about it—to tell (at some length) exactly what, how, and why he figured his 50% would help to win the war.

But Colleary's answer to any question about War Bonds is a three-word statement which covers the matter as completely as a book: "I'm an American," he says. And that's that!

Are you lending ALL you can?

Weren't there a few dollars in your last pay envelope that could have gone into War Bonds—but didn't? Get out your pencil right now, and see if you can't boost the percentage you're putting aside for Uncle Sam—and yourself!
