

Big Attendance At Camp Meeting

Dover, N. J., and some of the New England States.

Rev. Guier said the program this year will be especially good. Rev. O. R. Tessaro of Greensburg, Pa., will be the Conference evangelist and will speak twice daily. There will also be special children's programs conducted by Rev. and Mrs. Howard Rose of Creighton, Pa. Rev. and Mrs. Rose are graduates of Greenville College and are taking post-graduate work at Pittsburgh University.

Besides the visiting ministers these other pastors of the district will speak at other meetings: Rev. T. M. Holcomb, Rev. L. A. Smith, Rev. David Callen, Rev. J. D. Howard, Rev. L. H. Seifert, Rev. Howard Deats, Rev. Esther Howard, Rev. Ernest Kratzer, Rev. Irving Ball, Rev. I. W. Parsons and Rev. Raymond Kratzer.

During the spring and summer months additional accommodations have been erected on the camp grounds. The dining hall which last year fed 250 people daily, has been enlarged with a 21x24 addition two stories high with dormitory space on the second floor. A two-story chapel for children, size 28x40 feet, of cinder block and wood construction is about completed and will be used for the first time during the camp meeting sessions.

courage them to move on. Had we added the $600 paid to Mr. Paul to the salary of another teacher we could have procured one of the best music teachers in the country who might have stayed with us through at least one term. Instead of fifteen poorly paid teachers I'd like to see fourteen well-paid teachers on our faculty, then we could go out and select the people we need for the jobs instead of having to take what we can get for the money.

"The majority directors will tell you that the district is in excellent financial shape and that we've money in the bank. If that is the case, what are we waiting for?"

Showers Have Everything Except Back-Scrubbers

sembly-line technique, the men literally start from scratch and end up feeling like a million with clean clothes to boot.

Under the supervision of Sgt. Leonard Romelli, Beacon, N. Y., GIs strip in the first tent and put all their belongings in a large bag. Each man receives a bar of soap and is allowed five minutes or more, depending on the traffic, under one of the 24 hose showers going all the time. Clean towels are handed to the soldiers when they emerge.

A squad under Sgt. Tony Suozzo, Long Branch, N. J., handles the exchange of clothing. The men deposit their socks, underwear, ODS or fatigues in sacks and receive fresh clothing. The soldier in charge of sorting the mountain of clothing for salvaging and laundering is Sgt. Gordon Bassett, Detroit. After the clothes are washed, they are also sterilized.

The boys responsible for seeing that the hot water is running all the time and at the right temperature are Sgt. Earl Farrer, New Castle, Pa. and Cpl. Andy J. Filosa, Brooklyn, N. Y.

There are no distinctions of any sort. Officers and enlisted men line up together and take their turn. Under the shower, you might even find a major washing a private's back. One captain attached to a French unit, Larry Lee, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. was enthusiastic over the setup.

"I think the American Army takes care of its soldiers better than any army in the world," he declared.

An artillery man, Pvt. J. A. Justice, Rutherford, Texas, exclaimed: "Buono! It makes me feel pretty damn good."

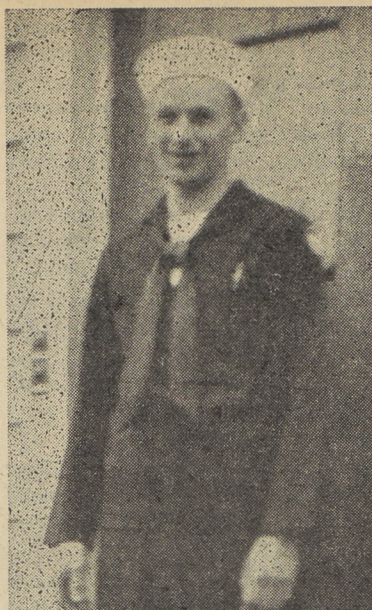

"It's swell," said Lt. John Connelly, Washta, Iowa, "I'd like to have had it on top of that hill I was stuck on the other night."

One lone dissent was voiced by Cpl. O. H. Shivers, Corsicana, Texas, who said it "would have been better if they had some women there to scrub your back."

Raspberry Crop Retarded

Raspberry crops in the Back Mt. area have been reduced one half and in some sections even more by the long stretch of dry weather.

Observes Birthday

Seaman Wilbur Harry Davis

Seaman Wilbur Harry Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Davis, Park street, observed his birthday anniversary Sunday, July 23, somewhere in the Pacific.

Wilbur was graduated from Dallas Borough High School in 1935 and was employed by Royer Foundry and Machine Company, Kingston, until March, 1944, when he enlisted in the Merchant Marines. He had eight weeks training before going overseas.

His wife, the former Velma Harling, is residing on Lehman avenue, Dallas.

Junior Club Triples Fifth War Bond Quota

The excellent work accomplished by the Dallas Junior Women's Club in the sale of War Bonds in the Fifth War Loan Drive merits high praise. The amount of Bonds sold totaled $12,825, tripling the original quota of $4,000. Miss Elsie Ayre of Truckville and Miss Doris Stookey of Dallas were co-chairmen of the drive. War Bond booths were maintained in the Himmeler Theatre in Dallas and in the Shaver Theatre in Shavertown.

Blue Brigade pins were earned by Miss Jane Case and Miss Adria Jones for selling $1,000 or more in bonds and ten or more bonds during the drive. Co-Chairmen Stookey and Ayre appreciate the fine efforts of those selling bonds and greatly appreciate the excellent cooperation given them during the drive.

The Junior Club purchased a $50 War Bond during the Fifth War Loan Drive.

Lieut. Herbert Culp Missing In Action

he was assigned to a bombardment squadron at Charleston, S. C., and sent overseas.

He was devoted to his crew and just before he left this country forwarded the names and addresses of all their parents and wives to his mother. In case anything should happen to any one of his boys, he wanted her to write to their mothers and wives.

Endowed with great personal charm and a strict attention to duty he was admired by his associates at home and in the army, but his popularity did not turn his head and he adhered to a code of clean personal living from which he never deviated.

He had a natural interest in outdoor sports, hunting, fishing, football and hiking and at one time he devoted considerable attention to wrestling.

He was a member and deacon of Huntsville Christian Church and during his last leave home, he and his cousin, Lieut. Lewis, now with the Signal Corps in England, served the sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the church.

His sister, Aux. Clara Culp, is stationed with the WAC Training Detachment at Fort DesMoines, Iowa. His other brothers and sisters are: Mrs. William Eckart, Truckville; Mrs. Howard Monroe, Newark, N. J.; Mrs. Anthony Mauro, Kingston; Clifford, with the J. B. Carr Biscuit Co., at Greenwood, S. C.; Robert of Huntsville, and Richard at home. Two of his brothers-in-law are in military service: Howard Monroe with the navy and Anthony Mauro with the infantry at Fort Dix, N. J.

Jap Beetles Invade Back Mountain Area

Clinton Ide of Huntsville reports a great increase in the number of beetles in that section this year. Gardens belonging to Mae Townsend on Pioneer avenue, Dallas Township, and Robert Currie of Druid Hills in Kingston Township are likewise more heavily infested than last year, and beetles have been observed on rose and grape vines in the heart of Dallas Borough. No beetles have yet been seen in Lehman or in East Dallas although they can reasonably be expected in those areas next year.

One of the most effective sprays, according to J. D. Hutchison, for shrubs and any crop other than edible fruits and vegetables is a mixture of three pounds aluminum sulphate, 20 pounds hydrated lime and 100 gallons of water. For the average home owner who wants to do his own spraying this would amount to two ounces aluminum sulphate, three-fourths pound hydrated lime and four gallons of water. Dusting lime on foliage of grape vines tends to repel the beetles.

Where beetles are abundant this year, Mr. Hutchison advises a grub-proofing treatment for lawns where beetles will soon lay eggs and grubs hatch this fall to do a lot of feeding on grass roots. Grub-proofing requires the following mixture applied evenly over a thousand square feet of lawn space: Ten pounds lead arsenate powder mixed with 150 pounds of dry sand.

Carverton Infant Dies

Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday afternoon with Rev. Charles Gilbert, pastor of Carverton Methodist Church, in charge. Interment was in Memorial Shrine Cemetery.
