

"Only One Bomber Lost"

Received your letter about our sons missing. Our boy was also reported missing and it's such a terrible thing I don't know what to do. We have hope they are all alive, but maybe were interned somewhere or are prisoners of war. I have quite a lot of details on that bombing raid. Wish I had another copy, I'd send it to you. It said we lost 26 bombers. There were no enemy fighters, but heavy anti-aircraft fire, and the Swiss dispatches reported that Swiss fighters forced down nine bombers and another made a crash landing. I remember the radio gave the details and I always figured that was the raid our boys were in. It said some also landed in Sweden, so if that's true, there were only 26 bombers in all—10 in Switzerland—and that would leave 16 bombers and if some are in Sweden, we can feel sure all the rest weren't killed. So we do have high hopes they are O. K. and I trust God has protected them in time of trouble. He is the only one that has the power to save them from harm.

My son in the Navy has gone through Hell and he said although they were shot at he never was hurt and he thanked God for His great protection. He was in all the invasions of Italy, then in France. He is on a L. S. T. and is only 19 years old. He was only 18 when in the first invasion.

I also have a son that has gone through all the tank battles in Italy and never has been hurt—thanks to God again. He is a tank driver.

My other son was 29 months in the Aleutians in Alaska. Guess I didn't spell that right but you will know. So you see I have a lot to worry about, but this was such a shock it made me so sick it would have been easy to give up and die. But I have such a strong feeling my boy hasn't gone that I got well as quickly as I got sick. So I think God has shown me that my son is O. K. and if he is, so is yours. So let's not give up. I trust if we all pray to God, He will bring our loved ones back, and I hope it won't be too long before we get good news.

Will close and if I get any word I'll write again and hope you will do the same. I would have written to you, but I lost all the addresses of the boys' parents, so I couldn't write. I heard from Mr. Parker, also.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Thomas Petrie.

P. S. If you would like a copy about that air battle, I'll have it typed and mailed to you. The raid was over Munich and there were 1200 bombers and 750 fighters.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Stanley L. Culp: Thank you for your letter of August 1st. My reply is delayed because I was out of town.

Like your son, Herbert, my son, John, is also listed as "missing in action." Rather regretfully, I must tell you I know nothing as yet.

Please be assured that whatever I learn I shall be glad to advise you immediately and that I am moving everything possible to learn the boys' whereabouts.

What you said about your son's deep interest and affection for his crew is well known to us. My son, John, regarded him as the best in leadership and airmanship and was only too happy to serve under his command.

It is our fond hope this leadership came to the fore on their mission and that if there was any chance at all, your son carried them to safety, even though on enemy soil. We hope and pray with you.

Councilman, Borough of Queens,

Mr. Morrison's Second Letter

Barre, Vermont,
August 11,
5 P. M.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Culp:

We received late last evening a very authentic message from the Adjutant General of the War Department, stating that they had just received a report from the International Red Cross, that our son, 2nd Lieut. Norman J. Morrison, Jr., is now a prisoner of war of the German government, and that letter of further information would follow.

As you will know, this was "very heartening news" to us, and even though a prisoner it is such a relief to know that he is alive and all right, as was reported in that short wave message received on July 27th, and which I quoted in my previous letter.

I suspect the whole crew are now German prisoners, and that you have or soon will be receiving a similar message from Washington.

While we know that this situation will be quite a keen disappointment to our boys who were keen to "do things" at this time, it gives us parents a bit different feeling in knowing that they are out of flying and its hazards for a few months, and a feeling of relief in this. They have done their best to carry on, and have been unfortunate in this operation, and quite frankly, I feel a great relief in this turn of affairs, when things surely could have been much more devastating.

And can now expect to correspond with, and send them packages of whatever their immediate needs may be, upon definite information of their postal addresses, which will be a great pleasure.

Very sincerely yours,
Norman J. Morrison, Sr.

been officially notified by the Adjutant General, so my hands are finally freed.

My hopes and beliefs are that your son, Herbert, is alive and well; that is, you understand, my personal opinion. The plane went down due to mechanical trouble, but it had not been subjected to any type of enemy action. Reliable eye witnesses have told me that the ship was under perfect control when last seen, and six men have reported seeing eight parachutes come from the plane. One gunner reports having seen ten chutes, which would account for every one on board. It is my personal conviction from compiled reports, that all on board safely bailed out over enemy territory.

Their position at bail out was such that the chances of reaching neutral territory were excellent. It is my sincere hope that everyone did so.

I was co-pilot of the crew, but ground duties kept me from flying that day. Those men were my working companions for six months. May this letter be of some help and encouragement to the parents of a fine man.

Extending my deepest sympathy, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
Lt. Kenneth H. Dellow.
